G. A. BRITTAIN LTD., PORTOBELLO, DUBLIN

DUBLIN WATER SUPPLY

ALLEGED POLLUTION OF STREAM

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., with whom was Mr. G. Burke (instructed by Mr. Rice, Law Agent to the Corporation), applied for an injunction to restrain Messrs. S. Holmes and Sons (Dublin) and Mr. Samuel Holmes, contractor, Granby place, from polluting a stream which supplies the inhabitants of the city with 150,000 gallons of water daily.

The stream, he said, was connected with Bohernabreena waterworks. Above the reservoir the defendants had erected a machine for cleaning sand. So much mud, oil and other matter had gone into the water that the stream had had to be diverted temporarily from the supply. The defendants had undertaken, on being warned, to discontinue the offence, but they had not carried out their undertaking. Polluted water was being put back, with no attempt at filtration.

The Judge said that he could not give an injunction without previous notice.

Mr. Wood said that the matter was important, because the water had been diverted, and was required by the people for drinking.

The Judge gave leave for service of notice of motion, and said that he would sit on Monday morning next to hear the application.

SHALLOW GRAVES IN A CEMETERY

COMPLAINT AT BOARD OF HEALTH

A complaint was made at yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Board of Health of the shallowness of graves in a certain cemetery in the County Dublin, and of the presence of vermin in it.

Mr. Rollins said that the condition of that particular cemetery was a disgrace to the County Dublin.

The Secretary (Mr. P. J. Murphy) said that a report on the subject would be received shortly.

In the course of a discussion on the provision of a loan for a scheme in North Dublin, Mr. P. Belton, T.D., said that last week he had been on a deputation from the Dublin Corporation to the Government looking for £1,500,000 for the housing of the working classes and for the development of the Liffey scheme.

They had not received "a bob," he said.

A bloodstained hammer head and poker with which Mrs. Minnie Lawson is believed to have been battered to death in her cottage at Ogle, Northumberland, during Saturday night, were found yesterday. A Scotland Yard finger-print expert who visited the scene obtained several photographs of marks which may help to trace the culprit.

OWNERSHIP OF "SWEEP" PRIZE

DECLARATION SOUGHT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

An application was made for a declaration in regard to the persons entitled to £30,000, the first prize in the sweepstake on the Derby, 1935, the applicants being Mrs. Maria Hyman, 711 Avenue K.S., Brooklyn, New York, and Jessie Brown, also of Brooklyn. The defendants are the trustees of the Irish Hospitals Trust and Mrs. Hyman's twelve years old daughter, Muriel.

The plaintiffs claimed to be entitled to the full amount of the prize, a half share in which was sold by Mrs. Hyman to Mrs. Brown for £8,000. In an affidavit, Mrs. Hyman stated that her husband was a manufacturer of ladies' belts. She bought the ticket from Benjamin Keisler, a tailor, her son Syd being the only other present. Her son filled in the name on the ticket with the nom-de-plume of "Fast Dog." She did not buy the ticket for her daughter Muriel.

Muriel May Hyman, in an affidavit, stated that she never heard any suggestion that the ticket was her property, nor that it belonged to anybody but her mother, until her mother told her that the Irish Hospitals' Trust refused to pay the money.

Mr. C. Casey (instructed by Mr. P. H. O'Reilly), for the Hospitals' Trust, said that there was a responsibility upon the trustees to investigate the claim fully. They held that Muriel May Hyman was entitled not only to half the prize money, but to the £8,000 paid for the half share, and they would like to hear the child give evidence.

Mr. J. Russell (Craig, Gardner and Co.) stated that he had inspected Mrs. Hyman's passport and found the named Anna on it.

The Judge said that the matter was not one to be disposed of at a vacation sitting, and he adjourned the application.

Mr. F. Fitzgibbon and Mr. J. Nolan-Whelan (instructed by Messrs. Milward, Jones, Mayne and Sharpe) appeared for the applicants; Mr. M. Walker (instructed by Mr. F. G. Gordon) appeared for the minor, Miss Hyman.

LABOUR IN COUNTY CORK

Speaking at a Labour Party conference, which was held in Bantry, Mr. T. Quill, Chairman, County Organising Committee, presiding, Mr. T. J. Murphy, T.D., said that they had now close on eighty branches in Cork County, but they were still far from the end of their work.

In the Dail the trend of leigslation tended to some degree at least towards an advance in social matters, a marked contrast to the hopeless inefficiency of the one time so-called Farmers' Party. Unlike the Farmers' Party, the Labour Party could point to widows' pensions, unemployment assistance and improved social legislation in many other directions as a result of the strategic position they occupied within the last few years.

It was decided to organise branches in Goleen, Ballydehob, Kealkil, Glengarriffe, and Bere Island.

TRY AN "AIR-GLIDE" RIDE IN THE IRISH-BUILT DODGE '6'

You'd expect great things of a car of such stunning appearance—speed-suggesting body lines. But you're in for a thrilling surprise when you sit at the wheel of the new Dodge Senior "Six." From a standstill to fifty in thirteen seconds and a bit. . . . There's acceleration for you! Step up to seventy—eighty—enjoy "air-glide riding" at peak speeds. Dodge super-engineering gives you this fine smooth, silent power. And makes it safe with powerful brakes that ask just a toe-touch for instant retardation. This extraordinarily fine saloon sells at £345. A revolution in present-day car value—that's what the new Dodge means.

Built throughout in Dublin by John O'Neill, Ltd., Lucania Works, Pleasants Street.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

EVIDENCE OF BELFAST TRANSACTION

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Remarkable evidence concerning "the purchase" of articles of clothing from a Belfast store was given in the case in which Isabella Whyte, alias Harvey (40), said to be a native of Scotland, was charged with having in September, 1934, stolen from the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin, £163 worth of clothing and jewellery, belonging to Mr. A. Preston Jones, Milford, Derby, then a guest at the hotel.

Janey Morton, Clifford street, Glasgow, gave evidence. She said that she had been employed in a drapery establishment in Belfast last October. One day two women, who gave their names as Mistress and Miss Harvey, aunt and niece, came into the shop. They said that they were staying at the Grand Central Hotel, Belfast, and the defendant, who was niece, selected a coat, valued at 45 guineas, while the aunt picked a coat valued at £51 19s. 6d. The aunt said that they would pay by cheque. She opened her bag and then said that she had left her cheque-book in the hotel. She said to the niece: "You run across and I will wait here."

About ten minutes afterwards the niece returned and said: "After all that trot and climbing the stairs—you have the case in your own bag." The aunt agreed and said that they wanted to do some shopping. They would return later.

Sometime afterwards there was a telephone call from the niece, who said that she and her aunt had been detained with some friends at luncheon in the L.M.S. Hotel, and that they would try to be back at the shop before 3 p.m. They did not return to the shop till about 4 p.m., and the aunt handed the cheque-book to the niece. There was a difficulty about writing "hundred pounds."

The purchased articles were forwarded to the hotel, and she had never seen them again. The cheque which had been returned from the bank marked "no account" was identified by her.

The defendant was returned for trial, on bail of £200 and two sureties of £100.

Mr. T. Clarke (State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solocitor, appeared for the defence.

VAGRANCY CHARGE

ALLEGED STATEMENT TO GUARD

Charged with having been "found wandering abroad and lodging in the open air in O'Connell street" yesterday morning Henry Kelly, no fixed address, a native of Belfast, was remanded in custody for a week.

A Guard gave evidence of seeing Kelly come out of Frenchman's lane into Lower Gardiner street. He walked through various streets until he came to O'Connell street, where he sat down in a seat. When accosted by the Guard he said that he had been in prison in Glasgow and Northern Ireland, and the only thing that prevented him from "doing a job" here was that he had not "the tools."

The accused man told Mr. Hannan that he had been lodging in the Union in Dublin for the past three months, and before that had been "running around" England, Scotland and Ireland.

The Justice—Is it true that the only thing that prevented you "doing a job" was the lack of tools?—That is correct.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT OUTSIDE COURT

Mary Hyland (53), 75 Chancery street, and Mary O'Connell, 4 Francis street, Dublin, were both ordered to keep the peace for twelve months, charged with disorderly conduct and using profane and obscene language.

Guard William Melly (69D) gave evidence that the defendants were drunk and were fighting in Chancery street, outside the Dublin District Court, on Monday evening.

CLOTHING TRADE STRIKE

THREE UNIONS INVOLVED

The 300 employés of Messrs. Sabin, Clothing Manufacturers, of New street, Dublin, who ceased work on Monday morning, following the company's decision to introduce piece work, still remain out. The factory is closed and picketed. There were conversations last night between the firm and representatives of the unions concerned in the dispute, as a result of which it is believed that a conference has been arranged for next Friday, when representatives of the unions will meet members of the firm. In the meantime the employés will not return to work, and will, at the end of the week, draw strike pay. At a meeting of employés at the Trades Hall Mr. T. Birch (Clothing Trades Branch of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union) said that the Minister for Industry and Commerce, who had been approached, was not inclined to interfere. Strike pay, he said, would be paid by the three unions involved.

Mr. Cormac O Cionnae (Irish Garment Makers' Industrial Union) said that the only fair conditions of living for workers in these little highly tariffed industries was by knowing what money was coming each week, and by regulating their standard of living to that amount. Under the piece work system they could never do that. The Government evidently expected the workers to pay back in their sweated blood the money that had been sunk by the Government in protected industries. In June last the workers at Sabins had given them a mandate turning down piece work. They had now been told that they must accept this scheme of work, and had been given no option to consider it.

Mr. W. J. Pearson (National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers), who presided, also spoke, and appeals were made for the workers, who were members of three unions, to stand together.

Nearly four hundred men at Babbington pit, Bulwell, Notts, are idle as a result of the ventilating fan house being damaged yesterday. A spark is believed to have been responsible for setting fire to adjacent grass, which, in turn, ignited the fan house. Three hundred and fifty men were withdrawn from the pit.

GIRL CYCLIST'S DEATH

INQUEST ADJOURNED

The Aldershot District Coroner, Mr. H. M. Foster, yesterday adjourned until December 4 the inquest at Fleet, Hants, on Miss Phyllis Mary Doreen Oakes, who was knocked down by a car and fatally injured last Thursday while cycling.

In his opening address, the Coroner told the jury that the police required time to make considerably more investigations into how the girl met her death, and it might be a long time before the matter was finally disposed of. "If their investigations lead to certain conclusions, a certain individual may be brought to trial in this matter. If that is so, it will not be necessary to resume this inquest at all, because the case may be dealt with elsewhere," he said.

Miss Oakes, who was the daughter of the Clerk to Hartley Wintney Rural Council, and secretary to Miss Dorothy Brandon, the novelist, had been looking forward to her coming-of-age celebrations last Friday. She died in hospital on Saturday.

Dr. J. A. Sharkey said that he was called to the scene of the accident. "I saw that Miss Oakes was gravely injured. I went to the hospital with her and there examined her. I found that she had a compound fracture of the right leg, dislocation of the right shoulder, a lacerated wound on the right temple, and a bad laceration of the front of the right foot. In addition to these injuries, there were multiple lacerations and bruises all over her body. She was also suffering from severe shock. She remained in a very grave state for three days, and died on Saturday from shock, due to the injuries."

The Coroner told the jury that that was all the evidence he proposed to call, and fixed a formal date for the resumption of the inquest.

BOARD OF HEALTH CHAIRMANSHIP

Mr. J. T. Ennis was re-elected unanimously to the chairmanship of the Dublin Board of Health for the coming year, on the motion of Mr. A. Cullen, seconded by Mr. R. Blake.

Mr. Thomas Dowling was elected to the vice-chair, on the motion of Mr. W. Rollins.

NORTH DUBLIN SEWAGE

AN ENGINEER'S REPORT

ESTIMATED COST OF £78,000

IMPORTANT recommendations in regard to the sewage of North Dublin, involving a cost of £78,000, are made in a report by Mr. Edward M. Murphy, Consulting Engineer, which was submitted to a meeting of the Dublin Board of Health, which was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. T. Ennis (Chairman) presiding.

Mr. Murphy stated that he had made a complete survey of the area of North Co. Dublin between Malahide on the north, Howth on the south, the Ballymun road on the west, and the coast from Malahide to Howth on the east. The only method of dealing with the sewage in the area was to take it to the eastern coast line and to discharge it at Howth.

In a plan which he had prepared, provision was made for a principal collecting and outfall sewer. This sewer would take all drainage from the point opposite Portmarnock strand to the Howth boundary and through Howth Urban District to the existing outfall works near Howth Harbour, and thence through the existing Howth outfall sewer to the sea. Provision was made on that section also for the conveyance of sewage from Portmarnock Round Tower to the main sewer. The existing settling tanks at Howth were more than adequate in capacity to deal with all the sewage from the area under consideration.

LIFTING STATIONS

The Howth outfall sewer was adequate to dispose of the whole of the sewage to the sea. The surface levels from Portmarnock Bridge to Howth were such that it would be necessary to instal five lifting or pumping stations on the sewer. These stations had been so designed that they would be efficient to deal with the sewage of the whole area. He had made an estimate of the costs of the various sections. Installation costs for all pumps had been calculated on the basis of the pump being electrically driven. He previously had investigated the possibility of using Dublin water for the lifting purposes, but had found that it would be costly, and that probably an adequate quantity and pressure would not be available.

The consent of the Howth Urban District Council would be necessary for the use of their existing tanks and outfall. As at present no sewer existed along the Bridge road, which was within the Howth urban district area, and as the Board would have to construct the sewer he suggested that the provision of the accommodation to Howth would be full compensation for the use of their existing tanks and outfall sewer.

THE COST

The plan (Section 2) provided for the disposal of the sewage from the so far undrained portion of Malahide, through Kinsaley and Balgriffin to Portmarnock Bridge, and the drainage (Section 3) of the area south and east of Balgriffin to the Howth (Sutton) boundary, and from Coolock to Baldoyle to the outfall sewer at the Maine Bridge.

The whole scheme was dealt with from the flow point of view. From the development point of view a housing increase of 20 per cent. had been taken over 20 per cent. of the area concerned.

Mr. Murphy estimated that the cost of the scheme would be £78,000, of which £23,000 would be devoted to the work on the Portmarnock sewer.

It was decided to refer the matter to the Local Government Department.

POLICE IN FURNITURE VAN

MACHINES TAKEN FROM AMUSEMENT PARK

Thousands of holiday-makers at Felixtowe yesterday saw over thirty police officers jump from a furniture van and enter an "amusement park," where they took possession of a number of machines and arrested 16 men and a women for alleged offences under the Gaming Acts.

Later, at a special police Court, Edmund Bernard Hill (52), an amusement caterer, of Felixtowe, was charged with having been the owner of "a certain common gaming-house, namely, Butlin's Amusement Park." He was also charged, with others, with having conducted the business of a common gaming-house.

Inspector Rumsey stated that, under a warrant under the Gaming Act of 1845, he and other police officers visited the amusement park and arrested the defendants. They also took possession of over 50 machines, which they conveyed to the police station.

The hearing was adjourned until September.

Mr. Hill said that he would stand bail for all those who were engaged at the park, and these defendants were remanded in a surety of £10 on their own behalf and another of £10. Six other defendants, who were alleged to have been playing on the machines, were allowed bail of £5 in their own surety.

£2,000 MISSING JEWELLERY

FOUND IN GRANDFATHER CLOCK

Jewellery worth £2,000 which had been missed from a house at Frinton-on-Sea, Essex, was yesterday recovered from a grandfather clock in the house where it had been concealed unknown to the owner.

The jewellery included diamond bracelets, brooches and rings, an opal brooch and necklace, strings of pearls, diamond earrings and other valuable pieces.

A £200 reward had been offered for the apprehension of the thief or thieves.

A representative of the firm which offered the reward told a reporter that the police found the jewellery hidden in two cases in the clock. The jewellery was intact, except for a jewel worth a small amount, and £30 in money which was still missing.

The Maltese Government is taking steps for the protection of the population against air attacks, and is shortly issuing a book of instructions on the subject for civilians.

SNAKE POISON SERUM

ULSTER COUPLE'S RESEARCH WORK

CURE FOR EPILEPSY CLAIMED

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

An important discovery of a snake poison serum, which will remove all danger from snake poisoning in South Africa and tropical countries, has been made by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fitzsimons, two natives of Ulster, now resident in South Africa.

Mr. Fitzsimons, F.Z.S., is director of the Port Elizabeth Museum, South Africa, and his wife is at present on a visit to her native country. She was born between Banbridge and Portadown, and Mr. Fitzsimons came from Armagh.

RESEARCH WORK

For several years Mr. Fitzsimons and his wife and youngest son, Desmond, have been concentrating upon the production of a serum at the Government Museum Research Department at Port Elizabeth to render snake bites innocuous. They have produced a serum which, it is claimed, has proved to be effective.

In an interview, Mrs. Fitzsimons said that Government officials in South Africa, including mounted police and surgeons, are required to carry this serum with them in case of attacks by snakes.

The serum, she added had been the means of saving several lives. Many people dread visiting South Africa and tropical countries owing to the fear of snakes, but this fear can now be allayed.

EPILEPSY CURE

Mrs. Fitzsimons said that she and her husband have been experimenting on venoms in a new department with the object of discovering a cure for epilepsy, and success, she says, has been achieved in 50 to 100 per cent. of the cases treated.

"We were led to take up these later experiments when we discovered that a man who was a great sufferer from epilepsy recovered from this disease after he had been bitten by a snake, and after months of suffering was able to move about again. His epilepsy had completely gone. We have produced a serum from the detoxicated venoms of several kinds of reptiles which has proved a cure for epilepsy."

SAFE ROBBERY SEQUEL

SUBORNATION CHARGES

AFTER further evidence was heard at Chester yesterday in the case arising out of the recent Northwich safe robbery trial, in which the prosecution alleged on Monday that one of the six accused persons retrieved £7,000 of stolen money from a glass jam jar on a grave in a London cemetery, the proceedings were adjourned until to-day.

There were four persons before the Court, including James Thompson, solicitor's clerk, of Oldham, who was charged with attempting to suborn Samuel Lazarus to commit perjury at Chester Assizes.

Samuel Lazarus, in evidence, said that he was asked to call at a solicitor's office in Manchester, and when he went there he saw Thompson, who asked him if he knew that Mrs. Boothby was in trouble, and if he would help her. Thompson said he could make it worth witness's while, and offered to give him £20. Lazarus said he would have to think it over. Thompson told witness he would write out something, which he (Lazarus) would have to memorise, and then destroy the papers. Witness later made a statement to his employer and to an inspector of the Manchester City police.

A TYPED STATEMENT

Lazarus referred to several conversations he had over the telephone with Thompson. Having received certain instructions from the police, he spoke to Thompson on the telephone, and said: "I have decided to help Mrs. Boothby." Thompson then typed a statement, in which he (Lazarus) was alleged to have been in the Pier Hotel, Birkenhead, on the evening of March 8th, with Mrs. Boothby, Parkinson and a Mrs. Moran, who, it was stated he accompanied as far as Manchester. He was to memorise the statement and then destroy it. He handed the document to Superintendent Platt.

Replying to Mr. J. Keogh, for the prosecution, Lazarus said there was no truth that he saw Parkinson or Boothby on March 7th. He had never seen Parkinson before he saw him in the dock. He did not visit Birkenhead on March 8th.

The defence reserved their cross-examination.

FISHERMEN CHASED BY SHARK

STRANDED MONSTER DIES ON BEACH

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Tuesday.

Two fishermen in Galway Bay had an exciting experience yesterday, when, seeing a monster fish in the bay, they drew in their nets and made for the shore, only to find that they were being chased by the monster. They were Michael Whelan and his son Michael.

They succeeded in pulling their boat up on the beach, and the fish lashed the water with his huge tail close to the shore. It got stranded on the beach, and was unable to get back to deep water and died that night.

It was later discovered that it was a basking shark, similar to that which was shot by the lighthouse keeper on Mutton Island earlier in the summer. It measures 25 feet in length and is 17 feet in girth.

GUN RAM-ROD FLIES INTO CROWD

WOMAN STRUCK AND BOY INJURED

During a field gun display by the Royal Marine Boy Cadets and Victory Girl Cadets at Southsea Castle field yesterday one of the field guns discharged before the ram-rod had been withdrawn.

The ram-rod was shot into the crowd. Mrs. W. A. Parnell, of Fleet, Hants, received a glancing blow on the face, but was only slightly bruised.

Cadet Albert May, of Wainscot road, Portsmouth, received superficial wounds on both hands. He was attended by St. John Ambulance men and taken to hospital.

PEER IN THE DOCK

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

WITNESS RESENTS QUESTIONS

EDWARD EUGENE FERNANDO MONTAGU (Lord Edward Montagu), aged 29, of Grosvenor street, London, appeared on remand at West London Police Court yesterday on charges of—

(1) Stealing, between June 28 and July 16, 1935, a banker's cheque for £17 0s. 7d., the property of Mrs. Violet van der Elst, of Addison road, W.

(2) Between June 28 and July 16 forging an endorsement on a banker's cheque drawn payable to Mrs. van der Elst by David Cope, Ltd., with intent to defraud.

(3) On July 16 uttering a banker's cheque drawn payable to Mrs. van der Elst by David Cope, Ltd.

(4) On July 16 receiving certain moneys—£13—by virtue of a forged cheque drawn payable to Mrs. van der Elst by David Cope, Ltd.

At the last hearing Mr. H. A. Procter, M.P., who appeared for the defendant, said there was a perfectly good answer to the charges.

"I DID NOT STEAL IT"

Yesterday Detective-Sergeant O'Sullivan stated that when arrested Lord Edward said: "I did not steal it. She gave it to me." Shown the cheque, he said: "Mrs. van der Elst signed the endorsement—well, when I say signed, I mean scrawled it." Then at the police station he declared: "To tell you the truth, Mrs. van der Elst gave me that cheque to pay some summonses with. I have not paid them. I converted the money. You can further charge me with that if you like."

The detective added: "I have had the endorsement photographed and enlarged, and from that it is easy to see how the forgery has been perpetrated."

When Mr. J. H. McDonnell, defending, protested against this remark as improper, the detective said that it was obvious that it had been inked over a carbon copy. The joining of the letters was visible. The officer also stated that as far as he knew Lord Edward had never been previously charged with any offence other than a motoring offence.

Mrs. van der Elst said that she received the cheque from Messrs. David Cope and Co., Ltd., turf accountants, and left it in the drawer of a desk at her home.

The Clerk—Did you ever sign the cheque?—No.

The Clerk—Is that your signature on it?

Mrs. van der Elst looked intently at the cheque and replied "Yes." She explained that it was exactly like her signature, but she was sure she never signed it. She engaged Lord Edward as secretary about six weeks ago.

The Clerk—What was the first indication that anything was amiss?

Mrs. van der Elst—When I missed several £5 notes I called Detective-Sergeant O'Sullivan, and he said: "Is there anything else you have missed?" I said: "Yes, there is a cheque I had that has also disappeared." She said she first missed the cheque three weeks after Lord Edward left. He was ill with sunstroke.

Asked whether she had a bad memory, she replied: "You don't expect a woman like me, with all my hard work, to remember dates and figures."

BAD MEMORY

Mr. McDonnell—How many cheques did you back on this day?—Bad memory again. I can't remember.

Did you ever promise to give Lord Edward £20 when he asked for accommodation?—He always wanted money. I may have talked about it. I know he wanted £20. I don't always promise, but people may take it for granted that I will let them have it.

Mrs. van der Elst said there was no suggestion that Lord Edward had anything to do with the loss of the £5 notes. "I have many thefts," she added.

Asked again about the cheque, she replied: "I regret it very much, but I must say I never endorsed it."

Mr. McDonnell—I put it to you that you handed this cheque to Lord Edward?

"It is not true," retorted Mrs. van der Elst. "As if I would get a man into trouble like this. I have done everything to defend him, not to accuse him."

Mr. McDonnell—I put it to you that you promised to let him have £20; that you endorsed this cheque in his presence; that you handed it to him, and that you had forgotten it at the time you went to the police?

Mrs. van der Elst (warmly)—You say that. I admit to the £20 if it pleases you, but please do not let me plead guilty to softening of the brain.

A HUMANITARIAN

Mr. McDonnell—When Lord Edward was arrested you did not even want to sign the charge, did you?—No; I am a kind woman. I am a humanitarian. Try and think I am someone different. I wanted to save him.

Mr. McDonnell—Have you made charges of theft before against people?—Never in vain, and because I am against capital punishment is no reason why I should not.

Answering further questions, she remarked: "Do you know I have about twenty blackmail letters a month?"

Mr. McDonnell asked her if she had to resign from the Lyceum Club because she accused someone there of theft.

Mrs. van der Elst—Why, you must be mad. Me resign from any club—never.

Later she interposed: "Why bring up lies and scandal?"

During a further heated passage she said: "I have done a kind action for your client, but never would I have done it if I knew you would dare to take advantage of it. I refuse to answer your absurdities."

The hearing was adjourned for a week, bail being again allowed.

FIRE IN AEROPLANE HANGAR

FURNITURE WORKS ALSO INVOLVED

A large aeroplane hangar at Hooton Aerodrome, Cheshire, was badly damaged by fire yesterday. Fire Brigades from Chester and Port Sunlight were quickly on the scene. Flames sixty feet high shot up from the hangar, which is adjacent to a petrol company's depot. The firemen prevented the flames from reaching the depot and other buildings in the vicinity.

The hangar covered an area of about 2,000 square feet. Aeroplane engines and parts, including a number of wings ready for assembling, were seriously damaged.

A furniture works at the rear of the hangar also caught fire, but workmen managed to extinguish the flames before the arrival of the brigades. Orders were issued postponing fresh arrivals of petrol wagons from all over Merseyside to the depot last night.

There were no workmen in the hangar.

At Roscrea yesterday several hundred of the townspeople gathered at the new factory for the official opening by the Minister for Agriculture (Dr. J. Ryan). The local Catholic Boy Scouts' pipe band greeted him on his arrival there with the "Soldier's Song." After the presentation of an address to the Minister by the townspeople at the entrance to the factory, the Minister and his officials, accompanied by Mr. Cornelius D. Crowley (chairman), Mr. G. Fasenfeld (managing director) and Mr. F. J. Scarry (secretary) made an inspection of the factory. It is about 110 yards long by 30 yards wide, and is very well designed and equipped. It is situate a short distance from the railway station, and has a railway siding; there is a great amount of floor space available for the work, and it has an excellent supply of Shannon electric current and of water, with a good sewage system.

It has been in production a week, and when working at full pressure, in about two months' time, will deal with more than 1,000 cows a week.

During his inspection the Minister was interested in the big overhead transport system for the carcases; the boiler-like meat-meal making engines; the vats and refining plant; and the machine for canning beef in the most up-to-date style.

Following the opening and the inspection, the Rev. T. O'Molloy, Adm., Roscrea, introduced the Minister to the audience, who received him with cheers.

Father O'Molloy said Dr. Ryan had seen clearly the great benefits a factory such as that could give to every county in Ireland, and he urged on its rapid building. The people of Roscrea, to whom Dr. Ryan had given the factory, thanked him for it. There was a big percentage of cattle in every county of Ireland that could successfully be dealt with at the factory, and apart from that a new avenue of employment was opened for Roscrea men. According as the men now employed were trained more would be taken on. The workingmen of Roscrea had made up their minds to make the factory a success, and he hoped that God would prosper it.

MINISTER'S HOPES

The Minister for Agriculture said he had not known the day was going to be a public holiday in Roscrea; however, it was a good beginning, and it augured well for the success of the factory that so many townspeople should come to show their goodwill.

Speaking of how the Department of Agriculture had approached the problem of uneconomic cows, about two years ago, the Minister said: "This country cannot afford to let anything go to waste. We took notice that we had something like 200,000 cows each year going out of use so far as the farmer was concerned. There were some young cows no good as far as milking is concerned, which he could dispose of as quite good beef for human consumption. There were others he could dispose of for export as milch cows. Others dropped out by disease or accident. Still we knew there must be 50,000 or 100,000 cows that were uneconomic to the farmer, as far as milk was concerned, and that could not be sold for export or as beef, and the only possible use we could make of them was to dispose of them in a factory like this."

The factory's primary product was meat meal, which this country had been importing in great quantities. Fats, for edible purposes and others, would be manufactured also, and subsidiary industries would spring up; for instance, 1,000 or 1,200 cows would be offered to tanneries in this country, and there were tanneries now ready to take them on. Many other things that they did not know of at the moment, would be produced, for the able directors would make use of everything. Hoofs and horns and intestines would all be used.

"We are not taking any of these cows for human consumption in this country. They are being used for feeding to animals as meat meal, and for processing further for industrial products such as the hides, hoofs, horns, etc."

The Minister said that any persons who had had doubts about the success of the venture (he personally had none) must have had them dissipated that day. The building had been planned by people who must have known their business. Those who were directing the factory knew what was wanted, and had prepared to get it. He hoped the building would become too small for their business, and that they would have to build more. There was no doubt about the attitude of the workers; it was plain that they were enthusiastic for the factory's success, and would do their best to make it a success.

A BEGINNING

"This is only a small beginning compared to what it is going to be as time goes on. I ask you all to give every help in establishing it firmly under its very efficient management and with its good workmen; I am sure everything is going to go well"

In conclusion, the Minister said he wished to dispel any idea that he had done anything to bring the factory to Roscrea. The proprietors had insisted on Roscrea, and the only thing for which he could take credit was that he did not object too strongly to their wish. (Laughter.)

The Minister was presented with a golden key to the factory by the builders, Messrs. John Ryan and Sons, of Limerick. Earlier an artistic address of welcome had been given to him by the Roscrea Industrial Development Association.

At the lunch which followed the opening ceremony, Mr. C. D. Crowley (chairman), on behalf of the directors of the factory, presented a fine canteen of cutlery to the Minister.

The toast of "Eire" having been honoured, Mr. Crowley proposed "the Minister for Agriculture." He referred to the importance of this factory to their cattle industry, "which, after all, is our main industry," and said that his co-directors and he were in the business purely as business men. As such, they invited co-operation from all sections in the Saorstat, which would benefit generally from the company's activities.

Mr. Seamus Browne supported. He said Mr. Crowley had specialised in the cattle trade for many years, and his words were the expression of real conviction. The methods that were successful in agriculture fifty years ago did not pay now. New processes and methods were needed, and they must congratulate Dr. Ryan upon initiating a new industry allied to the cattle trade, and thereby adding a new source of revenue to the national income. Dr. Ryan's work would put Irish agricultural products on a par with the best that other nations could produce.

SCIENTIFIC FARMING

Mr. Browne spoke of the need of inducing secondary schools and colleges to give scientific farming a prominent place in their curricula.

Dr. Ryan, responding, said that the big result from the factory would be an improvement in Irish cattle; well-bred heifers should as quickly as possible replace the uneconomic cows that the factory would use. There had been in this country an unfortunate habit of keeping old cows long beyond their usefulness; it was to the farmers' advantage to get rid of their old cows and replace them by better-bred heifers. The Roscrea factory would help the growing movement to do this to a great extent. It would thus do a lasting service to the country by improving the general quality of our cattle.

For a beginning, the cows for the factory were being taken from a county which had been harder hit by present circumstances than any county, and where, at the same time, the people made least complaint about their conditions. That was County Kerry, an area that was confined almost entirely to the Kerry cow, which had become very uneconomic in recent years. It was a great service to the farmers there to give them this new source of income in the factory; and Kerry cows were a hundred per cent. healthy.

The Minister referred in complimentary terms to Father O'Molloy for the work he had done to bring the factory to Roscrea; and to Herren Fasenfeld for their expert planning and guidance.

The Rev. Father O'Molloy proposed the toast, "The Roscrea Meat Factory." He said that the products should command a ready sale.

Mr. F. Traynor supported.

WILLING WORKERS

Subsequently Mr. R. Briscoe, T.D., responded on behalf of the company. He mentioned that Herr Fasenfeld, who came from that highly efficient country, Germany, had said that never in his wildest dreams had he believed he could obtain, as he had obtained in Roscrea, workers who had such a desire for the industry's success, and such a willingness to work.

The toasts of "Visitors" and "Roscrea Industrial Development Association" were also drunk.

The following spoke to them: Messrs. Seamus Bourke, T.D.; O'Brien, E. Barry, E. A. Mansfield, W. Moloney, and Senator Quirke.

Those present at the opening were: Herr G. Fasenfeld (managing director), Herr J. W. Fasenfeld, H. Heinemann, N. L. Bossen, P. Ehlers, O. Tolpher (factory technicians), F. J. Scarry (secretary), R. Briscoe, T.D. (director); D. Breen, T.D.; S. Hayes, T.D.; M. Ryan, T.D.; Senator W. Quirke, Senator Boyle, Seamus Bourke, T.D.; District Justice W. Meagher, Chief Superintendent Quinn, Inspector McCarthy, R. J. Hulme, A. Fogarty, T.D.; Seamus Moore, T.D.; the Rev. A. N. Stanisstreet, the Rev. T. Tuohy, and the Rev. J. Fogarty.

THE FACTORY AND IT'S BUILDERS

THE factory, which is built on the Continental style, embraces many features of design, and is constructed to facilitate the entry, at one end, of the raw products—in this case cattle—and the distribution at the other end of finished products.

The architect was Mr. T. J. Cullen, Dublin, and the building has been erected by Messrs. John Ryan and Son, builders and contractors, Limerick.

Steelwork was fabricated and supplied by Messrs. Smith and Pearson, Dublin, and Messrs. the Electricity Supply Board supplied all power and light.

Piping and engineering work was done by Messrs. Tucks, specialists in mechanical supplies, Lower Abbey street, Dublin.

Messrs. the Time Recording Co., of 23 Temple bar, Dublin, supplied time recording equipment; Messrs. J. P. Keogh and Co. supplied all the sacks, etc., needed for the finished products; Messrs. M. W. Broderick and Co. the slaughterhouse equipment, and Messrs. the Timber Supply Co., Dublin, supplied wood and other materials.

The establishment of the Roscrea Meat Company's factory brings a new industry to Roscrea, which up to the present has depended upon two main industries—the Roscrea Bacon Factory and Messrs. Read's Maltings.

The first of these, the Roscrea Bacon Factory, was established on the 1st of January, 1908, on co-operative lines, by prominent local business men, and, numbering 3,600 shareholders in North Tipperary, Offaly, Leix and Kilkenny, has since gone from success to success. The factory's products have been awarded the highest honours at the London Dairy Show.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Rural "Patterns" : Improvements Wanted : Bleaching : The Irish Horse.

"Patterns"

A country correspondent tells me that in many rural areas the old custom of holding "patterns" in the various parishes has been revived. On the day preceding the "pattern" the cemetery is cleaned and the graves are dressed. The gentry in the neighbourhood give generous supplies of cut flowers to the poor people who do not possess gardens. There is keen rivalry for the honour of having the best dressed grave at the "pattern." Every encouragement should be given to people in the provinces to keep God's Acre in good order. In some parts of the country our graveyards are sadly neglected, and they undoubtedly make a bad impression on tourists. However, wherever "patterns" are held the well-kept graves add to the charm of the countryside, and our visitors bring away the fragrant memory that the Irish never forget their loved ones who have crossed over.

A Family Affair

Those who know the objection felt by Irish cottagers to closing their doors during the hours of daylight must have felt some surprise if they passed along the lovely valley beyond Glencullen on any of the hot days of last week; for every door was shut. The reason, however, was not far to seek: in everyone of the hay-fields near those cottages the entire family was helping in the good work of saving the hay. The man of the house directed the operations, but "herself" worked just as hard. Little girls in sun bonnets lifted armfuls of the fragrant grass and shook it out; little boys laboured manfully with short wooden rakes or rode proudly upon a horse rake, tipping it at the critical moment, and keeping up a continuous stream of advice or disapproval, just as their father does when he follows a horse on any of those sloping fields. Babies lay in the shelter of the hedgerow, watched by the sheep dog, and old men and women lent a hand as well. In one field a smartly dressed young woman worked, too, and forgot for the time being the city situation to which she would return.

North Dublin's Disfigurements

Yet another correspondent wants me "to rub into the powers that be" what he describes as "the disfigurements which disgrace the north side of Dublin." Among other "eyesores" he mentions the "unkempt common in Beresford place, which destroys the effect of Gandon's noble masterpiece." Not long ago, he reminds me, the Board of Works spent a lot of money on concrete pathways, fencing and grass plots inside the old "chains" but, having spent the money, have apparently forgotten that such a place as the Custom House exists, with the result that the last state of its surroundings is worse than the first. Surely the cost of a few flower beds and of occasional efforts at tidying up can be faced to put the finishing touches to the surroundings of one of Dublin's most central and imposing public buildings. If only for the educational effect upon the minds of the hundreds of country deputations who pay Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly such frequent visits, the case for such outlays would seem to be unanswerable. A Minister who talks so eloquently about town-planning and architectural amenities should surely make it his business to tidy up his own front garden.

A Dangerous Obstruction

My friend, however, touches on a more formidable question when he asks me what has become of Mr. Laurie's scheme for demolishing the ugly old piles of Port and Dock's grain-stores which block the promised extension of Amiens street to the Custom House quay, and destroy the amenities and traffic facilities of the whole surrounding district. With next year's transfer of railway services from Broadstone to Amiens street, he points out, the Custom House area will become even a more important entrepôt between country and city than it is to-day. Instead of a dismal network of back streets the whole surroundings could be converted into a spacious and delightful approach for visitors, if only the Port and Docks Board and the Corporation could be induced to give up arguing as to out of which pocket Sean Citizen should invest the needful funds! My friend, of course, is right; and it may encourage him to know that financial economy, as well as civic ambition, is strongly on his side; for it is an open secret that the old grain store is not only a blot on the landscape, but—having been condemned as structurally unsound—is now a positive liability on Port and Docks Board revenues. Though defeated in his first effort by short-sighted differences of official opinion on "who should pay," I, therefore, hope that Mr. Laurie will very soon renew the attack, and—may I suggest?—let the public know what is happening!

Bleach Greens

A Southern visitor to Ulster, having passed through many places where huge lengths of linen are bleaching on smooth swards, feels more surprised than ever by the statement of the place-name expert who has pointed out that the word tuar, or toor, meaning a bleach green, does not appear at all in that province, though there are more than sixty townlands in Leinster, Munster and Connaught that are so-called. A much larger number have toor or tourin as part of their names, such as Toornageeha, the bleach green of the wind, and Tooreennagrena, the sunny little bleach green. Even the Leinster village of Ballitore owes its name to a bleach green, and to a ford of the river Greece; while Tintore, in Queen's County, was once Tigh-an-tuair, the house of the bleach green. One of the most pleasing of these names is found in Kerry, where Tooreennablauha speaks of the little bleach green of the flowers. The same expert reminds us that these bleach greens did not all resemble the huge places of the North: often they were small grass fields beside running water, where the wash was spread in the sun.

Judging Distances

Glancing through the pages of a small handbook issued for the guidance of that large and steadily increasing fraternity known as "hikers," I came upon a page devoted to the judging of distances. Most people use the term "a hundred yards" with only a very vague idea of how much it really stands for, and it is probably safe to assert that few could reply off-hand, if asked the question, that, at a distance of one hundred yards, though a person's form, face and colour of clothing is plainly discernible, the eyes have the appearance of dots. Colour is distinguishable up to a distance of five hundred yards, and at seven only a form is visible, the head of a person being indistinct. But these rules must surely apply to approximate distances, as human eyesight varies so much. It is also necessary to take into account the fact that, under varying conditions, distance is liable to be over- or under-estimated. Objects appear further away when looking across broken ground, or when the object is the same colour as its background, or again when one is lying or kneeling down. In the same way distances can easily be under-estimated when looking across water or snow, up or down hill, and when the air is exceptionally clear. I have also heard it remarked that colour becomes much clearer when the observer stands on his head, but this is as it may be.

The Irish Horse Magazine

As one might expect, the Irish Horse for August, the magazine edited by Colonel F. F. MacCabe, devotes most of its space to the Horse Show. A most interesting article written on the subject by Mr. T. F. Healy is worth the shilling alone, which is the price of the whole magazine.

In its Town and Country Notes the Irish Horse contains some useful advice about keeping mares at home. This comes at an opportune moment; for, with the possibility of war between Italy and Abyssinia, Army buyers will be on the path to take all available animals they can find. At no price, however tempting, must the Irishman sell his mares—the horses, of course—but remember that it is forbidden in the Koran to sell a mare to a stranger. Even the worst mares—granted the old Irish blood is in them—can breed foals. One of the horrors of 1915 in France was the foaling of Irish thoroughbred mares in the remount dépôts there. Public enemy No. 4 has been identified with the rat this month, but some notes on horse flies compensate for this uninteresting rodent having been given a place of honour like that when more important enemies are lying about. The illustrations are all very fine, and I am glad to see they number a picture of Miss Shelah Meyers—a great young Dublin horsewoman.

The Tourist We Want

The Maharajah of Patiala, on his way home to India from the Jubilee festival in London, halted for a couple of days in Paris. On the last morning, his Highness left the hotel to buy some souvenirs, and, on his return, asked the hotel proprietor to receive the articles. During the day there arrived:—Three motor cars, thirty dogs, two parrots, and sundry objects which filled twenty-seven bags and boxes. "Ah!" said the Maharajah (as I find him reported in the Continental Press), "if only I had time to spend two days more shopping in Paris!" The wits are asking whether he would have carried off the Eiffel Tower.

SPEAKER OF BAHAMAS HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY

PRIVATE VISIT TO IRELAND

The Hon. Harcourt Gladstone Malcolm, K.C., C.B.E., M.H.A., Speaker of the House of Assembly of the Bahamas, will arrive in Dublin this morning with Mrs. Malcolm. Mr. Malcolm has been attending the recent conference of the Parliamentary Association in London, and his visit to Ireland is private.

During the next few days Mr. and Mrs Malcolm will remain in Dublin, and then they will go to the South to see Killarney and other resorts, following which they will spend a short time in Belfast.

Mr. Malcolm, who has been Speaker of the Bahamas House of Assembly since 1914, was born in 1875. He is a son of the late Sir Ormond Malcolm, K.C., former Chief Justice of the Bahamas, and was called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1899. In 1920 and 1925 he went as a delegate to the conference between Canada and the West Indies in Ottawa, and in 1926 he was in London attending the West Indies Conference on behalf of his Government.

Before his appointment of Speaker of the House of Assembly, he occupied the position of Deputy-Speaker for thirteen years; he also was acting Attorney-General and Chief Justice for a time. Mr. Malcolm has published a number of legal and historical works relating to the Bahamas.

His bequests included £2,500 to the Southern Irish Loyalists' Association, and to Trinity College, Dublin, the picture of his late father, the Bishop of Meath, by Jones (former President of the Royal Irish Academy) to be hung in the College Hall.

Mr. William Betts-Jones, of 2 Bryansburn Gardens, Bangor, Co. Down, wine and spirit merchant, who died on March 8th last, left personal estate in Great Britain and Northern Ireland valued at £3,462.

The Rev. Samuel John Hamilton, B.A., of Killead, Muckamore, Co. Antrim, Presbyterian Minister, who died on March 15th last intestate, left personal estate of the value of £1,337 in Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

MUNICIPAL GOLF FOR DUBLIN

MOVEMENT REVIVED AFTER 13 YEARS

OBSTACLES TO FORMER EFFORTS

(BY J.P.R.)

THE members of the defunct Public Golf Course Committee, formed in 1924 for the purpose of providing public golf for the citizens of Dublin would have been delighted if they were alive to read yesterday morning that the Dublin Corporation unanimously had adopted a motion by Mr. J. Cahill requesting the City Manager to approach the Government with a view to obtaining a site for a municipal links in the Phœnix Park.

Thus, after thirteen years, the movement, to which the late Mr. John Lumsden, father of golf in the Free State, and founder of the Royal Dublin Golf Club, devoted his energies during the closing years of his life, has been given definite shape. It is to be hoped that those who are now behind the project will complete the edifice, the foundation stone of which was placed in position by Mr. Lumsden and built over by the Public Golf Committee.

In view of the decision of the Dublin Corporation, it is opportune to trace the history of this municipal or public golf movement in Dublin, the difficulties the promoters had to contend with, and which ultimately led to Mr. Lumsden dropping the project in despair, and which, likewise, through lack of public support, the Public Golf Committee had to abandon after working on it for four years.

THE DUBLIN CLUB

As every golfer in these parts is aware, a golf course of nine holes was laid out in 1885 by Mr. Lumsden on ground in the vicinity of the Magazine Fort, Phœnix Park. The founders named it the Dublin Club, having obtained the sanction of the Board of Public Works; but the ground in the hollows was so heavy in the wet season and the grass grew so luxuriantly that the club had to abandon the site and bring their hut to Sutton, whence it was transferred to Dollymount. There was never in this country a more enthusiastic golfer than Mr. Lumsden. His hobby was golf. His one desire was to see the game extend all over the country, and, in particular, to see the Irish artisan playing the game, facilities for which, even then, were provided for the workingman in all the industrial centres of Scotland.

It was not, however, until 1922 that Mr. Lumsden made the attempt, singlehanded, to arouse an interest in municipal golf in Dublin; but while the occupant of the Mayoral Chair and others whom he consulted were not actually opposed to his scheme, they gave no assistance whatever to the pioneer; for golf was then the rich man's game and his absolute preserve. Mr. Lumsden, however, lived many years ahead, as we can see from some of the correspondence which he passed on to me with the remark: "There you are, my boy; I am finished with it. I am getting too old. You are much younger, and I would like you to carry it on."

PROPHETIC WORDS

Writing to Sir Philip Hanson, Chairman of the Commissioners of Public Works, in December, 1922, Mr. Lumsden spoke like a prophet when he said: "I believe there is going to arise a big call from the people for municipal golf. The large cities of England and Scotland are actively favouring it, and Dublin, surely, with all our advantages, should rather be in the van than lagging behind. I sincerely hope we shall be able to get our Free State Government and the Corporation to take the matter up when you are able to clear the way for us. As in the case of the other sports—cricket, football, etc.—there will be no closing in of ground or monopolising of special spots; even our putting greens would be open, and would have to take their chance. Golf has, at last, spread to an astonishing extent, although it took nearly three years to plant it here. Our numerous and luxurious clubs meet the wants of the well-to-do, but they are too expensive for the workingman. The betterment of the people is what is now aimed at, and to bring the healthful and fascinating game in a cheap form within reach of the toiling hundreds. Municipal golf would undoubtedly be a good thing for Dublin. It would in no length of time pay the Corporation well and prove a splendid thing for the people, to say nothing of its use as something of a healing measure."

There you have the aims and objects of municipal golf presented in a nutshell by one of the most unselfish golfers who ever lived.

PUBLIC GOLF COMMITTEE

Two years later Mr. J. E. Healy, then Editor of the Irish Times, and President of the Dublin Newspapers' Golfing Society, at a meeting of the Society, proposed a motion setting out that the time had come for the inauguration of a public golf movement. We sent out invitations to leading citizens inviting them to meet and form a Public Golf Committee. Lord Glenavy was elected Chairman, and Sir James Percy, Mr. P. J. Lawrence and Senator Moran were appointed hon. treasurers. A general committee was formed of twenty-four of the leading citizens and golfers, with Mr. J. P. Rooney as hon. secretary.

We set to work at once. The then President of the Executive Council, Mr. Cosgrave, and the Minister for Finance, Mr. Blythe, were most sympathetic, as also were the officials of the Board of Works. Our plans worked splendidly for a year or so, but it was slow, tedious work, as we met with considerable opposition from those who were training their horses on a portion of the Fifteen Acres, which was required for the course. But the Government were equal to the emergency. Mr. Justice Wylie was appointed to act as mediator between the two parties. We walked the Fifteen Acres, and, of course, as sportsmen, were able to come to an agreement satisfactory to all concerned.

I invited John Henry Taylor, the old Open Champion, then the leading golf course constructor, to come to Dublin and inspect the site. He brought his partner, Mr. Hawtry, with him, and on the ground the two experts informed me that they would construct eighteen greens and fairways, with thirty-two fairway bunkers, for £1,000—for nothing, so to speak. They would bring over their own machinery and employ only local labour, to work under the supervision of their own expert foreman. That point should not be overlooked by our City Manager when the present proposal is being developed.

PROJECT COLLAPSES

So far, our communications with the Board of Works revealed nothing of the difficulties to come, so that it was a surprise, when we had everything in train, to receive a letter from the Board to the effect that we could have the site only on a lease at a rental of £150 per annum. We always realised that we were seeking a lease of Government property, and that the Government could not hand over public property to private individuals without providing for all possible future contingencies. We also were aware that we would have to recoup the Board for the loss of the grazing; but that £150 staggered us.

However, we decided that, even after the payment of £150 per annum, we could make a success of the course, and, after taking everything into consideration, we launched a public appeal for subscriptions. Unfortunately, a few members of the Committee, for reasons best known to themselves, wanted to provide workingmen learners with a course and clubhouse something like the Royal Mid-Surrey or Addington Palace, and the appeal was for £4,000.

Eighteen holes in the rough, with a large Army hut for a clubhouse, in which players could keep their belongings, would never do them; the municipal course should be a credit to Dublin. It never dawned on them that, as the green fees and subscriptions came in, the course and clubhouse could be developed and improved, and that in time we could have a Royal Mid-Surrey or Addington built up from revenue. Our appeal for financial assistance went unanswered—we did not receive a £10 note, and the project collapsed.

Perhaps the Dublin Corporation may succeed where we failed, by inducing the Govern-

Brighten Up Irish Cricket : E. Tobin's Athletic Prowess : Cycling Races : A Cork Golfer

By PAUL DENIS.

A Cricket Suggestion

HOW about a new idea for brightening up Irish cricket—a single wicket match if the original game finishes too early, as is frequently the case in representative and two-day club matches. After the Kent v. Gloucester match had finished early on the third day at Canterbury last week, C. S. Marriott, the Kent slow bowler, and Goddard, one of Gloucester's leading bowlers, had a contest of single wicket. Seven or eight of the county players fielded, and a bright touch was given by the sight of a policeman in full uniform, complete with white gloves, fielding long stop. The game provided fine entertainment for the spectators, and I must confess that if I was at College Park when a match had finished shortly after lunch, I would enjoy watching T. G. McVeagh or James MacDonald opposing a member of the M.C.C. or Gentlemen of Scotland at single wicket—but I doubt if a member of the Gardai could be persuaded to act as long stop.

New Athletic "Star"

I saw the new Garda athletic "star," E. Tobin, in action for the first time at Kilkenny on Sunday at the National Championships, and he certainly has remarkable possibilities in field events. As the 56lb. events are nowadays confined to Ireland, his performances here interested me far less than his distance with the discus, even though he did equal his own Irish record for the heavy-weight over the bar. To throw the discus, however, 143 feet 5 inches with hardly any of the technique so necessary for this highly specialised event shows that he would be capable of more than 160 feet with proper and careful coaching. H. Anderson, of Sweden, who did 169 feet at the A.A.A. Championships at White City, is no stronger physically than Tobin, but he does know the correct method of throwing the discus. In the shot Tobin is much more backward, as his 39 feet 2 inches proves, and here again coaching and hard practice ought to yield him a distance of as near to 50 feet as he is to 40 at present. Even though international athletics mean nothing to us at present, we may be able to return to them again, and it would seem to be a wiser policy to allow Tobin to concentrate on the discus and shot and leave the 56lb. events alone.

Interest in Cycling

Apparently country followers of athletics are more interested in cycling than in track or field events, and if there appeared to be a preponderance of races for the cyclists, the crowd certainly enjoyed themselves, judging by the applause and shouts of encouragement they received every time they went round. Perhaps it was the possibility of a spill which kept the interest so keen, for this sport of cycling is not child's play. The track at Kilkenny was too narrow and too steeply banked for comfort, and three times a man came to grief, bringing down several others who were behind him. The biggest thrill of the day, however, was provided by the expert, B. J. Donnelly. Riding with his brother, Nick, in the final of the tandem race, he took a bend too sharply and had to go up on the rough grass bank. With almost anyone else a nasty accident could not have been averted, but with perfect coolness Bertie Donnelly steered back on to the track, and he and his brother came in first.

W. M. O'Sullivan's Success

A friend of mine who was at Lytham and St. Anne's last week for the golf internationals, came back with glowing accounts of W. M. O'Sullivan's fine displays, and he says that the University College, Cork, man will take a lot of beating in the Irish open amateur at Portrush next month. He is one of the longest hitters in the game, and has greatly improved his short game this summer. That the selectors had faith in him was shown by his placing in the singles—number four—in only his second year of international golf. If he does become a champion at this game it will serve as some compensation for his ill-fortune at Rugby. Some years ago he gave promise of developing into an out-half of the highest promise, but injury after injury spoilt his chances of an Irish cap, and, although he did play in the final trial last winter, he was only a shadow of his real self.

New Tennis "Cap"

A. E. Fannin's selection on the Irish lawn tennis team to meet England is certainly an honour deserved; for he has worked really hard to reach his present position of one of the leading players here. He set out for a definite goal from the start, concentrating on hitting the ball correctly instead of worrying about whether he won or lost his matches. It was a policy that required courage; for progress was rather slow despite intensive practice, but he has succeeded, and he is now better equipped off the ground than any other Irish player. He has neglected his volleying, but he is improving in that respect, and the victories he has won in doubles events this summer should encourage him to come to the net more frequently in singles. If he is at his best at Scarborough, his English opponent will find him difficult to beat.

An Improving Tennis Player

Gaining plenty of match-play experience in country tournaments, H. F. Sloan, of Trinity, is now proving a very hard nut to crack in the big Dublin tournaments, and is certainly a most improved young player. I watched him defeat Colonel C. F. Scroope, the former Davis Cup player, in the singles at Bray yesterday, and I was impressed by his speed about the court and the steadiness which he seems to have acquired recently. He can hit the ball very hard, too, when he sees an opening. It is a pity, however, that his forehand drive carries such an exaggerated top-spin, as this shot does not pay in good-class tennis nowadays. Tennis is not the only game which Sloan plays well. He is better known at hockey, at which he seems fairly certain to represent his country in the course of the next few years. Only the consistent play of T. G. McVeagh at outside-left has prevented him from doing so before now.

CRUISE AROUND SOUTH AMERICA

THIRTY PORTS TO BE VISITED

Seventeen countries will be visited by the passengers of the P.S.N.C. liner Reina del Pacifico during a twenty-one thousand mile pleasure cruise from Liverpool round South America, commencing in January next. In two and a half months more than thirty ports, including many capital cities, will be visited.

After calls at French and Spanish ports and the Canary Islands, the liner will cruise down the East Coast of South America, and, before going through the Straits of Magellan, will put in at Port Stanley, the seat of the Governor of the Falkland Islands, the most southern British possession.

During the voyage along the West Coast a call will be made at Juan Fernandez, better known as Robinson Crusoe's island. After passing through the Panama Canal the ship will visit the Bahamas and Bermuda, where sea-gardens can be viewed through glass-bottomed boats and sun bathers may lie in fields of lilies.

EAST AFRICAN WEDDING

The wedding took place in Nakuru, British East Africa, on June 29th, between Mr. William Joseph (Paddy) Walshe and Miss Anne Merrick, mistress at Nakuru School, at the Church of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary. The Rev. Father Rogan said the Nuptial Mass and conferred the Papal Blessing, which had been obtained from the Vatican by the Rev. Father McElwee. After the reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes the bride and bridegroom left for Nairobi by car. It is their intention to visit Ireland for the honeymoon.

Mr. W. J. Walshe, the bridegroom, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walshe, of Curzon street, Dublin, and was educated at the Christian Brothers' School at Synge street, where, after passing the Intermediate examinations with honours, he left for East Africa to take up a position in 1931 in Nakuru.

PROGRESS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Prompted by the letter headed "Progress" in your issue of Monday last, in which the writer draws attention to telephonic facilities in our country, may I tell your readers of one bright spot?

A fairly numerous, if scattered, population—post office, hotel, national school, chapel, a resident priest, several fairly large houses, a service garage—only sixteen or so miles from the capital city, has neither telegraphic nor telephonic facilities available. We would have, in case of emergency or serious accident, to travel three to four miles to the nearest telephone office. Surely our plea for even a telephone kiosk in our village might receive consideration from the authorities.—Yours, etc.,

ment to forego that heavy annual rental and by waiving their insistence on the erection of an ornamental fence to keep out cattle; a fence through which the public could "see through and over." That fence, with a dozen small gates for the use of the public wishing to pass across the links, was to cost us then £700 odd, while a clubhouse would at present cost considerably more than we estimated.

But with the course under the management and absolute control of the Corporation for the use of the citizens, the Government could easily afford to waive the rental, and as for the fencing, nothing more substantial and ornamental is necessary than is required to enclose the cricket and polo grounds in the Park. Adjacent to the golf course we could have not only bowling, but other games played. For many years that portion of the Fifteen Acres has been wasted, so far as the citizens of Dublin are concerned.

Every day of the week that particular portion of the Park in which these amenities for the citizens could be provided is deserted by the public. How different it would be if we had a golf course, tennis courts, bowling greens, hockey grounds, hurling and football grounds and athletic grounds on that vast tract of land that has for longer than the oldest of us can remember been given over entirely to a few dozen head of wandering cattle and a few hundred head of deer!

STAMPS OF THE WEEK

RED CROSS ISSUES

The Mint Stamp Company, 74 Grafton street, Dublin, have favoured us with the following new stamps, recently received from overseas:—

COLOMBIA—1935. Red Cross stamp. Lithographed. Perf. 11½. 5c. scarlet and grey-green. (3d.)

COSTA RICA—1935. Red Cross stamp 10c. carmine. (2½d. each.)

GERMANY—1935. Musicians' issue. 6 pf green (Schutz), 12 pf. deep claret (Bach), 25 pf. ultramarine (Handel). (Set of three, 1s.)

ICELAND—1935. 10 aur blue. (Pictorial design.) (2½d. each.)

POLAND—1935. Marshal Pilsudski mourning stamps. 5 gr. and 15 gr. black. (Pair 3½d.)

WORLD'S SMALLEST 'PLANE

CROSSES CHANNEL IN FIFTY-TWO MINUTES

The "Flying Flea," the world's smallest aeroplane, piloted by M. Mignet, crossed the Channel from St. Inglevert to Lympne, Kent, in 52 minutes last night.

There was a fairly strong north-east wind; otherwise M. Mignet's crossing would have been quicker. As soon as he landed the pilot was congratulated by Captain Morkam, of the Air Ministry, but M. Mignet, deafened by the noise of the engine, could not understand. Putting his fingers to his ears he cried: "Oh, I cannot hear. It is the engine." Later he said to a reporter: "This is my second machine, and I have come to England for three weeks to show how simple the 'plane can really be. The trip was really quite uneventful, except that the engine made me very deaf."

The Customs' duty on the 'plane is just under £20. This tiny craft, which has only just enough room for the pilot, has a wing span of about 12 feet, a 20-h.p. two-stroke engine, and is only waist high. It carries 4½ gallons of petrol, and travels 40 miles to the gallon. Cruising at about 60 m.p.h., it costs no more to run than a light motor car.

The following appeared in last night's Court Circular:—Mr. Francis Mason, Court Postmaster, had the honour of being received by the King, when His Majesty invested him with the insignia of a member of the Royal Victorian Order (Fifth Class).

ON THE WIRELESS

Daily Programme Review

DUBLIN: Dublin Postal Band, with John West (vocalist), 7.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Military Band, 6.30.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Promenade Concert, Bach Programme, 8.

REGIONAL: Variety Programme from Radiolympia, 8.

WEST: Programme of Poetry and Song from Wales, 10.25.

BUDAPEST: Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, etc., 8.30.

TURIN: Opera, "Edgar" (Puccini), 8.40.

RADIOLYMPIA, London's radio exhibition, opens to-day for the tenth year in succession. In co-operation with the Radio Manufacturers' Association, the B.B.C. run thirty shows at the Radiolympia Theatre during the ten-day exhibition, when it is possible for radio fans to see their favourites in the flesh. For those less fortunate there will be the usual four broadcasts. The first occurs to-night, when the programme will be selected from a long list of popular broadcasters. The four relays will include everyone's favourite in turn.

Barbara Couper, who has become well-known as a radio actress, has now written a play for broadcasting. It is entitled "Pleasant Portion," which the authoress gets from the line from the prophet Jeremiah: "They have made my pleasant portion a desolate wilderness," the theme of which is reflected in the play. It is the story of a rather detestable mother, and how she re-acts on her two daughters. Perhaps we know her, perhaps we are her, perhaps it will do us good. We can imagine the acting and voice of Gladys Young as perfectly suited to the part of Mrs. Craike, the mother. "Pleasant Portion" will be broadcast to-night at 9 in the Regional programme and repeated in the National on Friday at 8. The play will be produced by the husband of the authoress, Howard Rose.

The Promenade Concert assumes a more serious aspect to-night with an imposing Bach programme. There is a long list of distinguished soloists whose services have been engaged for the various works to be performed, which include the "Brandenburg" Concerto, the pianoforte Concerto in D minor, and Cantata solos and duets.

One notices that another performance of Puccini's opera, "Edgar," is to be broadcast from the Italian stations. It was given last Saturday and will be repeated to-night. One of the composer's earliest works, "Edgar," was first performed at La Scala, Milan, in 1889, when it was a complete failure. This fact need not influence would-be listeners, for did not the first performance of Puccini's now popular "Madam Butterfly" also end in a complete fiasco. Prague and Vienna deem this work ("Edgar") worthy of relay from Turin to-night. It is an interesting Puccini opera, melodious and impressive at times, with a cast of only five persons. It is the story of a medieval love-drama in a Flanders village.

FUTURE OF THE GAS INDUSTRY

COAL TAX AND QUOTA

REDUCED DEMAND FOR TAR

HANDICAPS DISCUSSED AT MANAGERS' MEETING

ONE of the things that our Dublin Gas Company has not yet done is to take charge of a block of streets in the City of Dublin in order to show what can be done by way of public lighting, said the Lord Mayor of Dublin, extending a welcome to the City of Dublin to the members of the Irish Association of Gas Managers, who held their annual meeting at Jury's Hotel, College Green, Dublin, yesterday.

The Lord Mayor said that personally he thought that the future of gas in Dublin and Ireland was one of great hope for all interested in the industry. Notwithstanding all that had been done, there was still room for improvement, and he hoped that some day their own gas company would wake up and suggest to the Corporation that they be allowed for a period to take charge of the lighting of some of their streets. It might be a little expensive, but at the end of a few years, when competition became keener, they would discover that the outlay would be more than repaid.

"I don't want to be taken as creating undue competition for the E.S.B., but competition is good for all parties," said the Lord Mayor. "There is room for both. The E.S.B. is giving good employment, but no better than is given by the gas company in the City of Dublin and the other centres represented here. For that reason I think there is room for both."

On the motion of the Chairman, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Lord Mayor for his welcome and address.

DUTY ON COAL

In his presidential address, Mr. J. A. Rooney, M.Inst. of Gas Engineers, said that the bugbear of all members of their Association in the Free State was the subject of coals, which in the past two years they had to purchase virtually at the dictation of the Government.

Up to the commencement of this year, said the Chairman, we could buy coals from foreign countries at whatever price we could get them for, without paying any customs duty on them, but if we bought British we had a customs duty of 5s. per ton to pay on them. Now we must buy British and pay the customs duty of 5s. per ton, and, besides, we are restricted to a quota. In many cases this has been a trouble to the managers of works, as the quota allowed is almost below their requirements. Mr. Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, is quoted in the Irish Times of June 13, 1935, as saying in the Dail: "In answer to Mr. Counihan, that this tax of 5s. was mainly a revenue tax, it was also a protective tax and would help the consumption of turf and native coals, though that was not the primary reason for it. The transport and other industries where coal was an essential of the manufacturing process were getting their coal supplies free of duty. Nobody in this country need pay the tax, because there was native fuel available for household use."

"NO REDRESS"

Accusations have been made in the Press that the railways and the Electricity Supply Board are receiving their coal supplies free of duty, but the gas companies, who use coals wholly as raw material, can get no redress in this matter, although every effort has been made to get the Minister to reconsider his decision. Of course, we are fighting the E.S.B. with all our might and main, but we should not be the only party using large quantities of coals to be victimised.

In the purchase of coals one must be particular to buy the best. The same freight must be paid on small as on large coals, and with the handling it gets during transit it is often small enough when we get it. The richer the coal the smaller should be the charges; otherwise the tar distiller will get what you should have in your gas-holders. It behoves us in Ireland to be very careful in our selection, especially now that coals are so dear.

In small gasworks in Ireland, of course, we cannot do our own analysis of the coals, but why should we not buy on a reliable certificate not more than one year old? The certificates we get at present are often found to be very old and therefore useless. One of the best indexes to the proper temperature of distillation, is the quantity and the quality of the tar produced from a ton of coal. Would it not, therefore, be a good idea to form areas for buying coal on the co-operative plan? Better terms than we have at present certainly would be obtained and, possibly, cheaper freights. Of course, I am only throwing this hint out, and, perhaps, our committee might take this matter up and see if it is feasible. The amount of Customs duty which the Free State is drawing from coals is calculated at £600,000, to which gas companies have to contribute 12½ per cent., which is a gift to our competitors.

REPLACEMENT OF TAR

Tar has now become an absolute drug on the market as far as the smaller works are concerned. A few years ago very large quantities of tar were sold to County Council and municipal bodies for tarring roads; then came concrete and bitumistic mixtures for road-making, and that was the end of our virtual monopoly. To add to our discomfort in the Free State, the British and Northern Ireland Governments have put an import duty of one penny per gallon on all our tar imported, and prices are so low that they virtually only pay the cost of exportation.

There also seems to be a definite move on the part of various surveyors against coal tar for road dressing. Owing to the damp nature of our country and the proximity of the various rivers to the roads, if any fish are poisoned it is invariably blamed on dressing by road coal tar. Another thing which militates against us is that there is no tariff on Road Board tar coming into the country, so that if dumping takes place we cannot find an outlet for our supplies. This operates against many small gasworks going in for tar dehydration, for they have no guarantee of tenure for Road Board tar, the whole of the supplies taken by the Local Government Department being given under one contract. Consequently, if a firm outside Ireland gets that contract, we should be unable to supply any for that year unless we made under licence from that supplier. Here seems to be a chance for amalgamation of small works to erect a central tar works to use up their stocks of tar by co-operation.

The one drawback to this, in my estimation, is that the Government want only one supplier. But surely legislation could be brought about to see the fallacy of this and get sectional portions of the country allotted for contracts. Representations were made to the Ministry of Local Government, and there seems to be a ray of hope as far as getting Road Board tar used by county borough surveyors is concerned, for instructions have been issued by the secretary of the Board to use more gas tar in dressing the roads when the opportunity can be found to do so. Every gas manager must become a canvasser for tar for roads, whether he dehydrates his own or not.

PRESENT OUTLOOK

At the present there is little but uncertainty about the position of Ireland. If the general outlook was better we could decide more easily on a course which would lead to prosperity, but all we get now is uncertainty—uncertainty with rumours galore. That must not deter us from doing all we can to keep our end up. We must be prepared to attack our competitors from every angle, keeping all the lighting we can and giving every attention to complaints and advancing every point in favour, with truth behind each statement and individual attention wherever possible.

Unlike the British Parliament, who have done something for the gas profession, the home politicians are doing nothing for us, but everything in favour of their already heavily subsidised Electricity Supply Board. Every opportunity should be taken to bring this matter of want of fair play before the community. Of course, we are not all so fortunate as to possess a showroom, but we can put advertisements occasionally in our local papers and the B.C.G.A. will help us with good matter.

I would urge you not to scruple to acclaim the virtues of gas by judicious advertising and to get on the road to look for new business. No town is yet at saturation point if you will only go out to get this business, especially when almost every town has now some housing schemes on hand. Although our industry at the present time seems to be very hard hit, we must not lose heart, but go steadily forward, with the interest of our consumers at heart, which will redound to our credit; and, no doubt, your future presidents will have a more cheerful address to give you when occupying the position I now hold.

"SOLID MERIT"

No one can tell what the future has in store for us, but it seems safe to say that, despite the worst that our competitors can do, the gas industry will continue to prosper as long as we adapt our methods to suit the changing conditions. It is not enough to say that gas is a good article and can render good service. We have to convince the public of that fact, and take such action as lies within our control as will ensure that it is a fact. The degree of success which we achieve in the future will depend upon the manner in which we interpret the motto, "Sales and Service." We have long passed the stage where we sold gas: when our interest stopped short at the meter. Nowadays we have to go right into the home, the factory, or whatever it may be, and see to it that the customer is getting full value from the gas he buys. The gas industry, production-minded for many years has now to change its tactics and direct attention to the selling of its products—not only gas, but coke and tar. But there are signs that the industry is alert to that need, and in my opinion the future of gas will prove to be a triumph for solid merit against the rather hollow qualities on which our competitors are seeking public favour.

Mr. H. W. Salmon (Wexford) proposed a vote of thanks to the President for his address.

Seconding the motion, Colonel W. M. Carr, O.B.E., President of the Institution of Gas Engineers (England), said that Governments might interfere, as they had done in Great Britain as well as in this country, and might use a certain amount of discrimination, but he felt sure that in the course of time that which was best and most economic would prevail. In spite of what had been done in pushing electricity, gas, as the cheapest source of clean and conveniently usable heat, was bound to prevail. Even in America they saw enormous gas-holders adjoining great electricity works like those at Niagara, because gas-holders contained fundamental heat where electricity never could be. That fact was going to be appreciated in every country where coal was available.

The vote of thanks was carried unanimously, and Colonel Carr then presented Mr. Rooney with the President's Medal of the Institution.

Colonel Carr also presented Mr. Harold Harrison, of Belfast, with the Certificate in Gas Engineering of the Institution of Gas Engineers (Highest Grade).

ANNUAL REPORT

The annual report, read by the Honorary Secretary (Mr. George Airth, Dundalk), congratulated the members on the continued prosperity of the Association. The committee regretted to record the death of Mr. R. F. Byron, of Monaghan, who had been one of their oldest members and one of the pioneers of "Gas for Cooking."

Owing to legislation in the Free State, continued the report, your committee have had a busy time trying to get the Government to see our side of the question. The continued imposition of 5s. per ton on all coals imported is a very heavy burden, and no amount of correspondence seems to have any effect on the Ministry of Industry and Commerce. The quota system has hit us also, as the Government will only alter the amount they allow after continued efforts on behalf of each company which finds the amount too small for its requirements. Efforts are being made by a committee to have the coal tariff removed for gas works.

A deputation of the committee met the Minister for Industry and Commerce in regard to making a larger market for Road Board tar It was pointed out to him that in the last two years the amount of Road Board tar used had fallen by 4,700 tons—in other words, from 11,000 to 6,300 tons. The stocks of crude tar were increasing to such an extent that some gas works had little capacity left, and were in a dangerous position for more room, as they could not carry large stocks. The imposition of one penny per gallon put on by the Imperial Government and the Government of Northern Ireland made the sale of tar almost impossible. The average price for tar had fallen from 3.925 pence in 1930 to 1.084 pence in 1934, and was still falling. The Minister regretted that he was unable to sanction the inclusion of tar exports in the bounty arrangements of his Department. The committee then had a further interview with the Department of Local Government and Public Health, with much more favourable results.

AN UNDERTAKING

The Department undertook (though it was late for this season) to do all it could unofficially to encourage surveyors to give serious consideration to the more extended use of tar, but pointed out that the undertakings themselves should do their part, and to recognise that the Department's efforts will be, in the nature of things, supplemental.

The tar supplied would be subject to analysis by the State Laboratory. If the provincial gas undertakings made a serious effort to help themselves, they may be assured of the goodwill of the Department as far as practicable. They must, however, bear in mind that the Department, while willing to help them, cannot force the engineers of local authorities to use tar in preference to another road dressing, particularly in counties where the climatic conditions are not suitable.

On the 1st August the stocks of tar in the Free State were 1,130,000 gallons, and of road board tar 20,850 gallons.

The balance to credit in the treasurer's hands this year was £165 8s. 1d. as compared with £153 6s. 8d. in the preceding year.

The report was adopted unanimously on the motion of Mr. F. J. Edmonds (Waterford), seconded by Mr. George Walmsley (Derry).

Papers were read by Mr. P. C. Booth on the "Care and Maintenance of Gasholders," and by Mr. J. P. Morrison on the subject of "Gas Refrigeration."

STATE-AIDED ELECTRICITY

In the course of a paper entitled "What of the Future of Gas in Ireland," Mr. D. A. Pratt said that in 1914 there were, in this country, 110 gas undertakings, and to-day these were reduced to 73. The loss of 37 gas works, involving an annual output of over 140 million cubic feet, was surely serious enough to cause consternation among the remainder. It meant that the influence of gas had entirely passed out of 37 towns—a calamity which was bound to have an indirect reflection on the rest of the community.

The advent of State-aided electricity dealt the Irish gas industry a severe blow. Of the 73 existing concerns only 16 were municipally owned and 27 showed a gradual decrease, while others were just holding their own. The gas industry had reached a stage where he thought that the administrative forces might to some extent be pooled, and he suggested that a meeting might be called of directors and gas committee men, where the whole situation would be explained.

On the matter of price and service, he said that he realised that they could not get below a certain economic level, but prices, in many cases, were fixed too high and business was lost in consequence. It was useless making a sales push unless the price was such as to make it attractive. At the same time cheapness was not everything and they did not often enough bring home to the public the real value that they were offering. They should show the public what they could get for their money. Many small works, by sheer neglect, had given the impression that gas was out-of-date. Good efficient service to customers was essential.

VARIETY OF USES

It was surprising to what a large variety of uses gas could be put and there were endless opportunities offered in almost any town for the use of gas heating. In a number of cases raw coal, oil and electricity might, with advantage, be displaced.

There was no panacea for their troubles. They had to recognise that the world was changing, and must readjust their viewpoints and policies frequently, making sure that they were keeping up with the requirements of their customers. They must have faith in

THE HERRING INDUSTRY

BETTER SEASON IN THE NORTH

CONTROL COMMITTEE APPOINTED

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

THE herring shoals have made a welcome return to Northern Ireland waters. Last year the herring fishing industry received a severe blow; for the shoals seemed to have departed from their usual feeding grounds.

The total season's catch of herring at Ardglass, Kilkeel and Portavogie up to date is 3,065 crans, 3,022 mease, valued at £8,247. For the same period last year there were only 243 crans, 1,225 mease, landed, valued at £2,577.

A local committee has been appointed to control herring fishing in the North under the scheme for the development and assistance of the industry in the United Kingdom. The members of the Committee have been selected by the British Herring Board from a list supplied by the various local interests, and they will hold office for twelve months. The names of the members of the Committee are:

Fishermen's representatives — William Cousins, Kilkeel; Robert McMaster, Portavogie; William James Coffey, Portavogie.

Local Curers—Captain James McKie, J.P., Kilkeel and Ardglass; Arthur Tempest, Belfast Fish Market and Ardglass.

Fish Salesman—Richard Hughes, J.P., Ardglass.

Freshers and Kipperers—Thomas Keenan, manager of Messrs. S. Marley and Son, Belfast, Fish Market.

COMMITTEE'S POWERS

The Committee will have power to co-opt two representatives of visiting fishermen (English or Scottish traders who visit Northern ports), two representatives of visiting curers, and one of exporters of pickled herrings to the Continent. The Committee will exercise almost complete control of the herring trade, including the issue of licences to boat owners, salesmen and curers.

The British Herring Board has fixed already the following prices which apply to Northern Ireland:—A minimum of 15s. per cran for all herring, surplus left overnight on the quay 12s. 6d. a cran, spent herring 10s. a cran.

It is believed that the new scheme will be of advantage to the herring industry, and the Northern Ministry of Commerce has done all in its power to assist this small industry which gives useful employment during the season to a number of fishermen and small farmers along the County Down coast.

As is usual in all Government controlled schemes, there are some who feel that the Government's intervention is unnecessary and not calculated to help ultimately the development of the industry. One Belfast salesman declared: "We have been getting along fairly satisfactorily without Government control, provided the herring are available. I think Ulster could very well have been left out of this British scheme, which is designed to assist the Scottish and North of England fishermen. We can carry on very well along the lines we have always been working."

The general public feel that what is required is not an increase in herring prices, but a steady supply throughout the season, and quick distribution to householders, together with a publicity scheme to advocate: "Eat more herring."

RECEIVING ORDER AGAINST TRAINER

It was announced in the London Gazette last night that a receiving order was made under the Bankruptcy Acts on a creditor's petition last Thursday against Mr. Donald G. Snow, described as of The Manor, Ogbourne, St. Andrew, Wilts., and formerly of Barret's Farm, Eastbury, Lambourn, Berks.

Mr. Snow has won many races for Miss Dorothy Paget. At Folkestone on Monday Mr. Snow won three races, and at the meeting yesterday he had two successes. When Miss Paget's jumpers left Mr. Basil Briscoe's place at Newmarket in April they were sent temporarily to Mr. Snow's training establishment at Ogbourne. They included the Grand National winner, Golden Miller. Mr. Snow is the trainer of the two-year-old Bossover colt, by Blenheim, which has won three races this season and is favourite for next year's Derby.

Mr. Snow, who is a young man, married a cousin of Miss Dorothy Paget.

their business, and express that faith in action; they must render adequate efficient service at the lowest possible cost, and keep on reducing the cost as much as possible in order to retain business and customers' goodwill. They must study customers' needs and strive to meet these conditions. They needed to advertise in an intelligent, constructive and continuous manner, and by perseverance and by personal contact. No effort should be too big to preach the gospel of gas to the general public that they served.

Mr. Law (Limerick) suggested that some effort should be made to get the Government to come to the help of the small struggling gas concerns in the same way as the Industrial Credit Corporation helped other industries.

Mr. F. J. Edmunds (Waterford) said that no country in the world was able to sell electricity at ½d. a unit, which was the equivalent of 8s. 4d. a 1,000 c. ft. charged for gas.

Mr. Pemberton (Sligo), proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Pratt, said that he was glad that Mr. Pratt was pro-gas and not anti-electricity. Their propaganda should be pro-gas rather than anti-electricity or anti-anything else.

Mr. P. J. McEvoy (Midleton), seconding, said that the price for gas in towns was far too high. They should make the price competitive, and make it worth while for people to use gas.

GAS IN INDUSTRY

Colonel Carr said that he believed that the reason so many small concerns had gone out of business was because they had not had the right progressive man in control. Concerns that had not progressive directors had gone to the wall. The 140,000,000 cubic feet lost represented inefficient people in these gas undertakings. It must not be taken as a criterion of the effect of electricity production. They were, in his view, attaching too much importance to electrical competition.

Dublin, he said, was becoming a large industrial city, and he believed that the Dublin Gas Company would be sufficiently alive to appreciate the major use of gas in industry.

As an instance of what could be done, he said that he was selling 35,000,000 cubic feet of gas a year to a margarine factory and 50,000,000 cubic feet to an asbestos factory.

Dublin, with its furniture factories, its tin works and other industries, offered an enormous industrial field, and undoubtedly within the next two years over fifty per cent. of manufacturers' heat would be gas. That was the case in Manchester, over which he had control, and where he sold gas not only to ordinary industries, but also to electrical and steel works. Dublin, hoping to be a big industrial city, would have to take gas—it could not do without it.

There were many factors to be considered. Ireland had gone through a serious period of depression. They in England knew how much they themselves had suffered, and they knew that Ireland had suffered more. However, the country was now entering on a new field. The gas industry was only on the threshold of the great services it could render the State.

He hoped that none of them would take away the impression from Mr. Pratt's paper that gas was going under. Such was not the case—they were only just beginning to grow.

Mr. Pratt, replying, said that he did not wish to create the impression that gas was going under, but they should heed the fact that so many small concerns in Ireland had gone out of business.

The vote of thanks was passed.

Mr. P. J. McEvoy was elected President for the coming year, and Mr. J. A. Pemberton, Sligo, was elected Vice-President.

BELFAST UNION INCIDENT

THE SMASHING OF A DOOR

LETTERS FROM DOCTORS AND STUDENTS

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

THERE was a further discussion at the Belfast Board of Guardians to-day in reference to the smashing of a door in the doctors' quarters in the Workhouse, and the alleged breach of discipline by medical students.

The Guardians at the last meeting decided to discontinue housing medical students in the institution.

MEDICAL OFFICER'S LETTER

A letter was read from Dr. J. M. O'Kane at the meeting to-day, in which he stated: "With regard to the question of my responsibility for the maintenance of discipline among the resident medical officers, I would again most respectfully point out that there is no rule or regulation of your Board which causes to devolve on me such responsibility by mere accident of my being the Resident Medical Officer at present longest in your service. Further, I have never been informed that such was my duty, nor requested to assume such responsibility. I did understand that the Master was responsible for the discipline maintained in this institution.

"Such a duty, as apparently I have been expected to perform, would, to my mind, necessarily carry with it a special designation and extra remuneration. Without being appointed definitely by a resolution of your Board, and being recognised by a distinctive title, it is, and always will be, impossible to perform such a duty.

"I wish to protest strongly against that part of the resolution which states that you would have been prepared to dispense with my services but for the fact that my time is almost up. I regard this resolution as unjust, and I consider that the publicity which it has received has been very prejudicial to my character and good name. Since the time of my appointment as Resident Medical Officer I have carried out my duties in a faithful manner and to the best of my ability, and I would refer you to the visiting medical staff, either individually or collectively, for their opinion of the manner in which my work has been done."

OTHER LETTERS

A letter was also read from Dr. S. J. Allen, Resident Medical Officer, and Dr. Minford, Resident Medical Officer, denying that they had any part in the smashing of the door.

Mr. Leslie L. Ingram, a student, wrote reiterating that he knew nothing whatever about the damage done to the door in the doctor's sittingroom; that he was in bed asleep at the time mentioned, and that he did not know even of the existence of the damage until the Sunday afternoon.

He further desired to state that he had never been the cause of any trouble or inconvenience to the staff or the Board.

Mr. J. Paton, student, also wrote stating that he had nothing to do, directly or indirectly, with the breaking of the door, and that he had not been in or near the room during the night in question.

Other letters of denial and protest were read from Mr. W. H. Hood and Mr. David Gray, students.

CRITICISM TOO SEVERE

Mr. Thomas Gibb, J.P., moved that the letters be noted by the Board, and Mr. McGookin seconded.

Mr. J. Campbell said that last week he had stated that the criticism of Dr. O'Kane was too severe, and on hearing those letters he was convinced that it had been. It was unfair that Dr. O'Kane should be singled out. The people who smashed the door should come forward and admit their guilt. They were allowing the whole medical staff and the pupils attending the institution to be pilloried.

Mr. W. A. Cochrane, J.P., said they wanted the guilty persons to come forward and apologise and pay for the damage. This would clear the other medical officers. Dr. O'Kane was held in high esteem by the members of the Board.

Mr. G. Harte said they were making a mountain out of a molehill. There was no culprit among the medical men. The whole thing was not worth talking about.

A NEW APPOINTMENT

Mr. R. Clements Lyttle said he had never heard a better case put forward for the appointment of a Resident Medical Superintendent than that put forward by Dr. O'Kane, who was a victim of circumstances, and had the sympathy of most of the members.

Miss McCready said it seemed that Dr. O'Kane was the one officer who had been highly spoken of

It was pointed out that the Ministry of Home Affairs would see the correspondence in the minutes.

This ended the discussion.

STAFF TO BE INCREASED

CLARE HEALTH BOARD'S DECISION

From Our Correspondent.

ENNIS, Tuesday.

When reporting to the Clare Board of Health the resignation of Mr. Hugh Hehir, clerical officer, Mr. J. Quin (Secretary) said that he had been in the local service for the past sixteen years, and during that time had rendered efficient and faithful service. While regretting his resignation it was pleasant to know that he had been reinstated to the Government office from which he had been removed nineteen years ago by the British Government for his activities in the national cause, and his refusal to cease such activities.

Owing to Mr. Hehir's resignation it would now be necessary to appoint an accountant. It would also be necessary to make other new appointments owing to the work of the office having increased by fifty per cent. as a result of the many new Government schemes now in operation. No provision was made for carrying out the clerical duties attached to this increased work.

It was now his duty to tell the Board that there was no reasonable explanation for continued indifference to the interest of the office so far as the clerical work was concerned. He also recommended revision of the duties of the existing staff, the appointment of a shorthand-typist and the employment of temporary clerical assistance from time to time. During the past thirteen years he had had to act as secretary, chief executive officer, clerk, and accountant. He wished to impress on the Board that he would not be responsible for the work of the office unless provided with the extra staff required for the proper discharge of the duties.

The Board adopted unanimously the Secretary's recommendations, and directed that an accountant be appointed by competitive examination (initial salary £200, with annual increments of £5 to a maximum of £250), also a shorthan-typist at 30s. a week, candidates for both positions to be natives of Clare. It was further decided that the present typist be granted an increase of £15 per year in her salary, bringing it to £140 per year, in view of the extra duties to be imposed on her.

MAN DROWNED IN YACHT RACE

SWEPT AWAY BY THE TIDE

While competing in a race for yachts of over forty feet at the Royal Albert Yacht Club Regatta at Southsea yesterday, Lady Anne, belonging to Colonel V. Gabriel, lost a man overboard.

She signalled to the Committee boat and searched for a considerable time, as did H.M.S. Saltburn and two smaller vessels. The man was swept away by the tide.

BELFAST RIOTS AFTERMATH

QUESTION OF RELIEF FOR FAMILIES

"UNTIL MEN ARE TRIED"

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

THE Belfast Board of Guardians to-day considered again the question of granting relief to the families of men arrested in connection with the recent disturbances in the city.

Mr. W. A. Cochrane, J.P., referred to cases where the husbands had been sent to jail. The rule, he said, was to send them to the Workhouse, but this should be changed. There were cases where seven or eight children were in one family.

Mr. J. E. Hall, J.P., said that there were worse cases, cases where the men were on remand and relief had been refused. He thought help should be given in each case until the trial was over.

Mr. W. M. Wilton said that a fortnight ago they had had a discussion on that matter. There were two cases he knew of where the husbands had been remanded in custody. Their wives went to the relief officers and were told that they could not get assistance until their husbands were tried. They could only offer them indoor relief when the husbands had been sentenced. The Ministry of Home Affairs, he contended, should be asked to amend the Act. To bring those people into the house cost more than to relieve them outside. These were not ordinary cases.

CHEAPER

Mr. Cochrane said that he did not agree with the political side. If the Act needed amendment let them go to the Ministry to have it done. It was cheaper to assist cases of the kind outside than to bring them inside.

Mr. R. Ardis, J.P., said that would be a very dangerous course.

Mr. Hall said that they should see to the wives and children until the men arrested were tried.

Mr. McGookin said that on the Outdoor Relief Committee they were in the unfortunate position of having three cases where the husbands were in prison and their wives were refused outdoor relief. He thought that they should make an approach to the Ministry and ask that something should be done for these people.

Mr. Anderson said that they should make a clear distinction between people arrested and people sentenced.

Mr. Wilton moved that a deputation consisting of the Chairman, the two Vice-Chairmen of the Board, and the Chairman of the Finance Committee, approach the Ministry of Home Affairs to plead for the wives and families of these men who had been arrested in connection with the recent riots.

Mr. McGookin seconded.

WRONG

Miss McCready, who presided, said that they had machinery for the law-abiding citizens, and that was what they had to administer.

Mr. Wilson said that they wanted it more elastic.

Mr. John Campbell said that there had been very inflammatory articles and speeches in the Press, and the people had been urged on—people on the one side and the other. There was no use trying to apportion blame; the whole thing was wrong.

Mr. Ardis moved as an amendment that the Board give sympathetic treatment to the wives and children of any man under remand, and until they were tried.

Mr. Kelso seconded.

On a vote the amendment was carried by 19 votes to 4, and this was next carried as the substantive motion.

"SUPPORTED ON RAFTS"

HOUSING INQUIRY ALLEGATIONS

TOWN SURVEYOR'S EVIDENCE

From Our Correspondent.

CASTLEBAR, Tuesday.

A PUBLIC inquiry was held in Castlebar to-day by Mr. T. C. Courtney, chief engineering inspector to the Ministry for Local Government, into the circumstances which led to the present condition of a scheme of 80 houses which was being carried out by the Urban Council.

Evidence was given by Mr. McDonogh, town surveyor, the architect for the scheme, who is under suspension by the Minister.

The Town Clerk gave evidence that the figure was £24,489, out of which £22,000 had been paid.

The Town Surveyor denied responsibility for the plans and specifications, and said that he accepted and worked on these as supplied by the Local Government Department. He was also originally opposed to the site, but when pressed by an inspector he accepted it. Some of the sites were so boggy and waterlogged that the houses were supported on rafts. After the houses were built a sewerage scheme developed, a deep trench being blasted at the back, close to the houses, which showed subsidence and cracks, and in some cases had sunk eight inches. In his opinion, the only course for them was to take them down and reconstruct them.

To the Inspector, he said that from the commencement of the scheme he pointed out the defects of the site, and an inspector forced him to accept it.

The Inspector quoted from a report he made to the Council strongly recommending acceptance of the site; also the compulsory acquisition of the sites on the opposite side of the road, remarking that the evidence of the witness was very inconsistent.

The witness admitted that he did not report the defects he anticipated in the site to the Council.

The Inspector—You concealed them deliberately?

The witness repeated that he did not report the defects in the houses when they occurred.

The Inspector asked him to produce his diary showing the dates on which he visited the houses.

It transpired that in a year he paid thirteen visits and was paid £586.

Mr. M. J. Buckley, late member of the Housing Board, also cross-examined witness as to the unsuitability of the site, and he said that originally he agreed with Mr. Buckley that it was not a suitable site.

Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney, K.C., for the contractors (Messrs. John Molloy and Sons, Ballina), also cross-examined witness as to the workmanship of the houses.

The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

'PLANE DIVE MYSTERY

From Reuter's Correspondent.

PARIS, Tuesday.

Tugs are searching the estuary of the Loire, following a report by a Saint Nazaire fisherman that he saw an aeroplane suddenly plunge into the water, drift for a short distance, and then sink. So far no trace of it has been found, but a high sea is running. There are rumours that it might be the machine of the well-known airman, M. Marchesseau, who left the aerodrome of La Turballe at noon with the daily cargo of fresh sardines for Paris.

Dr. Lewis Mizzi, C.M.G., for forty-five years a leading lawyer in Constantinople, where he was owner of the Levant Herald and the Eastern Express, has died at Malta at the age of 88 years.

THE MILITARY TATTOO

PAGEANT OF IRISH HISTORY

CAST OF 2,500 PERFORMERS

FOR the Military Tattoo, 1935, which opens at the grounds of the Royal Dublin Society, Ballsbridge, next month, all preliminary preparations are now nearly complete.

Rehearsals among the troops of the Dublin and Curragh Garrisons have reached an advanced stage. The engineers are busily engaged in constructing the scenic effects, which are on a more elaborate scale than at former tattoos. Arrangements have been completed with the railway companies and the Dublin United Tramways Company for special train, omnibus and tram services, and advance booking offices have been opened at Messrs. Clery's, O'Connell street, and Brown Thomas, Grafton street, Dublin.

One of the most spectacular items in the programme will be the opening pageant of history, described as "The Armies of Eire," which will consist of a complete pageant of Irish military history extending over 2,000 years. Considerable attention has been devoted to this pageant to ensure historical accuracy in regard to costumes, arms, equipment and banners, and general settings.

Another impressive item will be introduced, in which all these groups representative of the armys of the past will join with the army of to-day in a ceremonial parade. In this hosting each group will perform its particular evolutions and arms-movements in its own characteristic fashion.

FULL DRESS UNIFORMS

That Army bands have to perform in public in the ordinary service uniform of the regular army has been a subject of some criticism. Full dress uniforms have now being sanctioned for the personnel of the Army Bands, and these will be seen on parade for the first time at the coming tattoo. The opening parade of the massed bands is, therefore, likely to provide a colourful spectacle.

Parents generally, and educationalists particularly, will look forward with much interest to the massed display of the Sokol system of physical culture, which is a complete innovation. This system is suitable equally for children, civilians and soldiers, and now that it has been adopted in the army it is hoped gradually to extend and develop it until, with the modifications imposed by the characteristics of the Irish people, it becomes the national system of physical training.

The display of modern battle drill, as adapted to the parade ground, by a regular infantry battalion, should provide an interesting example of how smartness on parade can be combined with efficiency in action.

HISTORICAL PAGEANT

Although naturally the work of the modern Army, including the new Volunteer Force, will be featured on the programme, the great exploits of the past will not be overlooked. The historical pageants will include a representation of Sarsfield's famous cavalary raid at Ballyneety in 1690, when he rode out of the beleaguered City of Limerick with a selected detachment, surprised the Williamite siege train, and destroyed it, thereby saving the city. The greatest care has been taken to ensure accuracy combined with dramatic effect in the portrayal of this episode.

The second main historical item will centre round the Irish insurrection of 1916, in the course of which the occupation, defence and destruction of the old General Post Office, Dublin—the seat of the Provisional Government of the Irish Republic and the General Headquarters of its troops—will be re-enacted. An accurate replica of the old G.P.O. is being specially constructed by the Corps of Engineers for this episode.

The programme will reach a moving climax in the grand finale, in which the entire cast of 2,500 performers will participate. This final item is described as the "Rally of the Nation," and will depict the soldiers of all the ages rallying to the call of the Motherland when danger threatens. The groups represented will include the warriors of the ancient Gael—the Red Branch Knights of Ulster, the Fianna Eireann, the soldiers of Clontarf, the Armies of the Anglo-Norman Wars—Art MacMurrough and his Leinster Clansmen, the Northern Princes and their Bonnaughts and Gallowglasses, Eoghan Ruadh and the Soldiers of the Confederacy, Sarsfield and his Dragoons; then the secret armies of later days, the pike men of '98, the Fenians and the I.R.A. of 1916-21; and finally the troops of the modern Army, Regular, Reserve and Volunteer, horse, foot and artillery. The combination of ancient costumes, old time and modern uniforms and massed bands, searchlights and other effects in this concluding item should leave a lasting impression.

LEVY ON CATTLE AND SHEEP

CLARE BUTCHERS' PROTEST

DELEGATES TO DUBLIN CONFERENCE

From Our Correspondent.

ENNIS, Tuesday.

AT a meeting of Clare butchers, which was held at Ennis last evening, protests were voiced against the levy of £1 on cattle and 5s. on sheep imposed on butchers under the Slaughter of Cattle and Sheep Act.

Mr. W. Minogue (Killaloe) said that if the conditions under which the butchers were labouring continued much longer the butchers would be forced to take drastic action. If the butchers were only loyal to themselves he saw nothing to prevent them packing up their levy books and dumping them into the Department of Agriculture. Clare butchers would not be slaves to any Government. It was quite obvious that if the levy was not taken off the butchers would be driven out of business.

Mr. M. O'Loughlin (Ennistymon) said that he was in favour of refusing to work the Government scheme and closing down that side of the butchers' activities.

OPPRESSIVE

The Chairman (Mr. M. F. Malone) said that anyone familiar with the butchering trade in the country must admit that the many restrictions on the trade were oppressive.

Mr. Minogue said that a conference of butchers representative of the butchering trade in the Free State would be held in Dublin within the next fortnight or so.

Mr. O'Loughlin said that the Dublin butchers favoured a free meat scheme because they got paid a shilling and more per lb. for choice cuts—sirloin or roast beef—whereas the country butcher only got sixpence. Apart from that, the country butcher had also cut-throat competition to contend with.

The Chairman said that if the ball did not roll favourably at the conference for the country butchers, then they should walk out, strengthen their county organisations, and rely on themselves to fight the issue.

Messrs. W. Minogue, Michael Keating (Kilrush), Michael O'Loughlin, and the Chairman were appointed as delegates to the Dublin conference.

KILDARE HUNT PUPPY SHOW

Yesterday afternoon the annual Puppy Show of the Kildare Hunt was held at The Kennels, Naas, before a large attendance of hunt followers from Kildare and neighbouring packs. A number of Masters of leading Hunts were among those present. After the judging visitors were entertained to tea by the Kildare Hunt Club's Management Committee. MR. W. J. HERON'S AUCTION

Mr. W. J. Heron, P.C., sold by public auction yesterday a lot of house property in Main street, Rathfarnham, to Mr. John S. O'Connor, solicitor, in trust, for £800. Mr. Francis Clinch, solicitor, had carriage of sale.

Can you Save enough -

★ TO PROVIDE AN INCOME WHEN YOU RETIRE

● TO PROVIDE AN INCOME FOR YOUR DEPENDANTS SHOULD YOU DIE

Even if you can answer the first part of the question in the affirmative, you cannot the second—because you do not know how many years are left for saving.

The problem can be solved by a PRUDENTIAL "HERITAGE ENDOWMENT" POLICY which ★ Gives you the choice at age 60 of an income for life or a cash payment, and

● Should you die before reaching that age, provides an income for your dependants at a time when it would be most needed, AND a large sum in cash when the income ceases.

You cannot afford to leave the question unanswered.

The Lesson of a Week

Events which took place in Ireland and in Wales last week invite comparison and contrast. While the crême de la crême of Irish society was judging horses at Ballsbridge, the bards of Cambria were reciting their poems to an admiring multitude at Caernarvon, and the Archbishop of Wales was asking, "Where is Segontium to-day?" The Welsh National Eisteddfod was, as usual, a triumph. Cymric enthusiasm ran high, and the Archbishop's vaunt over the fallen power of Rome, the survival of the threatened Celt, was appropriate. It was within "the green lawns and grey walls of Caernarvon Castle on a sunny day" that the white-robed bards appeared, with spiritual and temporal notabilities in the audience. Scholars and musicians of the first rank were among the judges, and Dame Sybil Thorndike was this year's distinguished guest, invited to address the Welsh people. Choirs and processions added to the interest of the week. In fine, here was a hosting that deserved the name of national, inasmuch as it drew on every part of society, offended none, and was applauded by all. Even the fabric of the setting belonged to ancient days and signalised the antiquity of the Welsh tradition. Every year we are tempted, by such accounts of the Eisteddfod, to envy our neighbours of the Principality. Where is there an Irish event which pleases a unanimous nation in like manner? Doubtless, the Dublin Horse Show offers the nearest approach that we have to a microcosm of our country, but hitherto a minority has continued to abuse it as—of all things—a "Unionist" institution, and has grudged it an unrestrained enthusiasm.

This year, thanks to the splendid victory of the Irish horsemen in the contest for the Aga Khan Cup, the Horse Show stirred the people of all Ireland—drew all of us together in a moment of national delight. On all hands, that victory has been the proud topic of a week, and we think that the Show has taken a new rank in the national affection. May that new rank be lasting, may last week's triumph lead on to other gains! At all times the Horse Show has been an admirable social gathering, but the imagination can conceive a summer festival of even wider scope, in which all the interests of our people, mental as well as economic, artistic as well as social, could be represented, as in the festival of the Cymry. That Ireland is a nation, poets and politicians have affirmed. Yet many who are most emphatic in the claim belie it by the splitting of our life into mutually exclusive sections. Men who proclaim their pride in Ireland hurry to form groups and excommunicate all Irishmen who are not moved to join them. There are activities which do not deny themselves national rank by this self-imposed narrowness, and yet are denied it by their neighbours, through the grudging habit of mind which rules. Years ago, before it became a semi-political organisation, the Gaelic League organised an annual oireachtas which correspond with the Eisteddfod. Pageants of history, poetic recitals, musical feasts which included even a Gaelic opera by Dr. Robert O'Dwyer, made of the oireachtas a fascinating and stirring event, which won praise from visitors from remote lands. That ceased. For reasons which seemed good to it, the Gaelic League narrowed its appeal, and so ceased to be national by becoming over-national. The Feis Ceoil, a wholly admirable institution, continues to cultivate Irish music; yet it does not draw upon, nor is it offered, apparently, the musical energies of other bodies. Its festival attracts its own clients, and is held at a special season.

Patriots who find field for their zeal in athletics have no dealings with the cultivators of music, or of letters, or of studies. They maintain their own league, and are ruthless in their ostracism of those fellow-Irishmen who are moved to cheer for Ireland on the Rugby field. In letters we have two academies awarding medals to their own members and brickbats to their rivals. All these sections may advance political nationality—or may not—but we suggest that true nationality would be expressed better with less polemics. Suppose that all our societies should cast down their barriers and co-operate with their fellows; that, at the show-grounds of Ballsbridge, where the breath of rural Ireland is sweet, the Gaelic pageants and poetry, Anglo-Irish literary achievement, the music of the Feis Ceoil, and the athletes of all groups, should meet to offer their several contributions—would we not have something to show as fine in the world's eyes as the festival of unanimity seen last week at Caernarvon? Our complaint is not against the forming of societies to satisfy varied tastes and to pursue varied purposes; it is against the arrogating of a peculiar national status by any one of them, and the notion that a good Irishman is he who has no use for Irishmen of different bent. "Be Irish in our way, or you are not Irish at all"—that is the note which we hear on all hands, but in different accents. On the whole, we think that the Horse Show comes nearest to the Eisteddfod's standard of liberal appeal; for it asks no special and restricted baptism of its supporters. It welcomes all who care for rural things, and leaves them to make what they will of the occasion of their meeting. Spontaneity is nationality; bans are its death.

Problems of Population

Twenty years ago emigration had drained so much of the blood from Ireland as to endanger the country's future. Simultaneously Great Britain was beginning to feel uneasy as a result of the opposite tendency, which had given a population of about forty millions to a nation which was comfortably full when it possessed half that number. Who would have imagined that the positions would have been reversed by 1935—that the Free State would be considering, with some alarm, the question of providing enough work to keep pace with her growing numbers, and that Great Britain would be wondering what steps to take in view of the coming fall in her population? Yet the paradox has been achieved, and its results may be far more significant in Great Britain than they are here, if only because they will be on a larger scale. For more than a hundred years her numbers have grown steadily, but it is calculated that they will reach their highest point next year or shortly afterwards, and that from that time onwards there will be an equally steady fall. By 1940 her numbers should have declined by five millions, by 1976 her total population may be no more than thirty-three millions. It is true that these calculations, like all other calculations, may be disproved by the event, but the science of statistics has been brought to a fairly high level, and similar forecasts in other years have proved to be remarkably accurate. Assuming, then, that these prophecies can be relied upon, what is their meaning likely to be? So far as internal affairs are concerned, a fall in population will mean a larger percentage of older people and a smaller percentage of children, with the result that the whole system of education, and the present provisions for it, may have to be revised. It is bound, however, to affect the country in a number of other ways, and here the issues will be more complicated. Until the new tendency asserts itself it will be hard to judge what its results may be, though it is a pity that Sir Josiah Stamp's appeal for an immediate census—in order to find out exactly how affairs stand at the moment—was not given more attention. Other problems will be raised also, and the most pressing of these will come from the consideration that Great Britain has an enormous and under-populated Empire, while such countries as Japan, Italy and Germany are looking for new lands on which to place their surplus millions. An improvement in economic conditions, a change in the incidence of taxation, or a more active encouragement of emigration might avert the more obvious dangers of a fall in numbers—and might even prevent the fall, if prevention were thought necessary. The new tendency, at all events, is significant enough to call for a thorough survey.

Contentment

In most countries nowadays there are public bodies, as well as private individuals who consider it their duty to ensure that happiness and contentment shall be the lot of the general community. Fired with the zeal, almost, of a Crusader, and possessed of all the pugnacity and invulnerability of an alligator, they spend long, and, to them, delightful, hours arranging for the pleasures of others. At their behest the most up-to-date facilities for sport, recreation, amusement and rest are provided for young and old; and, if sometimes they venture to prescribe—and proscribe—codes of conduct for their fellows, they have at hand the good and sufficient excuse that progress always demands its victims. These custodians of the national welfare are not, as we have indicated, peculiar to any one country; but in America at the moment we think that they would do well to ponder on the alarming case which has just come to light of a man who apparently achieved supreme and absolute content, though bereft of their ministrations. Somewhere about the end of the War Mr. "Joe" Douglas, a negro citizen of Belleville, Illinois, was sentenced to a period in prison for manslaughter. With time off for good behaviour, he ought to have been out in three years or so; but so well did he behave himself that everyone forgot about him. Incidentally, it would seem that Joe himself did not pay much attention to the passage of time; for, when the other day an official discovered that he was still in prison, Joe passed over the matter lightly. "It wasn't my job to watch the calendar," he said, adding as an afterthought that he had been thrown off trains and out of much better places than prison without saying a word. Thus, to our mind, spoke a contented man, a man who now, we fear, must fall a prey to all the little naggings and worries that beset enlightened citizens in the Middle West. Henceforth on Sunday afternoons, when great drowsiness descends upon mankind, his lagging feet must join the throng that custom decides must parade its finery for all to see; and, if he is married, he must, before the Sabbath day ends, make the trip that duty demands, and call upon his mother-and-father-in-law. Stiff collars, tight boots and lavender gloves will be his to own and to wear, while within his bemused thoughts flicker to and fro memories of twenty-one years of freedom.

A Town's Example

We cannot withhold our admiration from the citizens of Roscrea, Co. Tipperary, who have set an excellent example to the Free State. Some time ago the Government announced that a meat-meal factory would be established—somewhere. Roscrea resolved that it, and nowhere else, would be the location of the factory, which was calculated to furnish employment for a hundred men, and to pay them £21,000 per annum in wages. The German experts who came to Roscrea found no buildings that would serve their purpose, but they were not permitted to leave without a promise to return if their quest for buildings in other parts of the Free State should be similarly fruitless. In return, the people of Roscrea pledged their help in the procuring of a site. The experts kept their promise, and the people of Roscrea more than kept theirs. In the first place, they subscribed a sum of £600 in small amounts for the acquisition of a site. In the second place, eighty workmen, employed and unemployed, gave their services voluntarily, for nearly a month, in order that the site might be cleared, and a road, three hundred yards long, built to it. Everybody helped; the monks of the Cistercian monastery lent their steam-roller, and those of the townspeople who were not actually working provided the workers with meals and packets of cigarettes. The factory had its official opening yesterday, and the citizens celebrated a general holiday in recognition of an event to which their own labours have contributed so signally. It is seldom, indeed, that an Irish town has summoned up so remarkable a manifestation of civic spirit. We retain an open mind concerning the value of President de Valera's industrial policy; but can anybody deny that an industry whose establishment has evoked such enthusiasm starts under the best possible omens? If the new factory brings abundant prosperity to the town of Roscrea, it will be no more than the town deserves.

DANISH FARMERS' PLIGHT

GOVERNMENT ASKED TO HELP

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

COPENHAGEN, Tuesday.

The Danish farmers are threatening to bring strong measures to bear upon the Government unless it can give them assistance to counter the disastrous fall in the price of agricultural products.

The farmers have fixed a time limit, which expires on Thursday, for the Government to announce how it proposes to relieve distress, but have not yet given any definite decision as to what they will do after its expiry.

Last month, when they made a mass march to the Royal Palace, they threatened to curtail bacon production, and now it is suggested they should stop all milk deliveries.

This drastic measure is suggested in a statement made to a Danish newspaper today by the chairman of one of the agricultural unions, who says: "If the Government do not stop the forced sale of farmhouses immediately the farmers will decide on Thursday what further steps to take. To begin with, I think all deliveries of milk will be stopped and the milk used to feed stock."

NAVAL PORT DEFENCE TESTED

SEARCHLIGHTS AND BLACK-OUT

A test of aerial defence in realistic surroundings was carried out in the Portsmouth area last night by units of the Territorial Army.

Portsmouth was the main object of a raid by No. 10 Bombing Squadron, Royal Air Force, stationed at Amesbury, Wiltshire.

Fifty searchlights were operated from points around Portsmouth, and on the Isle of Wight, at Cowes, Ryde and Sandown. Only a few anti-aircraft gun positions were manned, and there was no firing. The main objective of the raid was detection by searchlights and accurate ranging by the gunners.

It was arranged that Portsmouth should be in darkness between one and three a.m., and residents were asked to co-operate with the authorities in seeing that lights were extinguished.

Messages came in frequently to Government House, Portsmouth, during the night, indicating the progress of the raid.

'Planes signalled by Verey lights that bombs had been dropped near Southsea Castle, and over Gosport, Southampton and Eastney, and the information was sent to London, so that measures could be taken to get defensive fighters into the air.

Military headquarters at Portsmouth received a message that at 10.15 a single invader had succeeded in dropping a bomb over the dockyard, and also one over the Guildhall, without being detected by the searchlights.

At 10.30 it was notified that there was a belt of mist cutting off the searchlights at 8,000 feet, and 'planes could not be detected beyond that height.

FAMOUS V.C. RETIRES

IS 67 TO-DAY

The London Gazette of December 2, 1898, announced: "The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the under-mentioned officer, whose claim has been submitted for Her Majesty's approval for his conspicuous bravery during the outbreak at Candia on September 6, 1898, as recorded against his name."

The Gazette yesterday announced: "The undermentioned, having attained the age limit of liability to recall, ceases to belong to the Reserve of Officers (General List)." Both notices referred to Major-General Sir Nevill M. Smyth, V.C., late Colonel, 3rd/6th Dragoon Guards.

It was in the Battle of Khartoum that Sir Nevill—then Captain Smyth, 2nd Dragoon Guards—"galloped forward and attacked an Arab who had run amok among some camp followers. Captain Smyth received the Arab's charge and killed him, being wounded with a spear in so doing." He served in South Africa, and in the Great War commanded the 1st Australian Infantry Brigade at the Dardanelles in 1915.

To-day is Major-General Sir Nevill Smyth's birthday. He is 67.

HOLIDAY-MAKERS GREET KING AND QUEEN

Crowds of Norfolk holiday-makers greeted the King and Queen when they arrived at Wolferton for a week's stay at Sandringham last night, while Boy Scouts and Girl Guides from seaside camps stood at attention, eagerly awaiting to welcome Their Majesties.

There was a happy incident on the red-carpeted platform of the little station. The King personally congratulated the Rev. W. T. Wardle, rector of Wolferton, on his recent heroism in rescuing from drowning a bather in Wolferton river.

The King had been told how the rector, hearing cries for help, dived into the deep tidal stream and brought the unconscious bather to the surface. The Queen also joined the King in complimenting the rector. She was especially interested, the rescued man being an employé at her carving school at Sandringham.

The King chatted jovially with the Chief Constable of Norfolk and railway officials before motoring to Sandringham House. Their Majesties will remain in Norfolk until Tuesday next, when the King will go to Balmoral and the Queen to Harrogate.

MISS MAUREEN DELANY

As announced in Monday's Irish Times, Miss Maureen Delany, the Abbey actress, will be leaving Dublin shortly for America in order to fulfil a contract with a cinema company. Her absence from Ireland, however, will not be permanent, as she intends to return as soon as she has completed the film.

COURT AND PERSONAL

The King held a Council meeting at Buckingham Palace yesterday. Later in the afternoon Their Majesties left London for a short stay at Sandringham before leaving for Balmoral, where they will spend the rest of the summer. Grouse shot on the Balmoral moors on Monday were despatched by air to Their Majesties in London, and also to the Prince of Wales, who is on the Riviera.

The King has received Major-General Henry Karslake, C.M.G., D.S.O., on his relinquishing of his appointment as General Officer Commanding-in-Chief the Indian Western Forces.

It is expected that the Queen will pay a visit to the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harewood at Harewood House, Leeds, on her way north to join the King at Balmoral.

The State apartments at Kensington Palace will be open to the public on Saturday and Sunday afternoons during this month, September and October.

The Duchess of York has given her patronage to the Phœnix Ball in aid of the Central Council for the Care of Crippled Children, which will be held later in London. On Monday the Duchess motored from Glamis Castle to Gannocky, where the Duke had arrived on the previous day, and Their Royal Highnesses will be the guests of Mr. Pierpoint Morgan for the next week.

The Duke of Buccleuch is leaving for Scotland in about a fortnight. The Duke of Devonshire is at Bolton Abbey, in Yorkshire, where the Marquess and Marchioness of Hartington have joined them. The Duke of Wellington is leaving Strathfieldsaye House to-morrow for Scotland. The Earl and Countess of Lucan are leaving London to day for North Berwick. Viscount Craigavon has arrived at Kinsteary Lodge, near Nairn, where he will have a shooting party on the moors, which he has rented till October. Viscount and Viscountess Chaplin will spend the shooting season at Uppat House, near Brora, Sutherland.

The Marquess and Marchioness of Salisbury are leaving on Saturday for Switzerland. The Marquess of Queensberry is making a short stay in France. Sir Charles and Lady Mendl are staying at Clos de la Guroupe, which they have rented from Sir Henry and the Hon. Lady Norman.

The Hon. Ernest Guinness is remaining on his yacht at Cowes for the present, but the Hon. Mrs. Guinness has returned to Holmbury St. Mary, Surrey. Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain are leaving in a few days for Dinard, where they make a short stay before starting for Corsica. Lady Diana Finck Hatton and her cousins, the Misses Munn, are touring round the Black Sea. Mr. and Mrs. Neville Chamberlain are making a short stay at Silo Maria, in the Engadine.

The marriage arranged between John Herbert Taylor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stevenson, Osborne Park, Belfast, and Muriel Elizabeth, second daughter of Arthur H. Huet, J.P., and Mrs. Huet, South Hill, Merrion avenue, Blackrock, will take place on Saturday, September 14th, at St. Philip and St. James' Church, Booterstown, at 2.30 p.m.

The marriage arranged between William Edwin, younger son of John and the late Mrs. Winter, Bolton, and Eleonore, eldest daughter of the late James Connor, Carlow, and Mrs. Mitchell, Detroit, will take place in Aghancon on 31st August.

The engagement is announced, and the marriage will take place early in September, of Joseph Lynch, L.D.S.I., of Nenagh, and Moira Gleeson, B.A., Solicitor, of Ben Aden, Nenagh.

Dr. Joseph Cockburn has left town until end of month.

Doctor F. J. Ryan has left Mount Clarence, Dun Laoghaire, until the end of the month.

Mr. S. Henchie has left 14 Upper Fitzwilliam street until 2nd September.

Mr. Eric Hutton has returned to 11 Adelaide road.

Mr. Thomas C Coleman has returned to 9 Upper Fitzwilliam street.

LONDON LETTER

THREE-POWER CONVERSATIONS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

MR. EDEN left for Paris to-day for the Three-Power conversations. These were to have begun on Thursday, but, as Baron Aloisi, the Italian delegate, will not reach the French capital until that day, there will be a postponement until Friday. The proceedings will be strictly secret, and are expected to last from five to ten days. In the meanwhile Mr. Eden will exchange interviews with M. Laval. If no agreement is reached at the conference, an early meeting of the British Cabinet may take place to decide on the policy to be adopted at the meeting of the League Council next month. That, however, is unlikely, as for months the Cabinet has had the Abyssinian question under review, and agreed at its last meeting to leave matters in the hands of the Prime Minister. During the next few critical weeks Mr. Baldwin, who will remain at Aix-les-Bains, will not have to rely solely on his own judgment. Several Ministers will be within comparatively easy call, and Mr. Eden can go from Paris to Aix after the conversations.

A New Session

The announcement that the eighty-eighth session of the Council of the League will be opened on September 4th indicates a change of plan. This date had been fixed for the special meeting of the Council to consider the dispute between Italy and Abyssinia, and the ordinary session was to have opened on September 6th. Had the special meeting been held it would have been a continuation of the eighty-seventh session, and M. Litvinoff would have presided, but as it is the eighty-eighth Council the President will be the next on the rota—the representative of the Argentine Republic. The situation with regard to Italy and Abyssinia will remain the principal subject for discussion, and other items on the agenda relate to Danzig and Iraq. The annual meeting of the Assembly of the League will be opened on September 9th.

Car Parking

Motor-car parking in the City streets has become such a nuisance that the police have been forced to intervene. For some time public warnings have been given that this obstruction to traffic must cease, but the general disregard of those warnings has resulted in batches of offenders being summoned at the City of London Police Court. Convictions were obtained in every case, and fines ranging up to £3 imposed. There are strong complaints that the police crusade seriously interferes with business. No doubt, it inconveniences many business men, but, at the same time, the ordinary users of the roadway are entitled to consideration. No action is taken by the police where a car is left for a reasonable time, but it is quite another thing when a public street is used as a garage for the best part of the day.

Rain at Last

For the first time for twenty-three days, rain fell yesterday in London and over the South-East of England and the South coast generally. Thunderstorms broke over Kent and Sussex, and at Folkestone .46 inch of rain was reported. The thermometer dropped, the maximum day temperature being 73 degrees compared with 80 degrees on Sunday. By nightfall it had dropped to 60 degrees—10 degrees lower than the night before. Weather experts predict that after a brief cool spell there will be another heat wave. A gale swept the Channel last night, and several yachts and small sailing vessels found themselves in difficulties. Holiday-makers were caught unawares, and thousands were drenched to the skin by the suddenness of the downpour.

Lourdes Fever Victims

Bad news is to hand concerning the Lourdes fever victims. Three of the twenty-five Scottish pilgrims who contracted enteric fever have become critically ill. Observation by medical authorities on the eleven hundred people who made the journey will be continued for six weeks. Investigations have been extended to England, Ireland and France. Medical officers are visiting the passengers who returned from the second cruise on August 6th, but no cases of illness have been reported so far as these pilgrims are concerned.

Tea

According to the International Tea Committee, the consumption of that beverage shows a tendency to decline in the principal consuming countries. The second annual report of that body states that it is clear that the energies of all concerned in the industry must be bent in the direction of arresting the downward tendency, and of doing everything possible to find new markets. It is clear from a review of stock figures that the decline is due to world economic conditions, and not to any action by the Committee.

Changing the Guard

For the first time in its 300 years' history the Corps of Royal Marines will take over the Royal Palace Guards when the Household troops depart for their annual field training and manœuvres. Detachments will be drawn from each of the divisions at Portsmouth, Plymouth and Chatham, and these will be posted at Wellington Barracks. It is usual when the Brigade of Guards is temporarily relieved of these duties for the relieving unit to be on the scene a little while before actually taking over. The blue jackets and white tropical helmets of the Marines will be a sombre contrast to the bearskins and brilliant scarlet tunics of the Guards.

Wireless Developments

At the Radio Exhibition, which opens at Olympia to-morrow, it is computed that five millions' worth of apparatus will be on view. One of the picnic sets occupies a space of only five inches square, and has three valves. An unexpected development is the return of crystal sets, in which many improvements have been made since last year. The reason assigned for this reversion is that many people cannot afford to buy the modern products and have a rooted aversion to the hire-purchase system. Multiple-speaker sets are more numerous, and there is a tendency towards simplification of control. One of the most elaborate exhibits is that of a radiogramophone which automatically puts on and takes off as many as thirty records, so that a non-stop entertainment of three hours is provided without any attention.

Lemons

The shortage of lemons in this country in consequence of the diversion of the Italian supplies to Eritrea and the camps of the troops mobilised in Italy, is being made good to some extent by consignments from Empire sources and from California. Demand is still in excess of supply, but further shipments are en route, and it is likely that in future London will not be so dependent upon the Italian supply as formerly. Another effect of the despatch of Italian troops to East Africa is the benefit which has accrued to South African farmers. Large quantities of cattle have been purchased, and farmers in Natal, who have been passing through a lean time in recent years, are doing well. Many contracts have been placed at advancing prices for cattle to be despatched to the Italian forces.

MONEY FOR FREE STATE HOSPITALS

COMPLAINT AS TO ALLEGED DELAY IN DISBURSEMENT

CHANGES IN SYSTEM OF ADMINISTRATION

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF LIBRARY SCHEMES

IN certain quarters in the Free State there has been a good deal of complaint regarding what is described as the slowness in making money received through the Hospitals' sweepstakes available for the various hospitals.

Further attention has been directed to the matter by a question recently addressed by Mr. T. J. Murphy, T.D. (Kerry), to Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, the Minister for Local Government.

From the reply, which was published a few days ago, it appears there is at the moment a sum of over £4,000,000 in the hands of the National Hospital Trustees.

THE HOSPITALS ACT OF 1933

An Irish Times representative was informed yesterday that people interested in hospitals have not yet, apparently, realised that the Public Hospitals Act, passed in 1933, has completely altered the system under which moneys received from the Hospitals' Sweepstakes is distributed. Formerly disbursements were made on the recommendation of the Committee of Reference. That body has been abolished, and under the new scheme another body, called the Hospitals' Commission, has taken its place.

This body, which has offices in Mount street, Dublin, has been set up mainly to advise the Minister on all matters regarding the hospitals of the country. In order to be in a position to advise, the Commissioners have the duty of inquiring into, examining and surveying generally the hospital and nursing facilities existing in the country, and digesting the information thus acquired in relation to the needs of the people.

THE FIRST REPORT

Their first report has been presented to the Minister within the last week or so. It is a very bulky document, and is at the moment receiving the attention of the Local Government Department.

The funds of the Hospitals' Trust are administered by five gentlemen known as the National Hospital Trustees, and disbursements are made on the advice of the Minister for Local Government. The general aim of the new policy is to accumulate a trust fund, the interest on which will be available for the maintenance of existing institutions, but this does not prevent the making of substantial grants out of capital in the event of its being considered advisable to erect a new building in any centre.

DUBLIN CITY SCHEME

In the case of Dublin, for instance, a scheme of centralisation of hospitals has been mooted for some time, and it is understood that a tentative agreement has been reached in regard to certain institutions. So far nothing definite has been done, but in the event of a plan being put forward, and approved by the Hospitals Commission, it would be for the Minister to sanction the advance of money for that purpose.

Similarly the Act provides that money may be advanced for the purchase of land, the reconstruction, extension or improvement of buildings, the purchase of equipment or the endowment of a hospital or nursing organisation.

In the use of the available moneys under the provisions of the Act of 1933 the Minister is required to exercise prudence, and to assure himself that sufficient is likely to be available in the future to maintain the existing institutions. For this reason, it is necessary that the fullest information and the best advice should be available before decisions are made.

LIBRARIES IN HOSPITALS

Interested people are becoming impatient of the Hospitals Commission's delay in establishing a library scheme for the Free State hospitals. It is stated that the money involved in providing this very desirable boon for sufferers in our hospitals is small, and definite provisions are made for such a scheme under the Public Hospitals Act (1933).

An agitation has been proceeding for many months, and a well-known clergyman, discussing the matter with an Irish Times reporter yesterday, said:

"The matter now rests completely with the Hospitals Commission, whose business it is to advise the Government. It certainly is high time that something was done for this important and not over-troublesome scheme.

"The matter has been raised time and again by articles and letters in the Press, and by other means, even as far back as twelve months ago. I was told only recently that a number of people who are taking a keen interest in the idea, and who have formulated a scheme, wrote to the Commission. They have received no reply.

"It is indeed strange that in virtually every other Western country there is a scheme of libraries in hospitals—Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, to mention but a few—and the system is also very fully organised in the United States of America. England used to send full supplies of books across to our hospitals. This practice has been stopped, and would naturally be impossible in any event owing to tariffs, etc.

"There is absolutely no reason why the Commission should not take the matter up immediately. It is not as if they had not the money, or could not spare it. The sum involved would be negligible to them.

"Leading doctors will agree that there is nothing better than the reading of suitable books during convalescence. But the Chairman of the Commission knows all about this, and something should be done, through the medium of the Press, to sting the Commission into rapid action. The Act advocated this scheme. Why the delay?"

MINISTER'S AUTHORITY

An Irish Times reporter who later read through the Public Hospitals Act (1933) found the following section: "The Minister may at any time, at the request of any person controlling, or about to establish a lending library for supplying books for the use of patients or inmates in hospitals, make a grant (to be known, and in this section referred to, as a hospital library grant) to such person out of the Hospitals' Trust Fund of such amount as the Minister shall think proper, for the purpose of defraying all or any of the expenses of such lending library."

The section continues that a hospital library grant may be in the form of a sum paid out of the capital of the Hospitals' Trust Fund, or in the form of payments to be made annually.

Father Stephen Browne, S.J., who, it is understood, was an originator of a scheme for libraries attached to hospitals in the Free State, when approached last night, said that he would prefer not to make any comment at the moment.

Another person connected with the scheme said: "It will be interesting to see whether the Commission, in view of the letter written to them, have included the matter in their report to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health."

LISTOWEL U.D.C. DISSOLVED

COMMISSIONER APPOINTED

The following announcement was issued last evening by the Free State Bureau of Information:—

"The Minister for Local Government and Public Health has made an Order dissolving the Listowel Urban District Council, and transferring their powers and duties to Mr. John P. Moran, Local Government Auditor, 4 Lansdowne Park, Ennis road, Limerick.

"The Order comes into operation tomorrow, August 14th."

This is the sequel to an inquiry recently held by the Ministry of Local Government into the performance of its functions by the Listowel Urban Council.

PLY YARDS OF COTTON

LICENCES FOR FREE IMPORT

The Free State Bureau of Information last evening announced:—

"Until further notice, the Minister for Industry and Commerce is prepared to consider applications from all importers for licences for the importation free of duty of ply yarns of cotton.

"Authority for free entry will only be granted for normal requirements, and on production of satisfactory evidence that these requirements are not obtainable from Saorstat manufacturers of cotton ply yarns.

"All applications for licences should be addressed to Secretary, Department of Industry and Commerce, Lord Edward street, Dublin."

U.S. FEAR OF JAPAN

EXPANSION IN CENTRAL AMERICA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PANAMA, Tuesday.

The United States is taking steps to improve its anti-aircraft defences in the Canal zone by means of the installation of radio detectors throughout the Panama Republic.

This step is largely dictated, it is generally believed, by concern about the growing expansion of Japan in South America.

Japanese activity has been centred in Costa Rica and in Salvador. In Salvador the question of granting certain fishing concessions to Japan will shortly come up for discussion before the Salvador Parliament.

Similar concessions, it is stated, had already been sought by Japan in Panama, but without success.

These concessions are believed to be the first step in a campaign by the Japanese to conclude "commercial" treaties with the countries of Central America, under which some Americans see a deep-laid plot for the concession of lands which subsequently might be used as submarine and aeroplane bases.

Panama to-day is crowded with small Japanese shops.

THE PRICE OF BREAD

MEETING OF MASTER BAKERS TO-DAY

A meeting of master bakers of the Free State will be held in Dublin to-day. It is understood that the meeting, which will be held in the Gresham Hotel, will have under consideration the recent decision of the Prices Commission in regard to the fixing of the price of bread in the Free State.

FLOODS AND FIRE

BIG STORM IN FRANCE

ONE THOUSAND ITALIANS DROWNED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

FLOODS and fires mark the end of the heat wave which has been scorching France for many days. The whole town of Amiens was plunged into total darkness last night when a torrential storm caused a failure of the electricity system.

Although no one was injured the town became a series of huge lakes and all traffic was brought to a standstill. Trains were delayed owing to the main line stations being flooded out and their tracks submerged.

Two houses which were in danger of collapsing had to be abandoned, while in others men worked pumps all night long.

Further south, in the departments of Var and of Bouches-du-Rhone, hundreds of peasants were to-day, for the third day, fighting against forest fires which had already destroyed three hundred acres of timber.

The occupants of three villages, many of whom had not slept since the fire began, were joining in an organised effort to get the flames under control.

One man, a farm labourer, was burned to death in the torrential storm which struck Amiens last night owing to the lightning setting fire to a haystack in which he was sheltering.

BIG DAM BURSTS

COUNTRYSIDE FLOODED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TURIN, Wednesday.

One thousand people are believed to have been drowned by floods which burst over the town of Ovada, near Alessandria, in Northern Italy, as the result of the bursting of a dam.

The tragedy is on a very much bigger scale than was at first thought. The dam which burst was over 100 feet high. It was constructed to hold up the waters of a lake to give electrical power.

The countryside has now been flooded for a distance of 25 by 16 miles, and four bridges have been swept away.

The disaster happened yesterday afternoon. Carrying away a large bridge, the water swept down upon the town of Ovada, which has 10,000 inhabitants.

CAR-DRIVER KILLED

ROAD SMASH IN COUNTY DOWN

A collision between a motor car and a double-decker 'bus at Ballyholme, Bangor, Co. Down, late last night, resulted in the driver of the car being killed and his three passengers seriously injured. The car was smashed to pieces.

The dead motorist was Robert B. Murphy (32), of Galgorm road, Ballymena.

His passengers, who are detained in Bangor Hospital, are: James McNeilly, Pentagon House, Ballymena, a medical student, of Dublin University (suffering from head injuries); Miss Mabel Clarke, Darkley, Co. Armagh (scalp wounds, shock and abrasions), and Miss Dorothy Greer, Ashleigh avenue, Lisburn road, Belfast (shock).

The 'bus driver and his passengers were not injured.

BOY SERIOUSLY INJURED

A boy named Harry Moore (6), High street, Bangor, was admitted to Bangor Hospital last night suffering from head injuries and shock as a result of having been knocked down by a 'bus. His condition was stated early this morning to be very serious.

PRIEST KILLED ON WAY TO IRELAND

MOTOR CAR PLUNGES DOWN A RAVINE

Professor John Donnelly, Vice-Rector of St. Peter's Ecclesiastical College, New Kilpatrick, Bearsden, Glasgow, was killed when the car in which he was travelling plunged down a ravine in Ayrshire.

He and a friend, the Rev. J. L. Cullen, of Houston, Renfrew, were journeying down the Ayrshire coast on Monday night on their way to spend a holiday in Ireland, when the car struck an embankment on the roadside and hurtled sixty-six feet down the ravine.

Father Donnelly, who was 48, was killed instantly, but Father Cullen escaped injury.

Both clergymen were well known in Scottish Catholic circles.

TURKEY AND BACK IN A DAY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

Elli Beinhorn, Germany's "Lady Lindy," landed at Templehof Aerodrome this evening after a flight from Gleiwitz, German Silesia, to Istanbul and back to Berlin—950 miles each way.

Her time on the outward flight was six and three-quarter hours, an average of nearly 160 miles an hour.

IMPERIALISMS IN CONFLICT

BRITAIN AND ITALY

THE THREE-POWER CONFERENCE

MR. EDEN BELIEVED TO HOLD KEY

THE Paris conversations on Abyssinia between the signatories to the Three-Power Pact of 1906 will open in an atmosphere which was described to Reuter last night as earnestness without pessimism and without optimism.

On the whole, however, opinion tends to pessimism rather than to optimism. It is felt in Paris that Great Britain holds the key to the riddle, but nobody knows at present what she is going to propose. That secret is, so far, held by Mr. Eden.

Mr. Anthony Eden, accompanied by Mr. Strang and Mr. Robin Hankey, of the Foreign Office, arrived in Paris last night. He made no statement to the crowd of waiting journalists, and drove to the British Embassy, where he will be staying during the Three-Power conversations.

Official quarters in Rome last night declined to make any statement as to when Baron Aloisi was leaving for Paris for the Three Power conversations on Abyssinia. He is now at Leghorn on holiday.

"DOES BRITAIN KNOW?"

ABYSSINIA THE SMALLEST PART

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

"Signor Grandi's position as Italian Ambassador in London just now is not without analogy to that of the German Prince Lichnowsky in 1914," says the Rome Correspondent of the Journal des Debats in a striking despatch on the tension between Italy and Britain over Abyssinia.

"A mistake in appreciating British intentions, and he can throw his country into mortal conflict and Europe into still deeper misery. But what an embarrassing position is his if Britain herself does not know exactly what she wants? There lies the real danger which M. Laval has to ward off."

The correspondent sees far beyond the Abyssinian conflict, "which is the smallest part of the question."

"It is in reality," he says, "a conflict between two imperialisms, one weighed down with years, profit, honours—British Imperialism; the other still in bud, uncertain of its strength, alternately timid and explosive; both impatient and greedy, yet prompted by historic, social and human impulses that counsel making way for it—Italian Imperialism.

"How can one find a balance for these two forces? This is what it is all about. The stake is of extreme importance for all.

"But, while Mussolini knows what he wants, does Britain know whither the weight of her public opinion, her interests and her intellectual passions may lead her?"

"GOOD QUEEN MUSSOLINI"

A similarity between Elizabethan England and Fascist Italy, and between Queen Elizabeth herself and Signor Mussolini, is emphasised in an article in the Giornale d'Italia headed: "Two Peoples in the Making, 1558-1922."

"There is a similarity between England of 1558 and Italy of 1922, a similarity in history and destiny which is striking," says the newspaper.

"Elizabeth, like Mussolini, had to construct from the beginning a national conscience and a spiritual unity. Like Elizabeth, Mussolini is proceeding on his way without any wavering and without any uncertainty."

FROM 4,528 TO 55,000

DEVELOPMENT OF ERITREA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Tuesday.

The population of Eritrea has increased more than tenfold in the six months from January 16—from 4,528 to 55,000, according to figures in the Giornale d'Italia to-day from their Asmara Correspondent.

Other figures given by the correspondent are:—

3,300 tons are disembarked daily at Massawa, whereas a little time ago the figure was only 300 tons daily.

Nearly 200 miles of new road have been built in the last six months, and nearly 100 miles of roads have been refashioned.

There have been 62 new wells sunk, 12 new reservoirs made, and 25 are in course of construction.

The principal hospital in Asmara has an addition of 650 beds, and seventeen other hospitals have been enlarged.

Aerodromes have been increased since January last from three to nine, and emergency landing grounds from 10 to 26.

The blowing-out of an electrical transformer last night startled Washington into believing that a major explosion disaster had occurred. Actually the casualties consisted of two women who were injured by flying glass splinters, and the material damage was negligible.

ROBIN HOOD OF RUMANIA

ESCAPES FROM PRISON

GENDARMES AND POLICE MOBILISED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BUKHAREST, Tuesday.

THE entire gendarme and police forces of Northern Moldavia have been mobilised to round up Coroiu, Rumania's "Public Enemy No. 1," who escaped from custody to-day, accompanied by his guard.

It is feared that the notorious bandit may attempt to cross the River Dniester into Soviet Russia.

A high price has been placed on his head.

The more well-to-do population, who had been greatly relieved at Coroiu's capture, are once again terrified. Merchants and the owners of rich estates are asking for police protection, and housewives in isolated districts are barricading their doors and windows for fear of him. The poorer peasants, however, many of whom he has previously befriended, are rejoicing at his escape.

Coroiu has been notorious throughout the country during the last few years for his daring robberies and for the way in which he has avoided capture. Lately he has grown weary of brigandage and negotiated his surrender to the authorities. He then adopted the rôle of Robin Hood, and put up the novel defence that the police were entirely responsible for his misdeeds, because "a handsome policeman had tried to steal his mistress."

"I swear before God," he told the authorities, "that I never murdered anyone, and only robbed the rich in order to help widows and orphans at their expense. My hands are clean, but I now want to be judged and punished to purify my soul."

Villagers rallied to his support when he was tried for the murder of the handsome policeman, and he was acquitted. He had already been sentenced in his absence to life imprisonment.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

A MISSION FOR PEACE

In an editorial article The Times remarks to-day:—Mr. Eden and Sir Robert Vansittart arrived in Paris last night to make one more attempt to find an amicable settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. They will meet M. Laval informally to-day and Baron Aloisi to-morrow, and on Friday a formal conference is expected to begin on the basis of the treaty relating to Abyssinia which was signed by Great Britain, Italy and France in 1906. Thus the old diplomacy is being called in to supplement the efforts of the new.

The treaty is instinct with the now discredited theory of special interests and zones of influence, adds The Times; but at the present moment it offers certain great advantages. It nominally protects the integrity of Ethiopia; it prohibits intervention by one nation without the consent of the other two, and, above all, its validity is not contested by Italy. Moreover, in the case of Great Britain, at least, its pre-war provisions are being diluted by the spirit of post-war diplomacy. Great Britain is not asking for any special privileges in the Tana district or anywhere else. France has, indeed, already got her railway between Djibouti and the capital; but both France and Great Britain would have welcomed the participation of Abyssinia in the forthcoming negotiations, and they have turned to the treaty simply because it offers now the only possible basis of an agreement with Italy.

If Italy refuses to come to an understanding with the other signatories and, nevertheless, perseveres in her predatory designs upon Abyssinia, she will be flouting obligations assumed under the old diplomacy, as well as those which she has assumed since the War. Her Government would infringe pre-War promises, besides repudiating the principles of the League. It would not be a record upon which any Government that desires its word to be respected in future could look back with the slightest satisfaction.

The British Government is being bombarded with advice of completely contradictory nature, but Mr. Eden may be trusted to do all that is possible to reconcile such Italian claims as are admitted to be substantial with the tenets of the League and the political integrity of Ethiopia.

BOXING AT OLYMPIC GAMES

NO FREE STATE TEAM

Mr. P. J. Kilcullen, Secretary of the Irish Olympic Council, in reference to the statement made by Mr. J. J. Keane yesterday that a boxing team entered as the Free State would be sent to the Olympic Games, states that this is not correct.

"So far," he said, "no decision has been taken on the matter, but it is highly improbable that any team will travel as the Irish Free State."

NEW ROSCREA FACTORY

CULMINATION OF LOCAL EFFORT

OFFICIAL OPENING BY MINISTER

PRODUCTION OF MEAT AND BONE MEALS

THE people of Roscrea, County Tipperary, made yesterday a general holiday to celebrate the opening by the Minister for Agriculture (Dr. James Ryan) of the new meat factory. For them yesterday was the end of a long concerted effort to secure the establishment of the factory there; and the beginning of an enjoyment of the new industry, which will pay about £21,000 a year in wages and employ one hundred men.

Their effort to get the factory began, an Irish Times reporter learned yesterday, with a conversation between the Very Rev. T. O'Molloy, Adm., who presides over the Roscrea Industrial Development Association, and the Minister for Agriculture, at a Muintir na Tire Rural Week-end. Then there were representations to the Government and deputations to Dublin. German experts who came to Roscrea could not find any suitable buildings for the proposed factory; but, "standing with one foot on the running-board of their car," Father O'Molloy made them promise that if they could not find a suitable building elsewhere, they would return to Roscrea and let the Roscrea people aid them in securing a site. The experts came back; and the traders and people of Roscrea subscribed £600 in small sums to purchase the site that was deemed suitable by the experts.

VOLUNTARY LABOUR

Then the working people of Roscrea, employed and unemployed, were organised, largely by the efforts of a local Labour leader, Mr. M. Cunningham, to play a part also. Eighty men gave their services voluntarily for almost a month to clear the site, and make a road about three hundred yards long from the nearest road to the site. They had to dig the necessary sand and stones for themselves. The monks at Roscrea's Cistercian Monastery lent their steam-roller. Townspeople presented the workers with packets of cigarettes. It was a remarkable general "push," and when, finally, the big occasion of the official opening came yesterday, the Roscrea people decorated their principal streets and houses with flags and bunting; filled windows with flowers; and wrapped the telegraph poles with branches of laurel, sycamore, fir, etc. A young resident, Mr. Harry Waters, painted various banners "Success to the Factory," and so on, which were hung across the streets. The town had a floral and very festive appearance.

MEAT AND BONE MEALS

The factory introduces an entirely novel industry to Ireland, and one which is hardly known anywhere else except in Germany, where similar factories are established in most towns. It is run by a private company, of which a German expert, Herr G. Fäsenfeld, of Bremen, is managing director, and his son, Herr J. W. Fäsenfeld, has designed the building. The principal products of the factory, which already has been in operation for a week, during which 600 cows have been handled, are meat meal, bone meal, and meat-and-bone meal. It is anticipated that the home demand will absorb the greater part of the output.

Incidentally, there is a mistaken idea in circulation in regard to the kind of raw materials to be used. The managing director stated yesterday that every carcase is examined by a veterinary surgeon before it is used, and any bad carcase is detroyed at once.

UNECONOMIC COWS

Lean cattle from the poorer pastures of the Free State—from Kerry, to begin with—are used. The Department of Agriculture obtains these for the company, paying a flat rate of 50s. each. The chief benefit of the scheme, indeed, lies in this elimination of uneconomic cows, for which the Minister hopes better-bred heifers will be substituted, to the consequent improvement of the whole cattle population of the country.

The factory is now working at a little over half-pressure, and it is anticipated that about 1,000 cows per week will be handled when the factory is in full production. Fifty men (only men are employed) are now engaged, with a weekly wages-bill of about £200, and inside about two months the complete staff of one hundred will be at work.

Apart from the meals, the factory will produce hides, most of which, it is expected, will be tanned in the Free State; and a series of other subsidiary products for export only. These will include edible fats and commercial fats, salted beef, and later, canned beef, tongues, sausage casings, and "pudding," fertilisers, etc.

MINISTER'S SPEECH

The Minister for Agriculture, in opening the factory yesterday, said that it was designed to deal with old and uneconomic cows. He continued: "It is estimated that about 200,000 cows are removed from our herds every year to be replaced by young heifers. Some of these cows are young and healthy, but unsuitable for dairying, and are, consequently, consumed as beef. There is no difficulty about the disposal of such cows. Some others are exported in the new milch category, others, again, die from disease or accident.

"Apart from all these classes we have many old cows uneconomic as milkers to the farmers and not fit for conversion into beef for human consumption. For this residue the factory here was constructed. It is capable of dealing with 1,000 to 1,200 cows per week. The flesh will be converted into meat meal for animal feeding and many by-products will be got for industrial purposes. This factory will not dispose of any of its products for human consumption in this country.

SURPLUS FOR EXPORT

"We shall henceforth be self-sufficient as far as meat meal is concerned and shall also have some surplus for export. We hope to reduce our imports of industrial or non-edible fats. Our new tanneries will, no doubt, require dressed hides. I need not dwell on other subsidiary possibilities, such as blood and bones for manures, hoofs and horns, etc. One can see the great opening for development and the prospects of increasing employment in a factory such as this.

"With a board of management so keen on industrial revival Roscrea may look forward to a prosperous and expanding industry which has its beginnings here to-day.

SIR JOHN ROSS

Sir John Ross, who is seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia at his residence, Dunmoyle, Six Mile Cross, County Tyrone, passed a quiet day yesterday. He is making satisfactory progress.

KANE CASE RESULT

COUNTY ANTRIM CAPTAIN

MADRID COURT URGES PARDON

BUT UPHOLDS PALMA DECISION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Tuesday.

JUDGMENT in the appeal of Captain A. W. Kane, master of the British steamer Brompston Manor, was delivered by the Supreme Court here to-day.

The Court upheld his conviction and sentence by the Palma Court, holding that there was no ground for interfering with its decision, and at the same time they imposed a fine of 125 pesetas (about £3 10s.) and ordered him to pay costs.

The Supreme Court recommended, however, the Palma Court to ask for pardon, as authorised by Article 2 of the Spanish Penal Code.

News of the Court's decision has already been conveyed to Palma, where, it is stated by Reuter's Correspondent, the decree granting an indulto (pardon) will take about a fortnight to prepare.

In the meantime Captain Kane will remain at provisional liberty in the hotel in which he at present lives, but, as bail has not been accepted, he is unable to leave.

Thus ends the prolonged proceedings which arose out of a trivial dispute over a bill in a café at Palma, Majorca, between the proprietor and a few officers of a visiting steamer.

The case, with its heavy sentence, has aroused great indignation in this country and among British residents in Majorca.

HOW THE CASE AROSE

The sentence of two years and eleven months passed on Captain Kane by the Court of Urgency in Palma arose out of an incident in a café.

Captain Kane, an Islandmagee man, arrived in the café, to find that some officers of his ship were engaged in a dispute with the proprietor over the bill. Captain Kane endeavoured to settle the quarrel, and at the same time a police officer in plain clothes intervened, though the British officers were unaware of his identity.

In forcing his way through the crowd Captain Kane apparently unwittingly jostled the plain-clothes policeman. The latter and a companion drew revolvers and levelled them at the four officers, who, though not knowing Spanish, accompanied them to the local judge.

Two engineers and a wireless operator were released after a preliminary hearing, but Captain Kane was detained, as the plain-clothes officer accused him of striking him.

"A VERY LIGHT BLOW"

Captain Kane was brought up for trial on a charge of forcibly resisting the police, the police officer saying that he had struck him a very light blow, and was sentenced to almost three years in prison.

Captain Kane emphatically declared at his trial that he was not guilty of the charges brought against him.

British residents in Majorca were incensed by the Court's verdict, which they regarded as at variance with the evidence, and, pending an appeal, endeavoured to have him released on bail, especially as he had been under medical treatment while in prison.

Despite medical evidence, the application of the British Consul for his provisional release was at first rejected, but after being in prison for nearly a fortnight he was granted provisional liberty or "attenuated imprisonment."

The Judge who tried his case was recently reduced by order from Madrid to the lower rank of magistrate.

GOOD TEMPER

Captain Kane, who bore his imprisonment stoically and with unshakable good temper, has since been enjoying the comparative freedom of hotel life in the pleasant family hotel Catalonia, in Palma. As bail was not accepted he has not, however, been able to leave his hotel, and has been feeling the lack of exercise which he had even in the Capuchinos Jail.

His appeal was hurried in Madrid and came before the Court last Thursday. One of the main points of the defence was that there was no indication that the plain-clothes officer was in fact an officer of the law. The Public Prosecutor, on the other hand, urged the Court to uphold the sentence.

Captain Kane is a County Antrim man and a descendant of the well-known General Richard Kane, who was Governor of Minorca from 1713 to 1736 during the British occupation of the island. General Kane, who also was born in Antrim, is honoured in Westminster Abbey.

BRITISH ARMY MANŒUVRES

DAY AND NIGHT OPERATIONS

The opening battle of the 1935 Army manœuvres has begun, and some 50,000 troops are taking part. Following on the hefty labours in the field on Monday, involving a late return to barracks, Major-General H. M. Wilson's troops were abroad again yesterday on a scheme which prevented any possibility of a return to quarters for at least twenty hours.

Within the next few days the whole of the units of the first four divisions of Britain's post-war Army, together with Tanks Corps troops, armoured cars and a Territorial unit from Wales, will be busily engaged in operations.

The War Office exercises will be personally directed by Field-Marshal Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and the chief umpire will be Sir John Burnett-Stuart, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Southern Command.

WELL-KNOWN POET DEAD

SIR WILLIAM WATSON

MR. KIPLING'S TRIBUTE

SIR WILLIAM WATSON, the poet, died late on Monday night at a nursing home at Ditchling Common, Sussex. He was 77. Sir William had been a patient at the nursing home for a fortnight.

Lady Watson, in a message yesterday, stated: "At midnight last night the oldest of the English poets died—Sir William Watson. His wife and daughters were with him. Sir William's long life was spent in devotion to his work in its noblest form, and so passes one deserving of honour."

CLARITY AND DIGNITY

Sir William Watson's poetry was contemplative rather than dramatic, although his impassioned expressions in a series of political sonnets showed a fervour that was striking. Recognition came in 1890 with "Wordsworth's Grave," which bore a strong meditative note.

Sir William thought deeply on the Armenian question, and sonnets on that subject revealed the character of the man and how strongly he felt for the oppressed. In 1884 he had published "Epigrams of Art, Life, and Nature," a beautiful study on the subjects he took for his title.

In these the clarity and dignity of his style was in keeping with the best classical tradition. There was more thought than passion. Indeed, he was a poet-thinker, if the phrase can be used, and ardour and fire were not conspicuous in his lines, except, as has been stated, when political conviction allowed itself to appear.

NEARLY POET LAUREATE

Eleven days ago he celebrated his 77th birthday in the nursing home in which he has now died. The winter of his life had been spent in the tiny cottage at Rottingdean which had been his home in recent times.

There he lived with his wife and two daughters, almost forgotten by the world, yet he was once almost Poet Laureate. Gladstone recommended him for the position, but he was passed over in favour of Alfred Austin.

Lady Watson stated that one of the last things her husband said was: "Is my work safe?" He also said: "Don't forget our old friend, Lloyd George."

Lady Watson told him: "I am sure that Mr. Lloyd George will be sorry to hear that you are ill."

LOVED THE IRISH

"Mr. Lloyd George has always thought so much of my husband's work," Lady Watson said yesterday. "Mr. Lloyd George is a Celt, and my husband has always said that he himself was a Celt, because he had an affinity with Ireland and Wales.

"My husband loved the Irish very much. I myself am from Dublin. He has always understood the people of Ireland and Wales."

When Sir William lay ill at Bath five years ago a group of distinguished admirers of his work made an appeal for the formation of a testimonial fund—a fund which reached £3,000, and which greatly helped him and his family in his last years.

Lady Watson, an Irishwoman—she was formerly Miss Maureen Pring, of Howth, Dublin—was untiring in her devotion to him.

KIPLING'S TRIBUTE

Mr. Rudyard Kipling paid the following tribute last night to Sir William Watson: "He did magnificent work. He never wrote a bad line. His work has gone to the general account and will never be lost."

Mr. John Drinkwater, poet and dramatist, in a broadcast tribute to Sir William Watson last night, said: "The news of William Watson's death stirs one for a moment to a sense of indignation that a poet of such high gifts, honourably used, should have spent his old age in obscurity, almost in humiliating neglect."

OBITUARY

LORD TOMLIN

Lord Tomlin, a Lord of Appeal in England, died yesterday at Canterbury, aged 68. He had been ill for only a short time, and had been in a nursing home in the Canterbury district, near his Kentish home, The Manor House, Upper Hardres. Lord Tomlin was spending his vacation at his country house and was taken suddenly ill on Thursday. An emergency operation for appendicitis was performed the following day. Lord Tomlin had been a Lord of Appeal in Ordinary since 1929, when he became the youngest member of the Judicial Bench of the House of Lords. Eldest son of the late Mr. George Taddy Tomlin, of Coombe House, Canterbury, Lord Tomlin's great legal knowledge benefited many judicial committees over which he presided. For more than ten years he was Chairman of the Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors. Lord Tomlin was educated at Harrow and New College, Oxford, and was called to the Bar in 1891. He took silk in 1913.

MR. WILLIAM MULHOLLAND

The death has taken place at his residence, 626 South street, Andrew's place, Los Angeles, California, of Mr. William Mulholland, in his eightieth year, after an illness of several months. Mr. Mulholland, who was a native of Belfast, went to Los Angeles in 1876, and rose to the position of chief engineer for that city's water system. The Funeral Service, which was held at the Little Church of the Flowers, in the Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, was attended by about 500 people, many wreaths being sent. In a tribute to the memory of Mr. Mulholland, the Los Angeles Evening Herald describes him as "the great engineer who, almost single-handed, forced the construction of the Los Angeles aqueduct." As a token of respect, work was suspended on the Colorado River aqueduct for one minute at the time of the funeral.

MR. ARTHUR O'NEILL

After a short illness, Mr. Arthur O'Neill, Kenmare, a member of the Kerry County Council, has died at his residence, Henry street, Kenmare. He took a prominent part in the Sinn Fein movement from boyhood and in Fianna Fail activities. He was greatly interested in the promotion of sports and regattas and in everything connected with the welfare of Kenmare.

HOWTH COUNCILLOR'S RESIGNATION

The Howth Urban District Council, at its meeting last night, accepted the resignation of Councillor Frederick Guthrie. September 5 was fixed as the last day on which the Town Clerk would accept nominations for the co-option of a member.

Mr. W. G. Mulvin presided at the meeting.

OBSOLETE AND OUTWORN

WATER SUPPLY OF MENTAL HOSPITAL

FIRE APPLIANCES OUT OF DATE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Tuesday.

DISCLOSURES regarding the water supply of the Waterford Mental Hospital were made in a report to the Mental Hospital Committee by Mr. T. J. Delaney, A.M.I.C.E., Dublin.

"The present system of water supply in the institution," he said, "is obsolete and outworn in some of its features, and, in my opinion, improvement on a comprehensive scale is very necessary."

Stating that an institution such as Waterford Mental Hospital called for ample provision of the communal necessities of a small-sized town in the matter of water, Mr. Delaney pointed out that the intake supply pipe from the Corporation main appeared to have been laid down between forty and fifty years ago, and was heavily corroded, and its water-carrying capacity greatly reduced.

UNFIT FOR SERVICE

It was reasonable to suppose that these conditions would be aggravated as time went on, and that this pipe line had given its effective life service.

The hydrants and fire appliances, he said, all were obsolete and unfit for service. The existing system of water supply had ceased to meet the modern requirements of "safety first," and it could not be reconditioned effectively by repair or patchwork. He recommended the installation of a new intake supply main, new pumping plant, and storage tank, with a capacity of 60,000 gallons.

Mr. Delaney was requested to supply an estimate for the work in connection with the water supply.

TRIBUTES TO R.D.S. DIRECTOR

COUNCIL REFERENCES TO SHOW SUCCESS

At a special Council meeting of the Royal Dublin Society yesterday it was decided, on the proposal of Lord Powerscourt (President), seconded by Mr. D. R. Pack Beresford (Vice-President), and supported by the Director, to confer Honorary Life Membership of the Society upon Mrs. John Higgins, of French Lawn, Roscommon, and Coventry House, London, for the services which she had rendered with her husband, who is already an Honorary Life Member, in furthering the interests of the Society for a number of years, by giving generous publicity to its work, in London and on the Continent before and during the period of each Horse Show. Mrs. Higgins is the first woman in the long history of the Society to be honoured in this manner, and the President added that it was a grateful testimony of the high regard which the Council and the members of the Society had for the gracious and beneficial services rendered.

The President referred to the extraordinary success of the Horse Show, which, they all felt, was in no small degree attributable to the Director and the officials, and he desired from the chair to urge strongly upon the Director to take longer periods of rest, and that in any case he be ordered to refrain from being on duty two days per week. Senator Westropp Bennett supported the proposition, and suggested that the resolution should be reversed so that the Director be restricted to two days per week. Canon Dempsey also associated himself with this, expressing the hope that for some time to come Dr. Bohane would serve the Society for which he had done so much in a real service to the country.

The Council unanimously approved of further improvements being made to the Society's scientific library, so that this valuable collection of books might be preserved.

Honorary membership for their term of office in Ireland was conferred upon His Excellency A. M. Owsley, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, United States of America; Dr. Charles J. Benziger, Consul-General for Switzerland, and Mr. N. Elmslie, Trade Commissioner for Great Britain.

The following members of the Council were present:—The Right Hon. Viscount Powerscourt, H.M.L. (President); the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, Professor A. W. Conway, M.A., D.Sc., F.R.S.; Sir Frederick Moore, M.A.; J. J. Buckley, M.R.I.A., and Mr. D. R. Pack Beresford, O.B.E. (Vice-Presidents); Professor F. E. Hackett, Ph.D., and Mr. John Leonard (Hon. Secretaries); the Rev. Canon Dempsey, M.A., P.P.; Senator T. Westropp Bennett, Lucius O'Callaghan, R.H.A.; Professor J. H. J. Poole, Sc.D.; M. M. Sweetman, K.C.; P. J. Brady, Mrs. M. A. Hutton, John Good, Major M. C. Hamilton, Walter J. Walsh, Professor Paul Murphy, Sc.D.; Charles H. O'Conor, Professor Thomas J. Nolan, D.Sc.; Professor J. P. Drew, A.R.C.Sc.I.; W. Barrington, M.Inst., C.E., and Professor H. J. Seymour, B.Sc.

TO VISIT THE POPE

700 SCOTTISH PILGRIMS

Over 700 Catholics will sail in the Anchor Line liner Tuscania from Yorkhill quay, Glasgow, on Friday on what is claimed to be the first all-Catholic cruise to the Mediterranean.

Three bishops will accompany the party, for whose benefit the writing saloon on the ship will be transformed into a chapel, while in the general lounges twelve or more small altars will be erected for the celebration of daily Mass. These will be dismantled each day after the Services and prepared again on the following morning.

Practically every important place of Catholic interest on the Mediterranean will be visited, but the outstanding feature of the cruise will be the visit to the Pope at his summer residence, Castel Gandolfo.

The Tuscania will also embark passengers for the cruise at Liverpool and Dublin.

IRISH PIG TRADE

IMPROVEMENT NORTH AND SOUTH

The pig trade in the Free State and Northern Ireland continues to show a steady improvement. During the week ended August 10 last 25,022 pigs were purchased for curing in the Free State, this number being an increase of over 3,000 on the preceding week. Including 1,242 pigs exported, the total for the Free State for the week under review was 26,264, and for the thirty-two weeks ended August 10 the return, including exports and home trade, was 635,632, this being 65,000 greater than that for the same period last year.

In Northern Ireland exports and home curing accounted for 11,704 pigs for the week ending August 10 and 321,903 for the thirty-two weeks up to then, an increase of nearly 60,000 over last year.

The total trade for all Ireland in pigs for the year up to August 10 was 957,535, an increase of 118,567 over last year's figure for the same period.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S CAMPAIGN

Following the announcement of the list of meetings to be addressed by Cabinet Ministers during the autumn, Mr. Lloyd George's campaign is now to be speeded up. He will discuss it with the nine area organisers appointed by the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, which have been summoned to London for a conference at the Council's headquarters to-morrow. Details of Mr. Lloyd George's speaking tour will be completed by the end of the week, and will probably be issued on Monday. A meeting of the Executive of the Council of Action has been called for Friday.

To-Day's Motor News

AT HOME AND ABROAD

COMING SPEED EVENTS

THE PROGRESS OF DONINGTON

IMPORTANT motoring events of this week-end include the Nice Grand Prix, to be run principally along the famous Promenade des Anglais, and the Clubmen's meeting at Donington Park. The Donington meeting will be open to members of the Derby, Midland and Junior Car Clubs. In Ireland, of course, there will be the Knock speed trials on the Toomebridge-Castledawson road, and the Dublin University hill climb at Kilternan.

Another Continental meeting of the week-end will be the Swedish Summer Grand Prix, while Sunday will see the conclusion of the Spanish Tourist Trophy motor cycle meeting.

The importance of Donington is steadily increasing. English law does not permit of road racing, and Donington, a private park, provides the nearest approach obtainable across the Channel to the type of racing with which we in Ireland are familiar. There have been great developments at Donington this year, and obviously the place has possibilities exceeding the expectations of the majority of persons when it was opened first.

A new manufacturers' circuit has been created at Donington, and the Junior Car Club are to run a meeting there on 31st August, all events being confined at T.T. type cars, so that many of the machines which ran at Limerick would be ineligible. The manufacturers' circuit is just 128 yards short of two miles, as compared with the full course of two miles 1,000 yards.

By far the most important event at Donington, however, will be the Grand Prix race to be held in October. Efforts are being made to secure entries of Auto Union and Mercedes-Benz formula cars for this event, and Varzi, who is now racing for Auto Unions, is reported to have said that a representative of the factory will come over and look at the circuit.

IN ITALY

To-morrow (Thursday) the race for the Coppa Acerbo takes place over the Pescara circuit. Last year's winner was Fagioli in the Mercedes-Benz, while the late H. C. Hamilton—greatest Irish car driver of recent years—scored his last success in the Junior event.

The Scuderia Ferrari have entered eight Alfa Romeos for the Coppa Acerbo, while the Scuderia Subalpina will have their three leading drivers—Etancelin, Zehender and Siena—in the new 4,244 c.c. eight-cylinder Maseratis. Germany will be represented by the Auto Unions.

There are several English entries for the Berne Grand Prix, which is the junior version of the Swiss Grand Prix, and takes place on 25th August. Mrs. Stewart is to handle the Derby Special with which she won the women's lap record at Brooklands. There will be Earl Howe, T. P. Cholmondeley-Tapper, R. J. B. Seaman, K. D. Evans and R. E. Tongue, who drove in the Phœnix Park last year.

The Swiss Grand Prix will be supported by the leading racing teams, including Mercedes and Alfa.

THE MILAN MOTOR SHOW

The VIII. Automobile Salon at Milan will be open from the 9th to the 20th November, 1935. The Salon, which will be held for the eighth year in succession, is being organised on a more extensive scale than usual. The exhibits will be housed in the Palace of Sport at Milan and will be divided into the three sections dealing with touring cars, industrial motor vehicles and accessories and coach work respectively.

All the recent Italian models affording evidence of the efforts accomplished by Italian manufacturers not only to keep in line with foreign production, but also to meet competition on foreign markets, will be exhibited, and, owing to the large number of foreign firms taking part in the Salon, it will be possible to review the progress in motor car manufacture all over the world.

FELL OVER CLIFF IN GALWAY

MAN WHO LOST MEMORY

The adventures of a young man in Finland, Ireland and England may help the Bath police to restore him to his friends.

Since he was discovered in a street at Bath late last Wednesday night suffering from lost memory he has been able to tell the police that his name is George Verey, and that he was born of British parents in Northumberland, but when about two years old he went with his parents to live in Finland, and had spent the greater part of his life there. He served in the Finnish Air Service, and afterwards was an interpreter to the Swedish Air Line at Stockholm.

He apparently left Finland in 1932, and has since travelled in Ireland and England. He remembers falling over a cliff while camping near Spiddal, overlooking Galway Bay, and dimly remembers being in a train from Galway to Dublin and crossing the sea to a big city—he thinks it must be Liverpool, and of getting a lift in a motor car to Bristol. Beyond that he knows nothing definite.

The police state that his age is twenty-eight. He was wearing a light-grey jacket, grey flannel trousers, white plimsolls, white shirt and a brown mixture cap, and on his shirt was the name "Fred Spry, hosier, Paynton," and on a handkerchief and underclothing was written, "W. A. Grace."

FUNERAL OF CLARE PARISH PRIEST

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNIS, Tuesday.

The remains of the Rev. D. Courtney, P.P., Kilmaley, were interred in the local church grounds yesterday, following the celebration of Office and Requiem Mass. The Ven. STAMPING OUT DIPHTHERIA

IMMUNISATION A SUCCESS

THE DISEASE IN DUBLIN

THE recent report of a high death-rate from diphtheria in Cork has caused some anxiety in Dublin City and County. Interviewed on the matter, Dr. M. J. Russell, Medical Officer of Health for Dublin City, and Dr. J. A. Harbinson, Dublin County Medical Officer of Health, said that there was no cause for anxiety in either area.

Dr. Russell said that there had been a notable increase in diphtheria instances in recent years, but immunisation was being carried out intensively, 35,603 children having been immunised up to April 8th last.

Dr. Harbinson said that immunisation schemes had shown striking success in the county areas in which they had been carried out.

"It is not disputed," said Dr. Russell, "that diphtheria is a dangerous disease, which is liable to cause death or to leave serious after-effects, but it can be prevented. Medical science has found a way to protect the child from diphtheria. The treatment is harmless, painless and lasting.

"If every mother or guardian celebrated a child's first birthday by having it immunised against diphtheria the disease would become as rare as small-pox is to-day. I lay emphasis on the fact that this practice should be continued and persevered in. The recent increase in the number of diphtheria cases could be attributed to some extent to the fact that we had been enjoying comparative freedom from the disease in former years and that the disease often comes in waves. This shows that immunisation should be practised constantly.

"The disease was decidedly more deadly between the ages of one and five years, and for this reason parents should have their children immunised during the first year after birth. The maximum benefit is derived from immunisation in the first year of life, and the minimum amount of discomfort is experienced by infants.

"It must be emphasised," said Dr. Russell, "that persistency, rather than a passing enthusiasm, is the solution of the problem of diphtheria control."

"In regard to immunisation campaigns, any lapse soon results in an increase in the number of infection cases and deaths from the disease."

DISEASE CARRIERS

The greatest number of cases of diphtheria occurred in the school-going population. A few years ago a survey of the school-going population of the city, which was carried out to find the percentage of "carriers" of the microbe, showed that a number of children harboured the organism responsible for the disease in its virulent form.

"Each child carrying such a microbe in its throat or nose is a positive menace to other children, who are not immunised. In view of the findings of the survey and of the added knowledge that many of our schools present a considerable degree of overcrowding a decided effort was made to secure active immunisation against the disease in these pre-school children who would shortly be exposed to the risks of school life in this respect. In this programme the greatest efforts at immunisation are concentrated on the younger children, and it is hoped to achieve protection in seventy-five per cent. or more of the under-school-age group. If this figure can be arrived at it will avoid the necessity, in future years at any rate, of having to conduct immunisations in the schools, as these will automatically be supplied with immunised children."

The facilities for immunisation against diphtheria were provided in a manner which left no excuse for any parent not having a child protected. Thousands of pre-school children had already been protected, and much greater numbers remained to be treated if the continued presence of the disease in epidemic form was to be avoided.

The number of infections in the city had increased since 1931, and in 1934 there were fewer cases than in the previous year, when there were 1,073 infections reported. The deaths in that year numbered 111, or 10.34 per cent. of the cases. In 1934 the percentage of deaths to infections reported was 7.47.

Dr. Harbinson said that in the County Dublin immunisation had been carried out in certain areas with striking success. Since the schemes for protection had been started the only cases reported from the areas treated were of children who had not been immunised.

VICTIMS UNTREATED

The immunisation had been carried out in a "belt," taking in the towns of Clondalkin, Palmerstown, Saggart, Tallaght and Dundrum, and at present there was a scheme in course of arrangement for Finglas area. In the Saggart and Tallaght area, Dr. Harbinson said, continual reports of cases had been coming in, and the disease seemed to be endemic, but the immunisation had resulted in the bringing of these to a comparative few, and all of these few were non-immunised persons.

It was difficult sometimes to get people to accept the advantages of immunisation, but this difficulty was gradually being overcome.

The number of cases reported did not show any increase of the prevalency of the disease at the moment, but in the spring of this year there had been small epidemics in some areas, mainly due to the overcrowding in some of the houses. A slight increase in the number of cases at one time was accounted for by slight epidemics in institutions, and these had since been immunised.

There had been no case of an epidemic in the county for some time past, and during the months of June and July there had been only isolated cases of infection in different areas.

The number of deaths from the disease recently would only be known at the end of the quarter, but Dr. Harbinson said that he had not heard of any, though they probably would have been reported to him if they had occurred.

ENTERIC AMONG PILGRIMS

THIRTY-NINE CASES IN SCOTLAND

NO TRACE FOUND IN IRELAND

IN an effort to prevent any further spread of enteric fever which broke out among Scottish pilgrims upon their return from Lourdes, the Glasgow Public Health authorities are visiting all the pilgrims in their area.

Every possible precaution is being taken. There is a growing roll of fever cases, and the area from which they are reported is widening.

NEARLY FORTY CASES

The number now definitely suffering from the fever is 39, and of them 14 are in Glasgow. It is estimated that more than half the 1,100 pilgrims were from that city.

The Scottish Public Health authorities have not yet been able to establish contact with all those who made the journey to France, as many are on holiday at resorts throughout the country.

The disease has now manifested itself in the East of Scotland, who sent 70 pilgrims from Edinburgh. One woman from that area is now in hospital.

INQUIRIES IN DUBLIN

NO CASES DISCOVERED

With regard to the possibility of enteric fever having been introduced into the Free State by pilgrims who recently have been to Lourdes, Dr. M. J. Russell, Dublin City Medical Officer of Health, is pursuing investigations. So far, however, Dr. Russell has not succeeded in finding a case of infection among those whom he has visited.

Dr. Russell has visited a number of people who have been to Lourdes, and all of these have shown a clean bill of health. However, the number of pilgrims is considerable, and their residences are spread over the Free State, so that it will be necessary for the medical officers in all the areas involved to be notified, and until their investigations are complete it will not be known definitely if any infection has taken place.

The disease usually does not manifest itself until the infected person has harboured the microbe for a week or ten days, and in many cases it is not immediately recognised, so that a doctor may not be called in until the disease has been fairly well advanced.

LAST TRIBUTES TO LORD WOOLAVINGTON

COFFIN CARRIED ON FARM WAGON

In the private family burial ground adjoining the village churchyard at Graffham, Petworth, Sussex, Lord Woolavington was buried yesterday. Hundreds of people were present, including famous men and prominent racehorse owners and trainers, who mingled with village folk to pay their last tributes to a great patriot, philanthropist, sportsman, and friend of the poor.

Several jockeys visited Lavington House earlier in the day to associate themselves with the tributes, and left before the funeral.

Prominent among those at the graveside was Rass, Prince Monolulu, the racing tipster, familiar on racecourses, in top hat and morning coat, with a silver horse-shoe dangling on a ribbon from his neck. He carried a sheaf of lilies, which bore the inscription: "Your name will always be spoken well of."

The Service in the little church was choral, with the Bishop of Chichester, the Dean of Chichester, and the Rev. F. H. A. Williams, Rector, officiating.

The coffin was borne on a farm wagon, drawn by a team of horses, with police, boy scouts, and estate hands as pall bearers. Male mourners followed on foot, the route from the house being by way of a mile of road through Lavington Park. The grave, which was lined with flowers, adjoins that of Lord Woolavington's wife.

FAMOUS EDITORS

TRIBUTE TO MANCHESTER JOURNALISTS

Memorial medallion portraits of Mr. C. P. Scott and Mr. E. T. Scott, late editors of the Manchester Guardian, were unveiled last night by Mrs. J. R. Scott in the entrance hall of the Manchester Guardian head office. The portraits, which are in bronze, are the work of Mr. H. M. Miller, a Manchester sculptor, who had been commissioned to execute them by the members of the Manchester Guardian and Manchester Evening News staffs. Mr. J. R. Scott who presided, said that the memorials had not been raised by the firm or the Scott family, but by their fellow-workers in every department and grade.

Mr. W. P. Crozier, the present editor of the Manchester Guardian, paid tribute to the qualities of Mr. C. P. Scott, the great editor of the paper, and of his son, who, he said, had followed him in such a short tenure of the office.

"UNFIT TO TEACH"

CHARGE AGAINST PRIEST

BAVARIAN NAZIS' DECLARATION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MUNICH, Tuesday.

AN anti-Catholic measure at Fightelberg, near the bishop's seat of Bamberg, in Northern Bavaria, has resulted in the well-known Catholic priest, Dr. Holzer, being declared "unfit to teach German youth" by the local Nazi Government.

Dr. Holzer is charged in the party Press with "misusing his offices, both as teacher and priest, to agitate against the State and the movement" for the last two years.

He is declared guilty of "abuse of both chancel and class-room for anti-Government activity."

Dr. Holzer holds the title of Doctor of Divinity.

MASSACHUSETTS PROTEST

The German Consul-General in Boston, Baron von Tippelskirch, protested yesterday to the Speaker of the Massachusetts State House of Representatives against a resolution passed by the House on Monday condemning Nazi racial and religious persecution.

In his message to the Speaker the German Consul-General said: "I strongly protest against this unwarranted and unpardonable interference in the domestic affairs of my country, which are in no way within the jurisdiction of the representatives of Massachusetts."

The Speaker of the House replied: "In my opinion, the adoption of the resolution in no way interferes in the domestic affairs of your country, which are obviously outside our jurisdiction, but merely expresses the opinion of a group of citizens of Massachusetts on a subject which has excited world-wide interest."

UNITED STATES AND GAMES

BOYCOTT SUGGESTION BY SENATOR

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

Speaking in the Senate to-day, Senator Peter Goelet Gerry suggested that, in view of the reports of Nazi persecution of Jews and Catholics, United States sportsmen should give serious consideration to the question of America withdrawing from the Olympic Games to be held in Germany next year.

AIRMAN FINED £100

ALTERED PLANE'S CERTIFICATE

Harold V. Kimberley Atkinson, of Villa Aero, Great Milton, Oxon, was fined £50 at Thame, yesterday, for using a certificate of safety of aircraft which had been altered, and £50 for assisting in altering the certificate, and he was also ordered to pay £2 17s. costs.

Frank Harley, of Chilworth, Great Milton, was fined £5 on each of two similar summonses.

A summons against Walter Oswald Cadic, of Chilworth, for flying the aircraft which had not been certified was dismissed with a caution.

Mr. W. P. Doyle defended, and pleaded guilty to all charges.

Police Constable Hall said that on Sunday, June 9, Atkinson was giving passenger flights at Chilworth Aerodrome. He asked Atkinson for his certificate of airworthiness, and he showed him one issued with the 'plane. He then asked for his daily certificate for aircraft used for giving passenger flights, and Atkinson replied: "I don't want one. Anyone can sign an aeroplane out as airworthy. I have a certificate at the farm. I will send for it."

About half an hour afterwards Atkinson produced a certificate. The date appeared to have been altered, and he (the policeman) took possession of it. Cadic was the pilot of the 'plane.

Superintendent Rippington said that on July 4 he saw Cadic and Harley about altering the certificate from June 5 to June 8. Both said that they knew nothing about it.

Richard Platt and Harry R. Line, ground engineers at Croydon Aerodrome, said that they inspected the machine on June 5, and filled in that date when they signed the certificate.

Mr. Doyle said that there was no danger, and a mere technical breach had been committed. The machine was examined every time it went into the air. Harley was qualified as a ground engineer in Canada, and had the receipts for his money for a certificate of qualification, but had not yet received it.

RACING "POOL" A LOTTERY

EDINBURGH CASE JUDGMENT

£100 FINE IMPOSED ON BOOKMAKER

JUDGMENT was delivered in Edinburgh Sheriff Court yesterday in the case in which Thomas Strang, described as a Turf commission agent, of Hawkhill avenue, Edinburgh, and Robert Powrie, stated to be his manager, of Baronscourt terrace, Edinburgh, were charged with contraventions of the Betting and Lotteries Act of 1934.

Sheriff Donald found the charges proved and imposed a fine of £100 on Strang and admonished Powrie. He also ordered the destruction of the documents seized by the police, excluding postal orders, cheques, etc., to the value of £1,700.

Counsel for the defence intimated that an appeal would be made to the High Court.

THREE CHARGES

The charges were:—That during May 20 and June 9, 1935, while acting in concert in Hawkhill avenue (1), they sold and distributed, and had in their possession for the purpose of sale coupons in lotteries known as "The 2d. Starting Price Points Pool," organised by them weekly in connection with horse racing on certain dates in connection with which lottery money prizes were offered.

(2), that they published advertisements of the said lottery, and had in their possession, for publication to those who cared to call to examine same, lists of prize-winners in the said lotteries, contrary to the Act.

(3) That they used the premises occupied by Strang for the distribution and reception of coupons and for the purposes of organising, conducting and controlling lotteries, contrary to the Act

Strang was not present, as he was abroad.

UNCERTAIN ISSUE

Giving his judgment, the Sheriff said that it was only the other day that he had a charge before him of promoting a lottery in which a scheme of the kind in question here was used. He had found the charge proved, and the facts in this case seemed very similar.

"I would have disposed of this case at once," the Sheriff said, "but for new arguments which had been put forward. Counsel maintained that what had taken place was betting, and that they carried it on on a credit basis, and that as the scheme was a "pool" betting scheme, the accused man, as a bookmaker, was entitled to carry it on under the Betting and Lotteries Act of 1934.

"Cases illustrating the meaning of a bet were cited," the Sheriff said, "on previous decisions, mostly concerned with football 'pool' coupons, in which there was a definite issue before the subscriber.

"The position here was entirely different. The subscriber had no definite horse, and his selection was indicated by a figure, and was not for him self-determining. The result was that he might win on a horse selected by someone else which, in his opinion, had no chance of winning. The issue was, therefore, entirely uncertain.

"Such a position seemed to be so indeterminate that it could not possibly be spoken of as a bet or taken seriously as a bet."

PRESS OPINIONS

In the present instance, the client's position was entirely uncertain, and he could not accept the scheme as a betting transaction. It also was argued that subscribers to this scheme must exercise skill and judgment to have any chance of success, and that the fact was sufficient to rebut the charge that it was a lottery.

"I come to the conclusion," said the Sheriff, "that this skilled work is mostly in the reading of Press notices of race meetings, and the opinions formed thereby are mere echoes of the views of the particular papers read. It seems fair to assume that only a small proportion of the subscribers will study the Turf Press to make the simple marks on the coupon, particularly as the stake is so trifling."

He found that this scheme was in the nature of a game of chance associated with gambling, and accordingly he found the charge of promoting a lottery proved.

Mr. Doggart, solicitor for the defence, intimated that his client would lodge an application for a stated case for appeal to the High Court in due course.

CORK'S WATER SUPPLY

At the meeting of the Cork Corporation last night, in a report submitted by the acting resident engineer at the waterworks, attention was drawn to the considerable increase in the consumption of water in Cork City, and the reduced flow recorded by the meters.

Mr. Monahan, city manager, explained that this followed the spell of dry weather. The increased consumption was partly due to the numbers of new houses, as these provided many families for the first time with indepndent supplies; but, undoubtedly, there was a lot of wastage, and if the consumption was continued at the present high rate the supplies would have to be curtailed. They had prosecuted a number of property-owners, but the fines imposed were so small that these people preferred to pay the fines and allow the leaks to continue.

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION

DEVELOPMENT IN THE FREE STATE

PAPER READ AT WORLD FEDERATION

A system of education for commerce in any country must of necessity be influenced, not alone by the economic life of that country, but also by the size and variability of that life, said Mr. G. J. T. Clampett, in a paper entitled "Commercial Education in Saorstat Eireann," at a meeting of the sixth biennial conference of the World Federation of Education Associations held yesterday in Oxford.

The problem of education for commerce in the Free State, said Mr. Clampett, was to provide educational facilities of a technical kind for 35,000 persons, of whom more than half were engaged in the distributive trades. The technical education in the full time day schools was vocational. In the cities particularly the aim was to cater by specialisation for the various trades and commercial pursuits. The part-time classes almost entirely were concerned with technical education, and were organised to meet the special needs of the locality in which they operated, and especially in the cities there was a large choice of courses and classes, extending from the lowest to the highest standards, and covering a wide and comprehensive field in engineering, chemistry, science, building, commerce, art, domestic economy and rural activities. In the session 1933-34 10,228 students attended full-time day schools and 52,003 part-time classes. The total number of teachers employed was 1,293, and the total number of hours of instruction was 623,649. The total of the receipts from all sources at the disposal of the committees was £358,679.

TEACH THROUGH IRISH

It was the policy of the Department of Education that all instructions eventually should be given through the medium of the Irish language. The implementation of that policy implied that the students entering the vocational schools had a competent knowledge of Irish; that teachers were qualified to give instruction through Irish; that Irish was the language of the home, the office and the workshop. Many of the primary schools now used Irish entirely as the teaching medium, while others devoted ample time to the subject to ensure a competent knowledge at the leaving age of 14 years. The means taken to ensure that teachers were fully competent in Irish were comprehensive and very complete, and all teachers now appointed must be qualified to teach through Irish. It was anticipated that in time, when Irish was the language of the home as well as of the school, the policy of the Department of Education in regard to the language would be possible to the fullest degree. The day schools of commerce were staffed mainly by university graduates, who held the B.Comm. degree and a qualification in Irish, and in very many cases an Arts degree and the Higher Diploma in Education. The ideal teacher would be the university graduate who had some practical business training and experience, and there were many who urged that this view should receive serious consideration in future appointments. Some few teachers had as their main qualification some years of good practical business experience, and in the teaching of vocational subjects they had proved most helpful and competent. The utility of examinations always had been, and always would be, a controversial topic with educationists, said Mr. Clampett. Little more could be said than that they had their uses and misuses. Everything depended upon the object of the examination and its reactions on the day-to-day educational routine of the school. In connection with the day schools of commerce in the Free State, there was no central examination system. Each Vocational Committee was a law unto itself. The problem was one that was sure to receive early consideration, and there were many who hoped that, whatever policy might be adopted, a rigid centralised scheme would be avoided, and that decentralisation and local control, subject to general uniformity, would be an accepted fundamental.

PART-TIME TEACHING

In regard to part-time teaching, Mr. Clampett said that there was a genuine effort to make evening commercial work as practical and useful as possible. The needs of the students were studied; and, in many instances, through the medium of consultative committees, there was close and helpful co-operation between the school and the business community. The problem of staffing was considered of first importance. Specialists were engaged wherever possible for the advanced and specialised subjects. For instance, a banking official of some standing and good qualifications was in charge of the classes in banking. The question of examinations and certificates in connection with the work of evening classes was different entirely from that of the fulltime day schools. Evening students had the right to demand the opportunity of acquiring some definite and recognised acknowledgment of their work and capability.

The commerce degrees of the Irish Universities were of undoubted value to young men and women intending to follow a commercial career, especially to those for whom executive posts were waiting in the business organisations of parents or relatives. A number of commerce degree men became apprenticed to professional accountants, and during their apprenticeship years found the specialist courses provided in the schools of commerce under the authority of the City of Dublin Vocational Committee complete in every respect for their requirements.

"The Free State," concluded Mr. Clampett, "is not a laggard in the provision that she makes for the comrecial education of her young people, and the means taken bear favourable comparison with those of other countries of, perhaps, bigger population, vaster financial interests, and greater variety of commercial and industrial activities."

Rheumatism
in feet; banished by Kruschen after all else failed

It's the same old story over again. Rheumatism—crippling rheumatism and a desperate search for a remedy—bottles of this, packets of that, and tins of the other. It's the same story with the same happy ending—the discovery of Kruschen Salts. Just read this letter:—

"Two years ago I started with pains in the feet, which gradually got worse. I tried everything, but to no effect. I went, at length, to an institution for electrical and massage treatment. Whilst waiting for treatment one evening another patient advised me to try Kruschen Salts. That was twelve months ago; the relief was not sudden, but the pain and swelling gradually left my feet, and in six months I amazed my friends by taking long walks into the country, and this year I have played a good deal of tennis, a thing which I had begun to think I should never do again. Only a few weeks ago I threw away an accumulation of bottles, packets, tins, etc., containing the remains of different 'remedies' which I had tried in vain."

22nd July, 1935. C. W., Sheffield.

There is nothing like Kruschen Salts to bring blessed comfort—to drive every trace of uric acid from the system. And when poisonous uric acid—with its deposits of needle-pointed crystals—goes, there's no doubt about those rheumatic pains going too!

Tasteless in Tea

NO INCREASE IN PRICE. The large bottle of Kruschen Salts (lasts 3 months) still costs only 1/9. Do not pay more.

A categorical denial is issued by the Foreign Office in Bukharest to a newspaper report that Otto of Habsburg intends to visit Rumania shortly.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

BAHRAM'S COUGH

Stage Coach Gains a Narrow Win Against Trapper

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

FOLKESTONE, Tuesday Night.

THE disquieting news came this morning that Bahram, who was an odds-on chance for the St. Leger at the call-over of the card yesterday, coughed this morning when he was at exercise. There is more than a month to go until the Doncaster meeting, and this cough, which has been noticeable for the last week or two in isolated cases, and which is not regarded by trainers as that malignant autumn cough when the weather has begun to change, may not greatly affect his Doncaster chances.

After all, there is a month still to go until the St. Leger is run. Frank Butters, the colt's trainer, does not expect that he will lose more than five or six days' work. There is, I believe, no marked rise of temperature connected with this cough.

Copious Rain

Trainers of St. Leger horses are more pleased with themselves in the last twenty-four hours than they have been for some time, for there has been copious rain in many places. Although the downpour has not been universal, I expect that in the course of a day or two most places in England will have had their quota.

As an instance of how baked the ground has been, there was sixteen hours of steady rain here, and yet the going here this afternoon was distinctly on the firm side. All the effect the rain had was to take some of the jar out of the ground.

Distinguished Antecedents

There was a walk-over for one race, three runners only for another, and the rest of the racing was not exciting. Miss Dorothy Paget's Trapper had every chance of winning the Dungeness Handicap, but he allowed himself to be beaten a neck by the three-year-old Stage Coach, a gelding with an undistinguished record, but distinguished antecedents; for he is a half-brother to Myrobella.

Selections

There are three meetings to-morrow, the best one being at Kempton, where RADLEY WOOD may win the Greenwood Handicap.

The International Plate may be won by BERKELEY HUNT, and the Bedfont Plate by CARRICKORE.

At Haydock, THRAPSTON should win the Grand Stand Handicap, and REVELATION the Haydock Park Handicap.

Several horses have gone from Newmarket to Edinburgh, where SUDAN may win the Pentland Handicap, and SPRINGTIME the Esk Handicap.

GALTEE MORE.

FAIRYHILL'S TEST

Politesse May be Best Bet on Kempton Card

IT is not long odds against Frank Hartigan, the Weyhill trainer, bringing off a "treble" at Kempton Park to-day, with Politesse (Mortlake Plate), Bridge of Avon (International Plate) and Fairy Hill (Greenwood Handicap). All three may be ridden by Gordon Richards.

Although Bridge of Avon will be opposed by several useful-class two-year-olds, it is thought that he has only to run up to his recent home form to give the best of them a hard race. He has been rested since he ran unplaced to His Grace on this course early in June. Apparently this has been beneficial. It will be recalled that he started the season in fine style by winning at Newbury and Worcester in April.

A lot was thought of Badr-ul-Molk early in the season when she won her first two races. Two subsequent failures at Epsom and Newmarket damaged her reputation, though she showed a return to her best form when she ran Swift Arrow to a length at Sandown Park last time out.

Another who has not lived up to early season promise is Liza of Lambeth. There did not appear to be any excuse for her disappointing display at Leicester, where it may be remembered she was beaten two heads by The Drone and Cornucopia, when an odds-on chance. Before that she won in good style in a field of twenty-one at Newmarket. It is possible that she has to be caught in the right mood. I understand she is fancied at Manton, though personally I prefer others.

Berkeley Hunt should soon recover some of the 1,200 guineas paid for her after her selling race success at Lingfield Park a month ago. A good judge at Newmarket informs me that she went in great style in a gallop over the week-end.

Symphony is one of the speediest youngsters in training. In two of her four races this season she has run the opposition off their legs. She did not stay on long enough to trouble Nakomis at Newmarket last time out, but has less to do here. Moreover, she missed an easy chance at Folkestone for this. Davos filly looks the pick of the others.

I find it hard to choose between Bridge of Avon, Symphony, and Berkeley Hunt. As Weyhill advices are rather confident I shall stand

BRIDGE OF AVON.

Fairyhill has Indestructible, Radley Wood, Prize Law and Tremando to beat in the Greenwood Plate. If Radley Wood can reproduce the form he showed at Goodwood, where he just missed a place in the race won by Irongrey, he should about win.

FAIRYHILL,

however, has been thereabouts in all his races this season, and, as he won over the course in May, I shall give him the preference.

POLITESSE,

in the Mortlake Plate, may be the best bet on the card. In two of her last four races she was beaten by the smartest plater of the season in Smike. She won the others in clever style.

MAN'S PAL

has an obvious chance in the Bedfont Plate. He was none too lucky when beaten by Snooker and Quai D'Orsay at Goodwood, and the value of the form has since been advertised by the last-named.

Two of the events at Haydock Park may cut up rather badly. One of these is the Grand Stand Handicap, which Lord Derby's Thrapston will attempt to win for the second successive year. I doubt if he will give 25lb. and a beating to who has won his last two races. Although they were selling events he seems to have been given a nice chance. He does not mind the firm going.

Jack Jarvis should be the trainer to follow at Edinburgh. He will be represented in five of the six events.

SPRINGTIME,

whom he trains for Lord Rosebery, a Steward of the meeting, runs for the Esk Handicap. She should prove the best bet on the card.

GOOD SPORT AT TRAMORE

Wicklow Bay Makes Amends in Malcolmson Plate

THE annual four days' meeting at Tramore had an auspicious opening day, when in delightful summer weather an interesting card was discussed. Though runners were not as numerous as usual, on account of the hard state of the going, most of the races provided excellent finishes, the results being in abeyance until the last few yards.

Backers met with a bad reverse over the opening event, in which the odds-on favourite, Queen Gypsy, was beaten by Golden Island. Mr. J. J. Parkinson's mare went into the lead at half-way and retained it until the straight was entered, when Golden Island delivered a strong challenge and, wearing the other down, gained a neck victory.

The winner had finished a neck behind Maybird at Mallow in a mile race, and is likely to develop into a useful hurdler.

Coolnahay, who was not quite so well backed for the Atlantic Plate as Hero Queen, gained a somewhat easy victory. It was a long journey for Mr. Archie Willis to make from the North to see the horse win, and it naturally afforded him much satisfaction that his son, who is barely sixteen years of age, should ride the horse with such judgment.

Mr. A. Willis is a very popular North of Ireland sportsman and is Master of the Kilultagh, Old Rock and Chichester Harriers. It was his son's first winning ride, but he was a bit unlucky when beaten on the same horse at Leopardstown, as he lost an iron at a critical stage of that race.

Backers were again wide of the mark when they made Suir View favourite for the Dunmore Plate; for in a good finish Mr. Joe McGrath's horse was beaten by Gaultier, to whom he was conceding 21lb., and Tryon was right up with the pair.

Gaultier, who was entered to be sold for fifty sovereigns, failed to elicit a bid at the ensuing auction.

Wicklow Bay made amends for a costly failure at Leopardstown by accounting for Clarate and Satin Tag, his two opponents for the Malcolmson Memorial Plate, and registering the first success as an owner for Lady Fitzwilliam in Ireland.

The first and only Maddenstown Lodge success during the day was gained by Clear Diamond, who in the Doneraile Plate readily accounted for The Pauper and two others.

Boy of the Barrow played the part of hare before hounds all the way in the race for the Woodstown Plate, and completed a double event for the Gowran trainer, John Kirwan.

COUGHING EPIDEMIC

BAHRAM AND PLASSY VICTIMS

The Aga Khan's brilliant colt, Bahram, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas and the Derby, and a hot favourite for the St. Leger, was found to be coughing when brought out with the other members of Mr. Frank Butters's team for exercise at Newmarket yesterday morning. He was sent back to the stables immediately.

The colt had displayed fine form in a mile and a quarter gallop on Saturday. He was quite well yesterday, when, at the betting call-over at the Victoria Club, London, he was made an 11 to 10 on chance for the St. Leger.

"It is too early to say whether the colt's chance in the St. Leger will be affected," said Mr. Frank Butters. "If it is only a mild form of coughing, he may be able to resume work in five or six days. I cannot say more at the moment."

The St. Leger will be run at Doncaster on September 11. It was planned to give Bahram an outing before the St. Leger in the Richemount Stakes at Hurst Park on August 23.

Theft, another famous horse in Mr. Butters's team, is also coughing. He is engaged in an important race to be run at Ostend very shortly.

Field Trial, trained by Mr. Joe Lawson at Manton, is considered to be Bahram's chief rival for St. Leger honours.

Mr. Lawson, when informed that Bahram was coughing, said: "That is very bad luck, indeed. Several of the older horses in my stable are coughing, but, so far, Field Trial is free of it. I am hoping that he will continue so. Still, with all this coughing about, it would not surprise me if at any moment he, too, caught it."

Another St. Leger candidate who is coughing is Lord Derby's Plassy, trained by Mr. Colledge Leader at Newmarket. The trouble in his case is only slight. He was given trotting exercise on the private ground yesterday.

Most training quarters have been affected by the coughing epidemic. It is believed to be due to the dust thrown up by the horses when galloping on the sun-baked courses.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Closing of Entries

Owners and trainers should note that entries close to-day for Phœnix Park, Dundalk, and Limerick Junction meetings.

Latest St. Leger Betting

Field Trial and Fair Trial were both in demand for the St. Leger up and down the country at yesterdays call-over prices.

The demand for the Manton colt Field Trial was much more substantial than that for Fred. Darling's charge.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH

THE CURRAGH, Tuesday.

This morning opened bright and fine, but only progressive work was done by our teams.

BEHAN sent his two-year-olds, Poor Fellow, Lucky Catch, Catalino, Ballybunion, Hocus Pocus and Ballyjamesduff, five furlongs at a steady pace in pairs.

COLLINS'S Colin Star and Fenestra traversed five furlongs at a nice pace. Doonbeg, Joyeuse Garde and Battlestown cantered steadily over the same ground. M.J., Blue Man, Jovial Prince, Ombee, Curragh Star, Royal Sceptre, All Wit and Dancing Comet took matters easily.

J. DAWSON'S Lady Turk did a nice gallop over four furlongs. The remainder of the Rathbride Manor team, including Sherdoon, Royal Band, Dawmar, Jorto, Shady Lane, Mill Man and Kitty's Pet were given a spell of walking and trotting exercise.

NEWMARKET NOTES

How the St. Leger Candidates are Faring

NEWMARKET, Tuesday.

At present the chief topic of conversation at headquarters concerns the welfare of our two St. Leger candidates—the favourite, Bahram, and Plassy. Bahram was at exercise with the rest of the Fitzroy House team to-day. He coughed a few times, and his trainer, Frank Butters, sent him home. It is only a dry cough. There has been no rise of temperature with the colt. Plassy was kept to the private ground, and was given a spell of trotting exercise. He, too, has no temperature, and is feeding well. He is well forward in condition, and a few days' rest will not prove detrimental to his chance at Doncaster. A light rest will not do any harm to Bahram, but it may prevent him from fulfilling his engagement at Hurst Park next week. Bahram's stable companion, Theft, is also a victim of the epidemic.

Near Relation, Mahmoud, Baber Shah, Pursuivant, Hairan, Fal Ma and Grecian Goddess were given a couple of five furlong canters.

R. J. Colling was on the racecourse side. He gave Foude de Caisse (P. Evans) a fast pace gallop over one mile and a quarter, Generous Gift going with him the first seven furlongs.

Digby gave Intervener a sharp five furlong spin, and, if beaten for her engagement at Kempton Park, it will not be through lack of condition.

Earl gave Lothario a good pace gallop over one mile and a quarter. The spin was probably in view of his engagement in the Meadow Plate at Windsor on Saturday. Having done so well since finishing second to Fast Castle at Sandown Park, he should as nearly as possible win.

Maid of Africa (G. Archibald), York and Miss Pick were given a good five furlong spin. Maid of Africa seems to have lost some of her speed. We may have to wait some time before the daughter of Kopi and Mayrian will be back to sprinting form. Miss Pick, who won her last race, should win again in the near future, while York should also win again before the season closes. They both moved well this morning.

C. Leader gave Leger Day, with Quashed and Snaefell, a good mile and a quarter spin. Leger Day is in good trim for the South Lancashire Handicap on Thursday.

We shall be represented at each fixture to-morrow. At Kempton Park the Feltham Selling Plate will begin proceedings, as the company will be moderate.

PENDRAGON

may be good enough to win.

Whitaker has got Thurlestone in good trim for the Mortlake Selling Plate, but the chance of

After running a good race against Solenoid at Chester did not run up to expectations in the Wokingham Stakes at Ascot. The company in the Bedfont Plate is not brilliant, and he should as nearly as possible win.

Symphony, Berkeley Hunt and

are due to contest the International Plate. I give Badr Ul Molk the preference. She ran a respectable second to Swift Arrow at Sandown Park, and she should win.

Edinburgh:—3.0, Hustle; 3.30, Eton Blue; 4.0, Lavinia; 4.30, Springtime; 5.0, Petit Bleu.

Haydock Park:—2.15, Revelation; 3.15, Thrapston (next best); 3.45, Son of the Morning; 4.40, Eddystone.

GAELIC GAMES

A GREAT HURLING RECORD

(By PAT'O.)

Limerick hurlers broke all records by winning their thirty-second successive match in the Munster final at Cork on Sunday. Tipperary gave the champions a much harder game than did Cork. Indeed, Limerick would have been in arrears at half-time had the goal-keepers been equal. While Griffin let some soft balls through, Scanlan kept a wonderful goal. To the Ahane man more than any other Limerick owed their big margin.

Cork's Athletic grounds have been very much improved. The approaches are ample, and there was an efficient turnstile service. The local clubs had 100 stewards on the side-line, but their services were only called on once—when a Tipperary man was injured in the first half. Mr. J. O'Regan, the well-known All-Ireland hurler, refereed with much skill. He had the players in perfect control, though feeling ran high, both inside and outside the rails. Outstanding on the Tipperary side was Phil Purcell (captain) at left-half, where he held John Mackey in check throughout. Limerick were without P. Clohessy and J. O'Connell, but had useful substitutes in Power and David Clohessy.

A REMARKABLE STROKE

Whether it was that Tipperary marked their men more closely or not, the fact remains that Limerick did not shine as against Cork. They seemed slower and more disjointed than recently, though Howard deputised well at centre-half. Limerick's captain (T. Ryan) put in a brilliant hour's work. He was well marked by Gilmartin, but Ryan was fast and elusive. He showed fine anticipation, and every ball he hit landed near the square. McMahon, Limerick's crack full forward, was well held by McLoughlin, but his wing men used every opening, and crossing passes from D. Clohessy to M. Mackey and Close were a feature.

When Limerick scored their fourth goal the game was lost and won. With the wind behind them, they gave Tipperary's backs a very busy time. One remarkable ball was lifted by M. Ryan on his own quarter-line, and it carried the 100 yards to the square, hopping over the goalkeeper's head for a point. This was one of the longest balls hit in modern hurling.

Kilkenny, visitors to the Munster final, have won fresh heart for their game against the champions at Croke Park on September 1st. Tipperary proved that it is possible to hold Limerick for forty minutes. Should Kilkenny do this it will be a thrilling final, as Kilkenny are the best finishing county in the game.

It was Limerick's third successive Munster championship; they have not lost a match since the final of 1933, against Kilkenny.

CAVAN FANCIED

Tipperary minor hurlers are the smartest side of many good counties in Munster. They are fast and skilful, with a great back line. They should win from Antrim at Croke Park next Sunday and go forward to meet Kilkenny's unbeaten side in the final.

I learned in the South that Tipperary footballers are making earnest preparation for next Sunday's game against Cavan. Twenty players are in training, but they are more hopeful than confident. Yet they expect to give the Ulster champions a good game, though their Munster form has not been impressive. Cavan are at their best just now, I think they will win and qualify to meet the Kildare-Mayo winners.

The latter game is the most discussed semi-final of many years. So widespread is the interest that Mr. O'Keeffe and his council have found it necessary to play it at Croke Park. No other grounds could be found to accommodate the expected attendance. Kildare did not altogether please their followers against Louth. There was a looseness here and there, and a want of precision in attack, which needs attention. The Kildare team will have to knit closer by Sunday week, and Mayo's open style will suit the Leinster champions. Yet the opinion of experts is that Mayo will be 1935 champions. In twelve months of busy football Mayo have gone from success to success. Their victories over Fermanagh, Tipperary, and Galway (champions) were the result of concerted football and perfect understanding in attack. They are the fastest fifteen in training, having weight in the right place.

Armagh juniors played good football against Derry, and will extend the southern provinces in the later stages.

In connection with an alleged substitution of a horse a jockey has been arrested by the French Scotland Yard at Bordeaux. A warrant for his arrest was issued two months ago.

GLOUCESTER TRIUMPH

South Africans Meet with the First Defeat of the Tour

After going through nearly four months of their tour and playing twenty-three first class matches, including four Test matches with England, without defeat, the South Africans suffered their first reverse yesterday at Cheltenham, Gloster beating them by 87 runs. The South Africans were all put out in their second innings for 201, Sinfield following his century in the county's first innings by taking five wickets for 31. In the match he scored 131 and took eight wickets for 72.

The tourists wanted 289 runs to win at the start of the day, and they looked to have a chance of victory when at the fall of their fourth wicket they had 150 on the board. However, the next six men were out for a further 51.

Gloster, it will be remembered, accomplished a remarkable feat in 1930 at Bristol, where they played a "tie" match with the Australians.

Derbyshire achieved a great victory over Essex at Chesterfield, where they captured the visitors' last five wickets in forty minutes for 47 runs, and so won by 21 runs. The latter half of a match of remarkable fluctuations was largely a triumph for the brothers Pope, and more particularly for George, the younger. Following their hurricane hitting of the previous day, they shared six wickets in the visitors' venture.

George was mainly responsible for the final collapse. In seven overs, four of them maidens, he claimed four successes for 12 runs, and 9 of these came in one over, in which Eastman and Evans each got him to the boundary.

ROYAL RETAIN THE BANKERS' CUP

The Bankers' Cup final was decided last evening at the Leinster ground, Rathmines, Royal winning by 30 runs. It was the sixth success for Royal, the holders, in the nine years the competition has been in existence. Over night Royal had been all out for 119. Provincial began badly, losing Cunningham, Scott and Ballagh for 12. Ruddle, who had opened, and Rafter, put on 36 for the fourth wicket, but Heeney was bowling in fine form, and had the first four wickets for 9 runs. Ruddle hit out in good style, and had got 68 when he was ninth out at 88, and the innings ended a run later after lasting an hour and fifty minutes. Ruddle's innings included a 6, a 5 and 10 fours. Henney bowled in capital fashion, and secured eight wickets for 25, while Shanks had two for 22. Score:—

GOLF

SOUTH OF IRELAND CHAMPIONSHIP

HOLDER REACHES THE SEMI-FINAL

R. M. Saunders, the holder, M. O'Loughlin, J. Garrahy and S. Martyn have reached the semi-final of the South of Ireland championship, two rounds being played yesterday at Lahinch.

In the morning Saunders was brought to the 19th hole by the consistent golf of the young Ennis player, Des Torrens. In the evening he was out in 37, to be only one up on J. Mallin. The latter squared at the eleventh, but was beaten at the seventeenth. P. Mohan, by brilliant golf, knocked out T. Woods, the Garda Siochana champion, only to succumb to M. O'Loughlin in the afternoon.

P. O'Flynn, the scratchman from Galway, went under to the powerful driving and sound putting his club-mate, J. Garrahy, who produced the same form again in the afternoon to beat D. M. Sexton at the fourteenth. S. Martyn, after beating M. Graham, of Limerick, at the eighteenth, had an easy victory over the Cork player, S. H. McCarthy, later on.

SECOND ROUND.

P. Mohan (Ennis) beat T. Woods (Portmarnock)—1 hole.
M. O'Loughlin (Lahinch) beat O. Brown (Tuam)—5 and 4.
J. Mallin (Ennis) beat T. Lenihan (Galway)—2 and 1.
R. M. Saunders (Killiney) beat D. Torrens (Ennis) at 19th.
D. M. Sexton (Lahinch) beat J. R. Scovell (Birr)—2 holes.
J. Garrahy (Galway) beat P. O'Flynn (Galway)—2 and 1.
S. Martyn (Limerick) beat M. L. Graham (Limerick)—1 hole.
S. H. McCarthy (Douglas) beat O. Garry (Lahinch)—5 and 4.

THIRD ROUND.

O'Loughlin beat Mohan—4 and 3.
Saunders beat Mallin—2 and 1.
Garrahy beat Sexton—5 and 4.
Martyn beat McCarthy—5 and 3.

LAWN TENNIS

HARD FIGHT FOR SHAFFI

H. F. SLOAN'S SUCCESS AT BRAY

There were a number of interesting matches at Bray yesterday in the County Wicklow Championships but no surprises, all the leading players duly qualifying in their various competitions.

L. Shaffi, the English player, had to fight hard in the morning to beat R. J. Leonard, who hit some fine forearm winners and served well until he unaccountably dropped his service when leading 5-4 in the first set. After that Shaffi always seemed to have a little in hand, though he made many mistakes off the ground through over-driving.

To-day Shaffi meets R. J. Sandys, who beat P. A. Ryan in straight sets, but only after a desperate struggle for the second one, in which Ryan had several set points.

One of the "seeded" players in C. F. Scroope was eliminated, but it was not altogether unexpected. After taking the first set at 6-4 against H. F. Sloan by crisp, forceful driving, his lack of speed about the court began to tell, and Sloan won very easily in the end.

There were no outstanding matches in the women's singles, except for a hard-fought base-line duel between Mrs. H. M. Read and Miss V. Mahony, in which the latter, after overcoming a bad start, had just a little more pace and accuracy than her opponent on her forearm wing. Details:—

MEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP—Third Round.

R. J. Sandys beat P. A. Ryan—6-2, 10-8.
L. Shaffi beat R. J. Leonard—7-5, 6-4.
A. E. Fannin beat P. E. Stewart—6-4, 6-0.

IRISH JUNIOR CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Several interesting and well-contested matches, including a number that went the full distance, were witnessed in the second day's play of the Irish junior close championships at Rushbrooke. The local player, J. Harman, brother of the holder of the junior title, won his first round match against M. Ronayne after a hard struggle.

Sheila Blundell, the holder, had another easy victory in the second round of the girls' junior singles, and is expected to retain her title for another season. The diminutive Dublin player, Maeve Brennan, who is only eleven years of age, had a splendid three-set victory against Hilda Jermyn. Results:—

Boys' Open Singles.—First Round completed—J. Harman beat M. Ronayne—1-6, 6-4, 8-6. A. Kearney beat B. Baker—6-1, 6-2. F. Dawson beat E. Bagwell—2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Second Round—P. D. Delany beat D. O'Riordan—6-1, 6-0. S. Craig w.o., P. Adams scr. J. Mooney beat C. E. Hall—6-1, 6-3. F. Cosgrave beat M. Barrett—6-2, 6-4.

Girls' Open Singles.—First Round completed—Maraquita Humphreys beat Primrose Scanlon—4-6, 7-5, 6-1. Pauline Robertson beat Maeve Dwyer—6-3, 6-1.

Second Round—Mary Frewen beat Caroline McFetridge—6-3, 6-1.

Boys' Open Singles (Junior).—First Round completed—R. Frewen beat C. Mahony—6-3, 6-4.

Second Round—M. Mahony beat R. A. Adams—6-4, 6-0.

Girls' Open Singles (Junior).—Second Round completed—Zelie Godfrey beat Nancy Humphreys—6-4, 6-0. Daphne Newsom beat Daphne Lyons—6-2, 6-3. Sheila Blundell beat Pamela Goodbody—6-1, 6-3. Maeve Brennan beat Hilda Jermyn—3-6, 6-1, 6-1. Sheila Dwyer beat Honor Mahony—6-2, 6-0. Mary Kelly beat Doreen Dwyer—6-1, 6-3. Evie Hallinan beat Coolen Dwyer—6-3, 6-3.

BOWLING

MARPER CUP FINAL

G. W. Cooper (Kenilworth), 24; D. H. Stephen (Kenilworth), 20.

George Cooper won the single-handed championship of the Free State (Marper Cup) for the fifth time last night on the Leinster Green, where he defeated D. H. Stephen, a clubmate, by 24 shots to 20.

Although Cooper won, a share of the credit must go to Stephen, who made a wonderful recovery. In the second portion of the game, when Cooper led 18-11, Stephen pegged him back, and at one period of the game led by 20-19. In what looked like the concluding end, Stephen was lying two shots when Cooper carried the jack for a single, a really clever shot. Going to the last end the score was 20-all. Cooper, with his usual good judgment, secured four shots, to give him victory in what was one of the best finals seen in the Marper Cup.

ANGLING

WATERVILLE

The week ended 11th August was the worst of the season, so far as results and conditions were concerned. The days were too bright and sultry, and several visitors did not go out at all. GREYHOUND RACING

GRAND NATIONAL HEATS

SEAN'S BROTHER WINS CLOSE FINISH

Constant Chase and Sean's Brother were the winners of their respective heats in the second round of the Irish Grand National last night at Harold's Cross Park. The former led all the way to win by four lengths, but Sean's Brother had only half a length to spare from Rathlin Prince, who had held the lead for the greater part of the journey. Connaught Ram continued a winning sequence by taking the Leinster Plate, but it was only by a neck that he won from Travel and Try, after an exciting race up the straight. Details:—

BOXING

IRISH WELTER-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Mr. Gerald Egan, the Irish-American promoter, who has permanently established his Irish headquarters in Dublin, will stage another first-class show at Dalymount Park on next Friday night. The main attraction will be a twelve 3-minute bout for the Irish Welter-weight championship between the holder, Billy Gilmore, of Belfast, and the young and promising Cork lad, Mossy Condon, who gave such a clever display on his first Dublin appearance. In the event of Condon winning the title he will leave for the United States at the end of October on a tour which Mr. Egan has in contemplation.

Ireland's Light-weight champion, George Kelly, is matched against Eddie Jones, of Newcastle, a rugged fighter, with victories over Bert Cantor, Tommy Dexter, Spike Whitehouse, Archie Wilkie and others. It should be a stirring bout. Tim Doyle is set a hard task, his opponent being Pat Healy, the North of England champion, who is substituting for Pat McLeod, of Scotland.

There will be six contests in all, the others being Dan Ryan (Dublin) v. Barney Smith (London), Boy Linehan (Cork) v. Darkie Baker, one of the best of the English feather-weights, and Kid Kelly (Cork) v. Ginger Lecky (Belfast).

The first contest is timed for 8 o'clock, and the Welter-weight Championship will be staged at 9 o'clock. Reserved seats can be obtained at Messrs. Elvery's, Clery's, Crotty's and Coady's.

HANDBALL

PERRY AGAIN WINS THE SOFT BALL TITLE

Yesterday, at the Dépôt, P. Perry won the All-Ireland (Garda) Senior Soft Ball Championship for the fourth year in succession on beating V. Mullaney in three straight games by 21-13, 21-6, 21-9.

Perry, who is also the holder of the All-Ireland Open Championship, displayed his usual brilliance in court craft, and the issue was never in doubt from the start.

Mullaney at times was very good at individual strokes, and many of his kills in the first game brought applause from a crowded gallery, but the further the game progressed the more hopeless his task appeared, and his play deteriorated towards the end.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

A NEW FIXTURE FOR THE FREE STATE

At a meeting of the Free State League last night it was decided to accept the invitation to send a representative side to play Leeds United on September 30th. The Lord Mayor (Alderman A. Byrne, T.D.) and Mr. O. Grattan Esmonde, T.D., will be asked to accompany the team.

MULLINGAR RESULTS—Slane Royal (evens), Inny Wave (6/4), Hot Jet (2/1), Landslide (evens), Hearty Kitty (3/1), Flying Imp (3/1), Hasty Con (3/1), Monroe Lass (3/1).

DUNMORE PARK RESULTS—Raby's Rousing (9/2), Head of the Walk (4/6), Cheerie Tim (9/4), Castledown (8/11), Ballyvarley Boy (6/1), Henry Joy (4/1), Finn Fender (5/2).

DUBLIN QUIET

LOCAL ISSUES SUPPORTED

RAILS STRONG

There was a decided lull in markets on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and big Industrials were easier inclined. Locally, however, a fairly good tone prevailed.

The Free State Funds held steady, but Land Bonds gave way, and War Loan fell 6s. 3d.

Banks showed little alteration.

There was renewed good buying of Guinness units, which resulted in a rise of several pence.

B. and I. Steam Pref. inclined higher, and Grand Canal issues, which were quoted ex dividend, showed a harder trend.

Rails were in request. Great Northern Ord. rose a point and the Pref. gained two points, while Great Southern Pref. finished 2¼ points higher.

Alliance Gas Ord. further improved, and the Deb. advanced to 100½.

May Roberts Pref. rose nearly 1s., and Sunbeam Wolsey Pref. improved to 21s. 6d. x.d., while Ranks (Ireland) Pref. and Irish Sugar Pref. hardened a shade.

Coats Ord. made good headway, but Courtaulds drooped to 59s. Imperial Tobaccos were lowered 1s. Ford Motors and Vickers Ord. shaded off, but Imperial Chemicals hardened to 35s. 3d.

LONDON CHEERFUL

FRESH SUPPORT FOR INDUSTRIALS

Although business was smaller than on the preceding day, sentiment on the London Stock Markets yesterday was again cheerful, and with the exception of gilt-edged and a few other issues which eased owing to profit-taking, prices continued on the upgrade. Chief among the abundance of interesting features was renewed buying of Oil shares and certain Industrials, especially Aircraft, Shipping and Motor shares.

Trading in the gilt-edged section was limited by talk of new loan operations, and, with some operators taking advantage of the recent rise, the tendency was on the dull side. Old Consols lost ½ to 87, and another fall of ½ occurred in Irish Free State Land Bonds, but other declines did not exceed ¼. The Foreign Bond market was another rather dull spot. The recent recovery in Brazilians was not held, owing to revived fears regarding the debt service, while Chinese descriptions dropped back on realisation, and a similar reason accounted for falls in Peruvian Corporations. Japanese attracted a few buyers, however, and European issues though quiet displayed firmness.

After early dulness a little support was received for British Rails, but at the close only London and North-Eastern Preferred Ord. and Deferred Ord. were higher. These issues were favoured in view of the prospect of increased industrial activity on the North-East coast. Foreign Rails continued uninteresting, but in the Colonial section "Canpacs" were again bought and added a further ⅛ to 10⅞. American Rails also displayed strength, and several fresh rises of a point were registered.

As a result of a reduction in the volume of business there were fewer important movements in the Industrial section than on Monday, but the tendency continued firm. Aircraft shares were in strong demand in anticipation of the placing of Government contracts, and, since it is expected that the established companies will obtain the bulk of the work, interest was concentrated on the shares of these concerns. Bristol Aero and Hawker Siddeley both made fresh headway.

Interest in the Motor group was encouraged by Sir Herbert Austin's remarks regarding the prospects of the industry, while the Shipping and Iron and Steel sections were other active markets. Various Brewery issues also received support, and the news that contracts are to be placed shortly for television equipment stimulated interest in Bairds and E.M.I. In other directions Cable stocks improved on the idea that trans-Atlantic traffics will increase, and Electrical Equipments responded to the prospect of good orders.

There was no material expansion in trading in the Mining groups and prices of gold shares again moved narrowly, closing without important change. Tin shares continued to change hands freely, but fresh support was counteracted by profit-taking, and consequently final rates showed little alteration. Good reports regarding the U.S. oil position, and the belief that conditions in the industry are likely to improve in coming months, caused renewed buying of Oil shares, and prices again improved.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Transport "C" Dividend in October

The London Passenger Transport Board announced yesterday that the Minister of Transport has prescribed that the period within which the Board shall submit to him their reports and accounts for the years 1933-34 and 1934-35 shall be not later than October 31 next. The Minister has further prescribed that a payment to the holders of London Transport "C" stock on account of interest in respect of the first and second years of the Board's operations shall be made not later than the same date. The Board will meet on October 3 to determine the rate of such payment.

Indian Contract for Marconi

It is understood that the Government of the Nizam of Hyderabad has decided to place an order with the Marconi Company for the supply of two broadcasting stations. These stations are being designed and constructed at the Marconi works at Chelmsford. The Marconi Co. is also being entrusted with the supply of complete studio equipment, and all the necessary gear for outside broadcasting.

More Normal Tin Market

Following the increase in the tin production quota, and a reversal of its policy by the Buffer Pool, tin dealings on the London Metal Exchange are returning to something like normal. The turnover on Monday amounted to 380 tons, as compared with the 500 tons which has been the daily total for many weeks past. The backwardation, which has been the chief complaint of dealers, is slowly being reduced with the fall in the cash price of tin, and as soon as the new supplies come on, the market stringency in the cash position should be a thing of the past. Stock Exchange dealers are now hoping that the market for tin shares, which, owing to the uncertainty surrounding the metal has been extremely idle, will now resume its activity. High yields are already obtainable on many shares, remarks the Evening Standard, and there are good prospects of increased dividends.

Canadian Wheat Crop Estimate

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics' crop report has been issued in Ottawa. The winter wheat crop is estimated at 13,300,000 bushels, against final estimates of 6,724,000 bushels in 1934 and 14,031,000 bushels in 1933. The winter rye crop is estimated at 11,000,000 bushels. The condition index of spring wheat is 61, against 63 a year ago. This report is based on conditions at the end of July. Since then rust infection has continued to damage the grain crops in Manitoba and in the Eastern third of Saskatchewan, and some damage has been done elsewhere.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

TONE CONTINUES FAVOURABLE

TEXTILES REVIVED

Fairly active conditions again prevailed in most sections of the Industrial market yesterday, and although there were fewer important price movements some further satisfactory gains were recorded. The news that contracts are to be placed for Television equipment brought in buyers of "Emmies" and the Baird issues. Afternoon advices from Wall Street continued favourable, and quite a good turnover was reported among the trans-Atlantic counters after official hours in the "Street." Cable and Wireless stocks continued in the ascendant. Marconi Marine improved. Among Film shares, British and Dominions further advanced in anticipation of the interim report.

As a result of fresh buying orders the upward movement in Iron and Steel shares made further headway. Dorman Long continued in demand, and Cammell Laird, Consett Iron and others advanced. Tube Investments reacted.

AIRCRAFT FEATURING.

In anticipation of Government contracts, Aircraft and kindred descriptions continued in request. Bristol Aeroplane shares again met with a keen demand, and Rolls-Royce, Handley Page Participating Prefs. and several others made headway.

An encouraging statement by Sir Herbert Austin regarding the outlook for the motor industry was responsible for a demand for Austin shares. Others in the group had an irregular tendency.

Under the influence of possible good orders resulting from the railway schemes, Electrical Equipment shares continued to receive attention. British Insulated and Henleys were prominent.

BREWERIES FIRM.

There was some irregularity among Breweries at one time, but they finished with a firm appearance under the lead of Bass Ratcliff, which gained 1s. 6d. Guinness, however, finished lower.

Tobacco did not move to any material extent, but Tobacco Securities Trust Deferred continued in the ascendant.

Firmness continued to be displayed by Newspaper shares.

Textiles were more active. Coats and Fine Spinners finished 1s. higher. Bleachers and several others improved.

In the Stores group, Marks and Spencers were inquired for, and Woolworths were steady.

Among Provision and Catering descriptions, Tate and Lyle continued a dull spot. The two Unilevers were the shade harder.

Shipping descriptions again came in for a fair amount of attention, fresh supporting orders being received for Clan Line, Furness Withy, P. and O. Deferred, and Cunards.

MISCELLANEOUS FIRM.

The tone remained firm in the Miscellaneous section, although a little scattered profit-taking was apparent. Imperial Chemicals were in demand in the late dealings, and were finally 9d. to the good, while the Deferred and Preference were also marked up. Borax Deferred moved in favour of holders, but British Oxygens came on offer. Griffiths Hughes provided another bright spot. Beechams Deferred put on a few pence further, and Boots were firm. Dunlops rallied, and Triplex appreciated further.

OIL SHARES MAINTAINED

Interest in Oil shares was well maintained yesterday, and, instead of being confined to the recognised leaders, embraced several of the more speculative descriptions. Firmness prevailed from start to finish, although dealers reported a slightly smaller turnover than on Monday.

RUBBERS BRIGHTER

The improvement in conditions noted in the Rubber Share market on Monday was maintained yesterday, and, with many issues attracting attention the tone was brighter than for some time past. United Sua Betong were again supported and added another 7½d. to 54s. 4½d., while Rubber Trust and Anglo-Dutch were among those which gained 6d. Other movements, though small, were all in the right direction. Quiet conditions prevailed in the commodity section, but the tendency was fairly steady, spot rubber selling at 5¾d. per lb.

LATEST CLOSING AND STREET PRICES

THE MONEY MARKET

FALL IN SILVER

The price of silver gave way on the London Silver market yesterday under the weight of heavy selling by Eastern speculators. The spot price fell 1/16d. to 29 11/16d. and the forward rate ⅛d. to 29 11/16d. for both positions. The selling offers have resulted from fears that the continued failure of the United States authorities to buy except at steadily declining prices presages an imminent modification of the American silver policy.

There was a considerable increase in the volume of gold dealings yesterday, about 180 bars, approximately valued at £505,000, being disposed of. This compares with £266,000 on Monday. The price fell 1½d. to 140s. 3½d. per fine ounce. This price included a premium of 6d. over the dollar at 4.97⅜ and of 2d. over the franc at 75.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES.

Some lively dealings in American dollars, due to heavy buying of bar silver in the London bullion market on account of the American Treasury, provided the outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market yesterday. The currency naturally showed a weak tendency as a result of the activities, though the actual net depreciation on the day was but moderate. Meanwhile the European gold currencies continued to be subject to selling pressure, despite fairly large operations by the London authorities, and closed with moderate losses in terms of the pound. The control actually held the franc exchange in the neighbourhood of the overnight close until the late afternoon, when the cessation of official operations brought a last-minute movement in favour of London. In addition to the steady efflux of capital from France, Swiss quarters were selling Swiss francs against gold purchases in the London market yesterday. With the exception of the French franc, the European gold currencies were quoted at slightly wider discounts for forward delivery yesterday.

LONDON MINING MARKETS

KAFFIRS FINISH WITH FIRMER TONE

During the greater part of the day the Mining market remained in a very subdued mood, with the general tendency, if anything, remaining rather dull. Towards the end of the afternoon, however, sentiment improved appreciably in some sections, and where this was so dealers were able to report a small, but welcome, increase in business. These remarks applied more particularly to Kaffirs, among which several issues finished with useful improvements on balance after having been lower during the morning. Even so, movements throughout the list proved irregular, initial losses not being always recovered. Tin shares attracted a fair amount of attention, and rises of a few pence were common throughout the list, the Malayans being particularly favoured. Closing prices:

MANCHESTER.—On offer, beasts 1,101, increase 66; sheep and lambs 8,494, increase 480. Irish entries included 253 fat cattle, decrease 10; and 23 dairy cows, increase 6. The larger supply of fat cattle met with quiet demand, and prices were easier in consequence. Lambs in steady request, with little or no alteration in values. In fat cattle choice small heifers quoted 7d. to 7½d., other first grade heifers and handy-weight bullocks 6½d. to 6¾d., strong bullocks 6d., good fat young cows up to 5d., small Welsh lambs 11d., others 9½d. to 10½d., ewes 5½d. to 6½d. per lb.; Irish cows, suitable for dairy purposes, £17 to £21 per head.

CAMBRIDGE.—Beasts, 241. Beef, 1st, 40/-; 2nd, 35/-; 3rd 32/-. Sheep 875; mutton, 1st, 9d.; 2nd, 8d.; lamb, 11d.; 2nd, 9d. Pigs 941; pork bacons, 11/6; cutters, 12/-; porkers, 12/-. Calves 151. Fat cattle supplies below the average, and values 1/6 per cwt. cheaper. Fat sheep and lambs larger offerings, and 1d. to 2d. per lb. lower. Fat pigs not so many to hand, and business distinctly brisker all round. Store pigs a good show, and values fully 1/- per head dearer. Veal and rearing calves slow demand and much cheaper.

DERBY.—Average supply; quiet. Handy heifers 7d., heavy 6½d., young cows 5½d. to 6d., thirds 4d. to 5d. Sheep—Small supply, fair trade; lightweights 10d., heavy 8d., ewes 5d. Lambs plentiful; good demand, 1/-. Calves indifferent, 6d. to 8d. per lb. Pigs—Short supply, firm; porkers 11/-, baconers 12/-, sows 7/6 per score.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN.—Buyers continue in a cautious mood, with values reduced to clear stocks. White oats 11/6 to 13/6, and blacks 10/6 to 11/6 per barrel delivered.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT—The cargo market presented quiet features, and prices eased following lower overseas cables. The Canadian Bureau report was less bullish than expected, which resulted in some selling pressure, while Russian descriptions were freely affected. On balance Manitoba grades ruled 7½d. per quarter lower. Australian Plate and Russian 3d. down. The Llangollen (7,200 tons) New South Wales bulk 28th August-7th September sold late Monday at 25/9. Yesterday's cargoes of No. 1 Northern Manitoba (Atlantic) shipment ready to load sellers 30/10½, No. 2 do. ready to load 29/10½, West Australian August 27/-, South do. August 26/6, New South Wales August 26/-. Parcels inactive, and Manitoba sorts 6d. to 9d. per quarter easier, and Plate 3d., but Australian, also French and Russian, obtainable on former terms. No. 1 Northern Manitoba (Vancouver) August sellers 30/1½, do. Atlantic August 31/1½, No. 2 do. Vancouver August 28/9, do. Atlantic August 30/-, No. 3 do. Vancouver August 27/4½, do. August 19/-, No. 1 Canadian feed (Atlantic) August 18/3, mixed feed August 11/-, Plate f.a.q. quality August-September 13/6 per quarter of 320lb. c.i.f.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—Overseas markets were worse than expected and Canadian Bureau report less bullish than looked for, which caused a heavy decline in forward deliveries of wheat here during early trading. Then prices recovered moderately, fluctuated according to the offerings, but showed a decided improvement in the afternoon on sellers becoming more reserved, finishing considerably over worst point, though marking a substantial loss on the day. C.i.f. parcels neglected, nominally unchanged to 6d. per qr. lower. No. 1 Manitoba Aug. quoted 31/-, and Rosario-Santa Fe 63½lb. Aug. 24/- per qr. C.i.f. parcels River Plate MAIZE 1½d. lower; afloat sold at 14/6 and Sept. 14/9 per qr. Wheat on the spot dull and lower. Maize spot parcels quiet at 3/5 per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet and unchanged. Graded wheat futures opened 1½d. per cental lower, recovered ¼d. to ⅜d., again receded until 1¾d. to 2d. decline had been accepted, but closed steady and only 1d. to 1⅛d. under Monday night. Values—Oct. 5/1⅛, Dec. 5/1, and March 5/0⅞ per cental. Sales, 200 loads.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—Continental meets only a moderate demand, but official prices generally asked for all descriptions, though sellers in some cases would accept slightly under to make progress. Danish 88/ to 96/-, Swedish and Dutch 84/- to 90/-, Polish 80/- to 86/- per cwt. American still scarce and nominal. Canadian firm at 79/- to 82/- for Wiltshires, while Cumberland shows 2/- advance at 78/- to 80/-. Irish scarce at 83/- to 88/- per cwt. HAMS scarce and in good demand at higher prices. American short cut held at 104/- to 108/- and Canadian 110/- to 114/- per cwt. LARD on the spot scarce and firm at unchanged prices for American, but other descriptions generally dearer. MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW.—Moderate hay supplies gave fairly useful quality to draw upon. There was an improved attendance of buyers, with biddings somewhat freer for the pick of things at last day's top prices. Softer arrivals, however, were again difficult to find anxious buyers for, but market nevertheless cleared around the following prices:—Best quality 2/6 to 2/9 per cwt., anything beating latter figure exceptional; best old meadow 2/- to 2/3, and poor quality 1/6 to 1/9. Small straw supplies proved sufficient for quiet demand around late rates. Wheaten 1/6 to 1/9 per cwt., and oaten 1/6 to 2/-.

LONDON METALS MARKET

SHARP FALL IN TIN—COPPER STEADIER.

TIN market very dull, and prices declined sharply on continued pressure to sell. On balance official quotations were 90/- per ton lower for cash and 10/- to 15/- forward. Standard cash quoted £219 to £219 10/-, three months £209 5/- to £209 10/-, settlement £219 10/-. Sales amounted to 150 tons: cash at £219 10/-, three months £208/-, £208 10/-, and £209 5/-; English ingots quoted £219 10/-. Business was reported in the East at £217 18/9 c.i.f. COPPER steadier, with offers more reservedly made, but only a moderate trade resulted. Official quotations marked a decline of 1/3 per ton, both for cash and forward on balance. Standard cash quoted £31 18/9 to £32, three months £32 6/3 and £32 7/6 settlement £32. 600 tons changed hands: cash at £31 18/9, three months £32 3/9 to £32 6/3; Electros quoted £35 5/- to £35 15/-, wire bars £35 15/-, best selected £34 to £35 5/-, strong sheets £62. TREAT FOR BOY CAMPERS

TAKEN UP IN PRIVATE 'PLANE

Sir Philip Sassoon, Under Secretary for Air, yesterday earned the whole-hearted gratitude of a party of London boys who are living in a camp near the aerodrome at Lympne, Kent. In the course of a conversation with some of the lads he learned that they were anxious to experience the thrills of flying, but could not afford to pay five shillings each. He thereupon gave orders for his private monoplane to be made ready to take the boys into the air. Sergeant Graize, Sir Philip's pilot, took the boys up in parties of three, and, by special instructions, flew over the grounds of Port Lympne and the site of the camp. Not one of the youthful passengers had been in an aeroplane before.

A VICAR'S PLUNGE

ATTEMPT TO SALVE BOAT

The Vicar of Marske, Yorkshire, the Rev. A. H. Waton, yesterday swam through heavy seas in an unsuccessful attempt to salve a fishing boat belonging to local unemployed men. Eye-witnesses stated that the vicar showed tremendous pluck to face such a sea.

The boat was a converted lifeboat, presented by the Dowager Marchioness of Zetland to a number of Marske men who were tired of the dole and wanted work. It was later thrown up on the beach at Saltburn, alongside a six hundredweight tunny. The boat was broken in two, and the tunny, which was alive, had a hook in its gills. An unemployed fisherman did a roaring business among holiday-makers, charging coppers to see the tunny.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

AMERICAN TELEPHONES STRONG

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Definite leadership of a continued upward trend was taken on the Stock Exchange today by Utility issues, but the advance was hampered by further profit-taking, and the final gains were confined to small limits.

The turnover totalled 2,360,000 shares. The strength of American Telephone had an encouraging influence on other communications and specialties, but Rails, Steels and Motors marked time, while Minings moved lower. Renewed profit-taking in the late dealings exerted a restrictive influence, but the close was steady. Advances of fractions to one dollar were recorded by the Utility group, and a few of the pivotal issues rose two to three. On the other hand, the Tobacco section finished with a heavy appearance.

Call money remained at ¼ per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ¼ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered.

Sterling exchange opened ¼c. up at 4.97½, and advanced to 4.97¾ during the morning. The rate remained unchanged in the afternoon, and finally closed ½c. higher, compared with the previous close at 4.97¼.

Silver was ⅜c. down at 67⅜c.

Sugar on spot closed steady and unchanged at 3.16. Futures advanced on new buying by the trade and Wall Street, but subsequently reacted on profit-taking. Another adverse influence was the rumour that the United States consumption quota is to be increased. No. 1 contract closed steady, but at 2 to 6 points loss, while No. 3 contract closed barely steady, with values 3 to 2 points lower.

Closing options (No. 1 contract):—

Spot	Dec	Jan

Butter steady and unchanged. Grade 92 score—Extra, 24½.

Cotton on spot closed quiet and 15 points down at 11.35. Futures opened barely steady at 5 to 7 points loss. The market to-day was moderately active, but feverish. The increased "hedging" caused uneasiness, while the uncertainty regarding a loan checked aggressive selling. The market finally declined on general selling, and closed barely steady, with quotations 14 to 18 points lower. At New Orleans spot closed 25 points down at 11.20. Futures opened 6 to 3 points down, and closed 15 to 19 points lower.

Rubber Futures (No. 1 "B" contract)—Tendency barely steady, 11 to 13 points lower. Closing options—September, 11.91; October, 11.96; December, 12.12; January, 12.19; March, 12.33; May, 12.45; July, 12.57. Outside prices—Tendency easy. MR. MICHAEL W. CAREY

Mr. Michael W. Carey, 23 Harrington street, Dublin, whose death occurred in a private nursing home, was a member of the clerical staff of University College, Dublin, and had been engaged in the accountancy department for over twenty years. He retired from the service about two years ago. The funeral takes place to Glasnevin this morning after Mass at 9.30 at University Church, Stephen's Green.

FILM STAR AND FRED PERRY

"DEFINITE POSSIBILITY OF ENGAGEMENT"

Miss Helen Vinson, the American film star whose name has been linked with that of Fred Perry, the tennis player, told a reporter yesterday:—"All that I can say is that there is a definite possibility of an engagement, but even that depends on our feelings towards each other when we meet again in America." Miss Vinson was leaving Croydon Aerodrome for Paris en route to America.

£25,000 FOR COOK

Miss Mable Holmes, the cook to whom Mr. Axel Walfrid Raberg, of West Park, Mottingham, Kent, bequeathed £25,000 out of his £160,496 fortune, was not to be found at her usual place of employment yesterday. It was stated that she had probably gone to the South Coast for a holiday.

Miss Holmes, who is about fifty, went into the employ of Mr. Raberg, a retired shipbroker, fourteen years ago. He died on June 29 last, and left her the legacy. Nobody in the village seems to know where Miss Holmes comes from.

MR. KIPLING'S YOUNG AUDIENCE

Mr. Rudyard Kipling, shyest of celebrities, consented to face an audience yesterday—on the understanding that he need not make a speech. He enjoyed the occasion so much that he actually did make a speech, but it was not a very long one. At St. Winifred's School, Eastbourne, he met eighty-four boys and girls of Canadian secondary schools, who are spending six weeks in this country under a scheme of the Overseas Education League. They have visited Scotland, Stratford-on-Avon, Birmingham, and London, and are to stay at St. Winifred's for a summer school, which will last for about a week. For the young people their meeting with Mr. Kipling was the most exciting moment of their tour. They dodged about him like bees, while he joked with them, told them stories, and asked them questions about the places they had visited.

"England," he told them, "is as much a possession of Canada as Canada is a possession of England. For this land is your own by full right as much as it is ours. You must not look upon it as in any way apart from yours, except for the matter of distance, which is becoming less and less."

To Major F. J. Ney, organiser of the tour, he said: "The League is doing splendid work. If we can bring the young people of the Empire together like this we shall go a long way to solve all our problems." It is intended to develop the holiday schools as an annual gathering for secondary school students from all parts of the Empire.

FARMS, BUT NO VILLAGES

EXPLORATIONS IN PAPUA

UNKNOWN RACE "WITH A FUTURE"

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

CANBERRA, Tuesday.

THE official report of Mr. Hides on his romantic journey through unexplored Western Papua, when he discovered a strange, light-skinned race living in a wonderfully fertile valley, has been issued.

Mr. Hides predicts a splendid future for this unknown race, provided that it is assisted wisely.

Suffering appalling hardships while crossing a series of limestone craters, waterless and devoid of life, except for bandicoots and huge pythons, the patrol reached the summit of the divide and saw a large river flowing south-east, which they named Ryan.

Descending the north side of the divide, they saw a beautiful rolling country, with cultivated chocolate and green squares and flowing streams.

Where the River Ryan rises is a 7,000-feet high mountain, on which seas shells were found in a landslip. Beyond the mountain were further cultivated squares.

LIGHT BROWN

The inhabitants were at first scared, but became friendly. They were of short stature, a clean, light brown in colour, with mops of fuzzy hair, high cheek-bones and finely moulded features.

Their chief, a splendid figure of a man, told the patrol in pantomime that they were in a land of plenty. The same chief the next day tried to ambush the patrol, but when scared by a revolver shot became friendly again. The patrol that day passed park-like farms, with cotton and poplar hedges.

Continuing northwards, the patrol passed a series of valleys, in which there were no villages, but each had its own farm and dwelling. At the end of each farm section ran a contour of drains between 8 feet and 10 feet deep.

"The exactness of these cultivated squares and straight lines of drains," the report says, "made me wonder who taught these people their excellent husbandry methods."

TWO MEN SHOT

PARTNERS' SONS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Doctors were last night fighting for the lives of two men, one in Redhill Hospital, Surrey, and the other in Moorfields Eye Hospital, London, following a shooting affair at a builder's yard in Redhill, Surrey, earlier in the day.

The two men are: Robert Barnett, aged 34, of Charman road, Redhill, Married, with one child, who is suffering from shot wounds in the throat and side, and Leslie George Knight, aged 26, of Meredith Way, Redhill, married, who has eye, rib and thigh injuries.

The men, who are sons of partners in a local building firm, were working with Donald Barnett, brother of one of them, when a man came into the workroom. A shot rang out, and Knight fell to the floor at the foot of his bench. As Barnett bent to pick him up a second shot was heard, followed quickly by two others. Barnett fell to the ground almost on top of Knight.

Detectives who called at the yard where the shooting occurred found a pistol near the bloodstained benches.

CORK'S NEW FIRE BRIGADE CHIEF

PROTESTS AT MEETING OF CORPORATION

CORK, Tuesday Night.

At to-night's meeting of the General Purposes Committee of the Cork Corporation, the Lord Mayor (Alderman S. French) presiding, the minutes of the Law and Finance Committee contained a recommendation from the Local Appointments Commissioners that Mr. William Monaghan, Fire Station, Albion street, Birmingham, be appointed Superintendent of the Cork Fire Brigade and Ambulance Department.

Alderman Allen said that the Council should protest strongly against the action of the Local Appointments Commissioners in selecting a man over the head of a local applicant, who was perfectly qualified.

Mr. J. Buckley said that they had no option but to accept the recommendation of the Local Appointments Commissioners, but there was another matter, and that was that advertisements seeking applicants for the position had not appeared in the Cork Press. That deprived many would-be applicants in Munster of an opportunity of applying for the position. That was a serious grievance against the Appointments Commissioners, and he moved that the Council pass a resolution of protest.

Mr. O'Mahony—I take it we will all support Councillor Buckley's motion.

The Lord Mayor remarked that the Local Appointments Commissioners, as a rule, were drawn from around Dublin, and they did not understand local conditions in a place like Cork. If at least one of the Commissioners came from Cork, or the South of Ireland, much of the subsequent trouble would be saved.

The appointment was then confirmed.

TO NATIVES' ADVANTAGE

SOUTH AFRICA AND PROTECTORATES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

DURBAN, Tuesday.

General Hertzog, the Prime Minister, disclosed in an interview with Reuter today that the future development of the native Protectorates had been the subject of consultations between the Union Government and Sir William Clark, the British High Commissioner in South Africa, who is also High Commissioner for the Protectorates.

"All we are doing is aimed at getting the natives in the territories to see that it will be to their advantage to come under the administration of the Union," said General Hertzog, "and it is mainly with that object that the Government is co-operating with the British High Commissioner."

POST OFFICE PUBLICITY

SIR STEPHEN TALLENTS'S SUCCESSOR

It was announced last night that Lieut.-Colonel E. T. Crutchley, at present British Government representative in the Commonwealth of Australia, is to succeed, as Public Relations Officer at the Post Office, Sir Stephen Tallents, whose appointment as Controller of Public Relations to the B.B.C. takes effect in October.

Colonel Crutchley's new appointment dates as from October 1. He joined the Post Office in 1894, and rose to be an assistant surveyor. In that capacity he worked successively in Northumberland and Durham, in the neighbourhood of London, and in the West Country.

THE SIENESE PALIO

MEDIÆVAL RIVALRY RETAINED

FAMOUS TRADITIONAL FESTIVAL

SIENA since many centuries is divided into seventeen contrade (wards) just as other Italian cities are divided into districts, quarters or parishes. Similar divisions no longer exist in metropolitan cities, and they are gradually disappearing from provincial towns because their special social and military functions formed part of the old communes.

They have, however, survived at Siena, which is the only old city where the original wards retained their character, their old aspects, their emblems, and, above, all, the passions and violent rivalries of medieval times. Every authentic citizen of Siena, whether patrician, middle-class or plebian, is, first of all, a member of the particular ward where he was born, lives, gets married and dies, or wants to die.

HERALDIC DEVICES

The heraldic device, generally an animal, from which the distinct appellation of each ward is derived, such as the goose, the hedgehog, the tortoise, the eagle, the tower, and so on, is venerated by the members of the ward whose supreme and produest ambition is that it should win the Palio.

If the wave of passion that twice a year, on the 2nd of July and the 16th of August, spreads like wildfire over all the people within the red walls of this marvellous fourteenth century city suddenly ceased to exist, the great beauty of the most famous traditional festival Italy can boast of nowadays would come to an end.

The wonderful spectacle of the Palio is held in the Piazza del Campo, dominated by the Communal Palace, and the light and graceful tower of the Mangia, that formed the very heart of old communal life. Here, in fact, in the old days, games, mystery plays and tournaments were held, and when the Republic was threatened the people assembled in Parliament and all knelt in devotion to hear the Mass celebrated in the open chapel under the palace tower and renew the vows they made to the Blessed Virgin, proclaimed Queen of Siena on the eve of the battle of Montaperti in 1260.

A MEDIÆVAL STAMP

The historic race bears a mediæval stamp in harmony with the architecture of the wonderful square, and at the same time it has an intimate devotional character in as much as it commemorates the beautiful religious and civil traditions of the people of Siena. In fact, on the eve of the Feast of the Assumption, when the race takes place in August, the members of the commune, the clergy and the people move processionally to the cathedral to offer the candle promised yearly to the Madonna del Voto (of the vow), and, moreover, the banner known as the palio, given as a prize to the ward that wins the race, is still adorned with the image of the Virgin Mary.

The race of the Palio in its present form has not the remote origin generally attributed to it. The earliest record of a licence for the Palio around the square, found on the registers of the Officers of the Biccherna who superintended public festivals, is dated on the 2nd July, 1659, and regular horse races in the Piazza del Campo did not take place before that time.

SPANISH INFLUENCE

During the sixteenth century the people of Siena under Spanish influence preferred races with mounted buffaloes, and in earlier times, especially during the fourteenth century, the celebrations consisted of sham fights between parties of citizens, armed with wooden swords and lances and protected by leather bucklers and wicker caps or helmets, that often ended in bloodshed. These games known as Elmora and Pugna were very popular in Siena during the republican period and were indulged in by young men who thus were trained in the art of war for the defence of their country.

The race of the Palio even nowadays has very little in common with a regular horse race, as it retains the character and aspect of a struggle; or, rather, a real battle among the rival wards. The historical cortege of the wards that goes round the square before the race starts owes its origin to similar pageants that in the old days preceded the jousts and buffalo races when so-called machines with allegorical representations of various enterprises were carried in triumph.

THE PALIO

On the day of the Palio the large bell of the Mangia Tower is heard solemnly and melodiously tolling at regular intervals since early in the morning. Its sound reawakens poetic memories, and it seems as if the voice of Siena were heard again in history. From every old palace, on every surviving tower, on every church and at every picturesque street corner the banners of the wards are hoisted or hung. Early in the afternoon one should go to one of the chapels of the ten wards chosen to be represented in the race.

Here the festival starts with the religious function of blessing the horse and the jockey while the members of the ward crowd round, loudly wishing good luck and making vows for the success of their horse. Later on all the people crowd the square that has the appearance of an amphitheatre to see the cortege of the wards and the race. The spectacle is really marvellous, especially owing to the gorgeous costumes worn by the pages, the captains and the flag-bearers, who, with admirable dexterity, wave and twirl their multicoloured flags, which they hurl high up in the air, while the drummers and silver hautboys play the march of the Palio. The cortege is closed by the triumphal wagon symbolising the Carroccio or battle cart of the old Commune that used to be carried in war, serving as a rallying point and representing the country. It is drawn by four white oxen covered with silken cloths, and the colours of the city and the Palio destined to the winning ward are carried on it.

THE RACE

At the so-called corner of the horses (Costarella dei Barbari) there is the starting point, known as mossa, meaning move. Here the ten horses, ridden by jockeys with bull-hide switches, which they pitilessly wield to keep back their adversaries during the race, are lined between the ropes that fall at a signal given by the starter (mossiere). The horses rush in a mad gallop on the course round the square, and the people crowding it start shouting wildly, and keep doing so until the race is over. This prolonged shout is most impressive, and it forms a characteristic feature of Siena, the inhabitants of which simply go mad during the race, consisting of three laps round the square. The shouting becomes louder at the finish, and it is changed into cheering for the winner by his partisans, which their rivals vainly try to drown down. Boys jump over the barriers and they are the first representatives of the ward to embrace and kiss the winning jockey. Then the entire ward surrounds the winner and escorts him to the judges' stand, where he is awarded the Palio. A triumphal cortège is then formed and the Palio is taken to the ward's chapel and placed there among other trophies, while a solemn Te Deum is sung in thanksgiving for the victory.

UNION SECRETARY'S DEATH

STRUCK BY A TRUCK

Mr. William H. Smith, secretary of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, died in the Queen Victoria Hospital, Morecambe, yesterday.

Mr. Smith, who was 54 years of age, lived at Clifton village, Preston.

On August 8th, while visiting Heysham Harbour, Lancashire, he was struck by a truck, and at the hospital it was found that he had a fractured spine and damaged ribs.

£10,000 Claim.—A number of claims was submitted at the monthly meeting of the Letterkenny Urban Council on Monday night. The claims arise out of incidents in the town on the morning of July 16, when a garage was burned to the ground and property destroyed. The claims include Messrs. the Donegal Service Depot, £10,000 for destruction of garage by fire.

IRISH NEWS IN BRIEF

Died at Tea.—James Wall, of Market street, Cahir, took suddenly ill while having tea with some friends and died. Death was caused by heart failure.

* * * * *

Released Farmers.—Three of the County Cork farmers who were sentenced by the Military Tribunal arrived in Cork yesterday. They were—Messrs. W. O'Driscoll, Bandon, chairman of the new Land League; P. Heskin, secretary; and Brooke W. Brasier, M.C.C. All three appeared to be in the best of health. They were greeted by a large number of friends.

Limerick Horse Show.—The entries in the various departments of Limerick Horse Show, which takes place on August 21 and 22, have closed, and are well up to the average. The horse and cattle classes have filled well, and the horticultural and industries section and the dog show, for which there is a total of seven hundred entries, will, as usual, be very attractive features of the exhibition.

Ex-Soldier's Sudden Death.—While walking with his wife at Clonmel, Patrick Ginevan (56), an ex-soldier, of Glenconnor cottages, collapsed and died in a short time. He was a native of Lismore, and in receipt of full disability pension. Prior to joining the Army during the Great War he worked at Guinness's brewery. Death was due to natural causes.

Anniversary Mass.—At St. Finbarr's (South Parish) Church yesterday farmers from all over the County Cork assisted at the anniversary Mass for the repose of the soul of Michael Patrick Lynch, who was fatally wounded at the sale of seized cattle at Copley street on August 13 last year. The congregation included relatives of the deceased man, a number of Dail deputies, and members of Cork County Council.

Dublin Men Charged.—John Byrne, Peter Moran and Andrew Malone, all of Dominick street, Dublin, were charged at Swords Court with breaking into lock-up shops at Malahide, the property of Peter Sherlock and T. H. Barklie, and the larceny of goods valued at 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. The defendants admitted the offences. Byrne was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, Moran was fined £2 with 10s. compensation, and Malone £1 with 10s. compensation.

Drogheda Harbour Board.—A quiet election took place at Drogheda yesterday, when nine Harbour Commissioners were elected to the Drogheda Harbour Board, in room of nine outgoing members. Only 41 out of 400 voters on the register exercised the franchise. The following were elected:—Messrs. P. B. Moore, P. J. Reilly, H. McNamara, P. Anderson, R. Murdock, P. D. McIvor, J. J. Sheils, C. F. Little (all outgoing) and P. Cunningham (new). Mr. Thomas Byrne, Secretary of the Board, acted as Presiding Officer.

Vandalism Deplored.—At Swords Court yesterday, four young Dublin men were prosecuted for having maliciously damaged an ornamental tree at Swords, the property of the Dublin County Council. They were—Peter Gallagher, Little Mary street; Joseph Cumisky, Little Mary street; John Carey, Ormond square, and Bertie Jenkins, Mary's Abbey. After hearing evidence, Justice Reddin dismissed the cases against Cumisky, Carey and Jenkins, and said that he was satisfied that Gallagher was responsible for the damage done to the tree. He did not know whether Gallagher had ever been away from Ireland. In France and Germany the public roads were made beautiful with trees, and also the villages. He wondered when they in Ireland would try and be as civilised as the rest of Europe. A man who would tear down a tree in this way was only half civilised. This matter was made more serious because Gallagher was a young man of decent education, and not an ignorant young fellow. However, he accepted the explanation that Gallagher had too much drink taken, and would let him off with a £1 fine and £1 5s. compensation and 10s. costs.

Sequel to Assault.—At Forkhill (County Armagh) Court yesterday, before Major McCallum, R.M., James Murphy (21), of Meighphoner, Mullaghbawn, was prosecuted by D. I. Kiernan for assaulting Sergeant Bruce McFetridge, of the Newry Customs patrol, in the execution of his duty on June 8th last. Defendant did not appear, and his mother, stating that she did not know where he was, said that the previous morning she found a note on the table telling her that he had gone away. Sergeant McFetridge gave evidence that, with Constable Finney, he visited the defendant's home. Witness had a certain document with him. As they were departing defendant caught hold of the constable and tried to put the summonse in his pocket, but it fell to the road. Defendant again tried to force it into the constable's pocket, and adopted a threatening attitude, rushing to the farmhouse and returning with a graip, which he said he would stick in them. Defendant's father appeared. They told the father who they were and he said that the defendant was very excitable and had a hasty temper. He then lectured the defendant, who apologised. The R.M. said that but for the fact that defendant apologised to the police at the time he would have sentenced him to imprisonment, but in view of the fact that he took his father's advice he would only impose a fine of 40s. and costs.

RIVAL UNIONS' DISPUTE

CINEMAS BOMBED ON BROADWAY

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Bombs were thrown from a fast travelling car early this morning at two cinema theatres in the Broadway district of New York. The ticket booth of the first cinema attacked was completely destroyed, and several plate glass windows in the lobby were shattered.

A bomb directed at the second cinema missed its mark, and exploded in front of a nearby shop, shattering its windows and doing other damage.

Those responsible for the outrage escaped before the police arrived, but it is believed the bombing was an incident in a war between two rival unions of cinema operators. Both the theatres attacked employ members of the Allied Operators' Union, and have been picketed for some days past by members of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, who are at present on strike for higher wages and improved conditions of work.

Orders have been issued to the police to guard all cinema theatres in the Metropolitan area, particularly those on and around Broadway.

WINTER-FLOWERING BEGONIAS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

The well-deserved popularity of the beautiful winter-flowering begonia, Gloire de Lorraine—than which we certainly have no brighter or more graceful greenhouse plant during the dull December days—suggests the hope that other forms of this useful race of plants will not be overlooked. One charming form, B. Socotrana, has been lying dormant all through the summer, and if now started into growth, by shaking out and repotting the tubers or bulbils formed last year, it will soon make headway, forming a neat pyramidal specimen, up to two feet high, with glossy foliage and a profusion of bright rosy pink flowers. It succeeds best in a compost of equal parts of peat and loam, a little leaf-mould and a good share of silver sand, and makes handy specimens in six or seven-inch pots. Water should be sparingly given until growth commences, but when in full root-action plenty of water may be given. Other desirable forms are B. Winter Cheer, a rich carmine; B. Ensign, a large double pink, not unlike a camellia; and B. Myra, a beautiful soft pink flower. All these require a warm greenhouse while growing and until coming into bloom, when they may be brought into a cooler atmosphere, to prolong the season of flowering.

BEWARE OF ROUP: THE CAUSE.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Not infrequently at this time of year outbreaks of roup cause much trouble to poultry-keepers, and often may, indeed, be traced to lack of care on the part of those handling the birds. A frequent cause of the outbreaks is the mismanagement of new stock, or stock returning from shows or laying tests, etc. The disease may, in fact, be regarded as latent in a large proportion of birds, but may break out only after the effects of a long train journey, in the course of which it may have been exposed to draughts or may have been a considerable time without food or drink. The harm is done when the roupy bird is taken straight from its basket and placed among the farm flock.

A simple precaution that should never be neglected is always—no matter when they come—to examine bought birds for signs of roup, and if any are found to return the birds. Whether signs are discovered or not, strange birds, or birds returning from shows, should be isolated from the rest of the flock for a week or longer.

Symptoms of the disease are cheesy growths inside the mouth of the fowl; sometimes the growths are in loose flakes and sometimes deeply embedded in the skin. Affected birds are often unable to close their mouths and there is a very bad odour. Wheezing, snuffling or sneezing are the first signs of the disease, and any birds found thus after they have gone to roost should be at once removed and isolated.
